

BIPARTISAN BODY OF 12 NAMED TO INVESTIGATE U.S. SECURITY CHECKS

However, Two Senate Subcommittees Announce Plans to Go Ahead With Own Hearings on Issue.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Congressional investigators planned today to push ahead with their own inquiries into the Government's employee security program despite the appointment of a special bipartisan commission to study it.

A Senate subcommittee on constitutional rights is to start hearings Monday that are expected to accent further the controversy over the program.

And a Senate Civil Service subcommittee, which has been investigating the program for several months, said it has scheduled another series of hearings for Dec. 1-2.

Under the resolution adopted by Congress last summer, the new 12-member commission is to study all phases of the program for the security screening of federal employees and employees of private defense contractors. It has been estimated that more than 8,000 persons now are subject to security checks.

Political Issue. Some members of Congress expressed hope that establishment of the commission would remove the program from political controversy. With that in mind, the date set for its final report was Dec. 31, 1956—after next year's elections.

In the 1954 campaign, Democrats accused Vice President Nixon and other Republicans of making a "political numbers racket" out of listings of federal employees fired as security risks.

The resolution establishing the commission provides that the President, the Vice President and the Speaker of the House should each name four members—two each to be from the Government and two from the public at large.

The appointments were announced yesterday.

Mr. Eisenhower named former Attorney General James P. McGranery of Philadelphia and Assistant Secretary of Defense Carter L. Burgess, both Democrats, and Under Secretary of Commerce Louis Rothschild and Franklin D. Murphy, chancellor of the University of Kansas, both Republicans.

Nixon appointed Senators Stennis (Dem.), Mississippi, and Cotton (Rep.), New Hampshire, and Lloyd Wright of Los Angeles, past president of the American Bar Association, and Dr. Susan Riley of George Peabody College, Nashville, Tenn.

Rayburn's Choices. Named by House Speaker Sam Rayburn were Representatives Walter (Dem.), Pennsylvania, and McCulloch (Rep.), Ohio, former Gov. Edwin L. Mechem of New Mexico, and James L. Noel Jr., Houston (Tex.), attorney.

Stennis said after his appointment was announced that he felt "an impartial non-political study by the commission can bring the major phases of the problem into proper focus and can, I hope, make some constructive suggestions."

Cotton said in a statement that the commission's work must be undertaken "without bias, prejudice or partisanship." He said it will be dealing "with one of the most delicate problems of government."

In a speech in Great Neck, N.Y., last night Senator Clifford P. Case (Rep.), New Jersey, called the establishment of the commission "a hopeful sign of deeper public awareness of the complexity and difficulty of the whole problem."

"No one who has looked at all closely at the workings of the personnel security program will claim that we have yet achieved a satisfactory balance" between security and freedom, he said.

MAYOR, DEPUTY BLAMED FOR NEW LOOK IN MOSCOW

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Responsibility for the flashy look-officially disapproved—in Moscow architecture has been hung on Moscow Mayor M. A. Yasnov and his deputy.

Additional details of faults in the nation's building program, as found by the Soviet Communist party and the Government, were broadcast last night by the Moscow radio.

The broadcast said Yasnov and Deputy Mayor Kulakov were informed there had been an unsatisfactory use of designs and that orders for use of standard designs not met. It said they were warned of their personal responsibility.

The broadcast said the following architects were either fired, recommended for dismissal or had lost their Stalin prizes:

Stalin prize winners Polyakov, Boretsky and Ryabitsky; chief architects Dushkin, Efimovich, Grechukin, Krykin; former chief Moscow architects Chervurin and Vlasov and former leaders of the Union of Soviet architects Chernyshev, Ryzhavin and Zakharov.

harbor and that the ship turned back.

Army units commanded by generals took over central police headquarters and the office of the mayor in the capital and issued an order closing all stores at noon. Other units surrounded government buildings, the radio station, the post office and several newspaper buildings.

Lott issued a communique claiming support of the president of the Supreme Court, the presidents of both houses of Congress and most army officers in Rio de Janeiro and the interior.

Much of the fleet was caught in the harbor when the Navy announced its opposition to the coup by the army and several ships began maneuvering toward the exits of the Guanabara bay. Only one, it was reported, succeeded in slipping out. The others were under the guns of Copacabana fort at the south end of the famous beach and Leme fort at the north.

40 Minutes of Firing. The firing in the bay, which began at 10:30 a.m., lasted about 40 minutes. All the forts around Guanabara bay remained on full alert to keep the fleet from escaping. Merchant ships were permitted to move in and out freely.

Upon his resignation as war minister, Gen. Lott went to the central army barracks of the federal district and took command.

He issued a proclamation to the nation saying a movement was being made against Lutz because of the temporary president's decision in the case of a colonel whom the resigned war minister wanted to discipline for political activity.

The proclamation said the decision had provoked the army and injured its honor.

AIRLINE OFFERS $25,000 REWARD IN FATAL BLAST

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (AP)—United Air Lines yesterday offered a $25,000 reward "for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible" for the crash of a United plane near Longmont, Colo., 10 days ago. Forty-four persons were killed in the crash.

The statement said: "United Air Lines announced that the company is offering a $25,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of the person or persons responsible for the explosion which occurred aboard United flight 629 near Longmont, Colo., Nov. 1, 1953."

"According to W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, the explosion which was aboard 629 on Nov. 1 was completely foreign to the aircraft or to operations in the airline industry."

Patterson said: "I hope this reward will aid in producing information which will lead to the early solution of this air industry tragedy."

STEVENSON HAS STEPS PLANNED IN MAKING HIS BID

California, Oregon Primaries Likely to Be Testing Ground With Kefauver.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson is planning a series of steps next week designed to propel himself into the 1956 campaign as the man to beat for the Democratic presidential nomination.

The former Illinois governor and 1952 presidential nominee was an overnight guest here on his way to Charlottesville, Va., where he speaks tonight at the Woodrow Wilson centennial observance.

It was indicated that Stevenson's bid for the 1956 nomination would be announced formally at Chicago next week in this progression.

1. A brief announcement Tuesday which will declare his candidacy for the nomination.

2. A press conference Wednesday at which he will be prepared to answer questions about his campaign organization and his thoughts about the state presidential primaries before the party nominating convention at Chicago next August.

3. A speech before the Democratic National Committee Saturday night, laying out his ideas in the issues for 1956.

(Stevenson conferred by telephone today, the United Press said, with former President Truman and other party leaders, including Senator Alben W. Barkley of Kentucky, Democratic National Chairman Paul M. Butler and Wesley McCune, former assistant secretary of agriculture. He also held a breakfast conference with Armistead Boothe, of the Virginia Legislature, Stevenson's aids declined to discuss the nature of his telephone talks.)

Stevenson already has recruited some members of his campaign organization, James Finnegan, Philadelphia Democratic leader, was reported to be a possible choice to manage his campaign.

His primary plans were understood to be uncertain except that it was considered a sure thing that he would enter the Minnesota primary March 20, probably without opposition.

Other presidential primaries under consideration were said to include Pennsylvania, Florida, Oregon and California.

The California and Oregon primaries now are regarded as the most likely spots for a collision between Stevenson and Senator Estes Kefauver of Tennessee, who is expected to announce his candidacy in about three weeks. Kefauver plowed through state primaries in 1952 with great success but failed to win the nomination.

Stevenson flew here yesterday and almost immediately went to the home of Secretary of State Dean Acheson for lunch and a three-hour visit with Acheson and Paul Nitze, former chief of the State Department policy planning staff.

He also met twice with Clayton Fritchie and Philip Stern of the Democratic National Committee staff.

U.N. GROUP AGAIN VOTES AGAINST HEARING N. KOREA

Russia, Asians Back Proposal — Political Committee Agrees to Invite South Korea.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—The United Nations Political Committee, after three days' bitter discussion, beat down today a strong Soviet and Asian drive to invite North Korea to its debate on Korean problems.

The 60-nation committee, however, approved a United States proposal to invite South Korea to take part in the debate. This followed the pattern of previous years, but the issue was much more hotly contested this time.

The first test came on the American proposal, which was approved 44 to 5, with nine abstentions. But Syria insisted on having a vote on its proposal to invite both North and South Korea. The vote on this was 14 in favor, 34 against and 10 abstaining.

Last year only the five Soviet bloc countries voted to invite the North Koreans.

Soviet Bloc Supporters. This year Afghanistan, Burma, Egypt, India, Iran, Saudi Arabia, Syria, Yemen and Yugoslavia joined the Soviet bloc in favor of that proposal.

Debate opened with the United States declaring Communist proposals for a new international conference on Korea "cannot be given serious consideration."

United States Delegate Jacob Blaustein told the committee such proposals were advanced by the Communists solely to prevent disagreement and disension among the free countries.

1. "There still remain in Communist control tens of thousands of people who are entitled under terms of the Korean armistice agreement to be permitted and assisted to proceed to the territory under the control of the Republic of (South) Korea."

2. The Communists, in violation of the armistice, have introduced into North Korea "a modern air force of 400 to 500 planes, over 300 of which are recent jet types."

Thousands Held. The thousands being held by the Communists, he said, are mostly Korean although there are a number of non-Korean civilians known to have been alive in Communist custody at one time and who never have been accounted for.

Blaustein estimated the captive Koreans at 24,000 military personnel and 17,000 civilians. He gave no estimates as to the number of other nationals, but said those reported included Irish, French, German and American.

"The United States," he said, "urges that the Communists take early steps to account for these unfortunate people and to release those still alive."

Kefauver Asks About Progress In Case Tied to Dixon-Yates

Plans Hearing on Action in Reported Attempt by Utility Executives to Influence Witness.

By RICHARD DUDMAN A Washington Correspondent of The Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11—Senator Estes Kefauver (Dem.), Tennessee, wants to know what the Administration has done about a reported attempt by Mississippi utility executives to influence the testimony of a witness in the Dixon-Yates case last December.

Kefauver, chairman of a special investigating subcommittee, will question representatives of the Department of Justice and the Securities and Exchange Commission at a hearing tomorrow.

Warren Olney III, assistant attorney general in charge of the criminal division, and Robert A. McDowell, director of the SEC division of corporate regulation, are scheduled to appear.

Involved Educator. The incident involved Dr. Frederic H. Kellogg, dean of engineering at the University of Mississippi. Dr. Kellogg appeared as a witness for opponents of the now-defunct plant to build a steam generating plant at West Memphis, Ark., to feed private power into the Tennessee Valley Authority system.

Shortly before Dr. Kellogg was to appear, Provost Alton Bryant, acting chancellor of the university, telephoned Dr. Kellogg and said the university had received some calls questioning the propriety of the dean's plan to testify. Dr. Kellogg said Dr. Bryant added that some of the callers were persons who had promised to help raise $700,000 for a new university airport and contribute equipment for the engineering school. Dr. Kellogg reported to the SEC.

Calls By Executives. Dr. Bryant later told the Post-Dispatch that some of the calls received by the university had come from executives of Mississippi Power & Light Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Middle South Utilities Inc., major partner in the Dixon-Yates syndicate.

Dr. Kellogg said the provost had not ordered him home. The engineering dean testified as planned, giving technical information about the soil structure at the West Memphis site. Middle South representatives objected to having the incident made public and repudiated any attempt to influence the witness.

It was learned that McDowell telephoned Dr. Bryant about the incident and that the case then was referred to the Justice Department for possible action. Kefauver wants to know what progress, if any, has been made on the case.

TWO BRITISH JETS CAN BREAK SOUND BARRIER IN CLIMB

LONDON, Nov. 11 (UP)—The Ministry of Supply disclosed today that Britain has two jets capable of cracking the sound barrier in a climb.

It had been announced previously that the P-1 twin-jet fighter could exceed the speed of sound in level flight—a feat matched easily by such American planes as the Air Force's Supersonic and the Navy's Sky-ray.

Today's announcement disclosed that both the P-1 and the arrowhead-shaped Fairey Delta research plane had been regularly exceeding the speed of sound in climbs—an accomplishment claimed by few American planes.

The ministry announced it was building a new super-fighter powered both by jet and rocket. It was understood the SR-3, as it is called, will be able to climb almost vertically and knock down the fastest of jet bombers.

The ministry revealed it has decided to cancel its order for Vickers-Armstrong's V-1000 jet transport planes.

SCIENTISTS URGE U.S. TO LAUNCH 10 EARTH SATELLITES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The National Academy of Sciences has recommended that the United States build 10 instrument-filled space satellites for launching in the International Geophysical Year.

The academy called for 10 "with the hope that at least five or six would be successfully launched into their orbits."

Dr. Joseph Kaplan, chairman of the academy's national committee for the year, disclosed this in a report to the American Astronomical Society at Troy, N.Y., last night.

Kaplan said the academy proposals, submitted to the Government through the National Science Foundation last May, were preliminary findings intended to provide a sound base for the project.

President Eisenhower announced last July that the academy and the National Science Foundation would direct a program for the launching of a basketball-size satellite for world-wide scientific observations during the I.G.Y. That "year" actually is an 18-month period—July 1, 1957, through December, 1958.

PROFESSORS DISAGREE OVER SHELBY MARCH INTO MEXICO

Special to the Post-Dispatch. MEMPHIS, Nov. 11—A psychiatrist, not an historian, is what Confederate Brig. Gen. Joseph O. Shelby of Bates county, Mo., needs to explain his motives for leading an expedition to Mexico in 1865, Prof. C. Harvey Gardiner, St. Louis, told the Southern Historical Association here today.

Gardiner, associate professor of history at Washington University, challenged a paper of Prof. Edwin A. Davis of Louisiana State University that had explained Gen. Shelby's move as a last gesture of Confederate chivalry.

"Gen. Shelby led 1000 men to Mexico because he was fighting mad," Gardiner asserted. He said the Mexican expedition, which lasted two years, was simply a psychological device for the one-time slaveowner to use in purging himself of aggressive pressures. The reason Gen. Shelby was mad was that he refused to accept the defeat of the Confederacy, Gardiner declared.

MOORE DEMANDS TAX MEN WHO BLOCKED INQUIRY BE PROSECUTED

He Charges Some Have Been Promoted and Re-Promoted — Sentences Carlisle Cooper to 5 Years.

Corrupt federal officers who blocked income tax investigations and those responsible for corrupting them must be brought to justice before the current grand jury investigation of government tax scandals can be termed a success, United States District Judge George H. Moore declared yesterday.

Judge Moore, speaking from the bench as he sentenced Carlisle Cooper to a maximum five-year prison term for perjury growing out of an income tax matter, said: "The time has come when I think these people ought to be dealt with in such a way as to discredit tax dodging and perjury."

In his remarks, Judge Moore sharply criticized T. Coleman Andrews, who recently resigned as Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He charged that Andrews, after promising discharge of officials responsible for the tax scandals, had merely transferred them. Later, he said, many of these officials were promoted, some more than once.

Addressing his remarks to George C. Dyer, attorney for Cooper, who was seeking to have his client admitted to bail, Judge Moore said: "After all, Mr. Dyer, this court has been trying for five or six years, I concede very ineffectively, to have this situation cleaned up that has been existing here."

"It will be five years the first day of March since I called upon the grand jury to investigate the Internal Revenue conditions. I have repeated that charge or referred to it, called attention to it and again to various juries since then."

"There have been a number of tax evaders who have been indicted, some of whom thought their cases already had been fixed, I understand, or settled, whatever the word might be."

"Some of them have been indicted, prosecuted and convicted, and served their sentences. But I have seen over a period of some years practically every official from the Internal Revenue Bureau that came into this court or that came out here trying to block and obstruct justice, almost without exception, promoted and promoted and promoted."

"Do you know how many indictments have been returned in these nearly five years? There have been two, the collector here in St. Louis, who was indicted and convicted, and the supervisor from Chicago who was indicted at Omaha, Neb."

Refers to Finnegan, Brown. Judge Moore said he referred to James P. Finnegan, former collector of Internal Revenue here, and G. Elmer Brown, a veteran Internal Revenue official who was indicted Dec. 1, 1954, in Omaha, on charges of perjury arising from the Finnegan investigation.

Finnegan was sentenced to two years in prison and fined $10,000 March 24, 1952, for misconduct in office.

Judge Moore expressed hope that the present federal grand jury, which has been in session about 10 months, would "get to the bottom" of the scandals. Pointing out again that only two men other than tax evaders

HEAD OF PATROL URGES SLOW-DOWN ON MISSOURI ROADS

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Nov. 11.—Col. Hugh H. Waggoner, state highway patrol superintendent, today called on automobile drivers on Missouri highways to slow down, both in speed and in the racking up of new records in injuries and deaths.

"With 900 already dead and the winter driving hazards season yet to come we can expect a death toll well in excess of 1000 before the year's end," Col. Waggoner said.

Patrol records on motor vehicle deaths in Missouri show a total of 899 up to yesterday, a gain of about 100 deaths over the corresponding period last year.

He had indicted in almost five years of investigation, Judge Moore went on:

"Men right here in St. Louis, men right here in this building in the Internal Revenue Service, men in high places in Washington, who took an active part in trying to obstruct justice, haven't been brought to tow yet. And I believe in discouraging it at both ends of the line."

"I believe in prosecuting the delinquent officials, I believe in prosecuting those people who have corrupted the officials and those who have just willfully evaded their taxes."

Judge Moore read excerpts from the indictment against Brown which, among other allegations, charged that he had never suggested that retaliatory measures should be taken against Judge Moore.

Then the judge turned his critical remarks to former Commissioner Andrews. He pointed out that Andrews, an Eisenhower appointee who several months ago criticized federal judges for being too lenient in tax evasion cases, had resigned to become chief executive officer of the American Fidelity and Casualty Co., a firm involved in a $5,500,000 tax case.

"Why, this head of the Internal Revenue Service who deprecates the federal judges as compared with racketeers and gangsters, where does he get his right to criticize federal judges? That man came from Washington to St. Louis and came to my home and spent four hours with me on the fourteenth day of April 1953, and assured me he was going to clean up the situation."

"I talked to him a year ago today—the tenth day of November, 1954, he sat in my office, the first time I had seen him since he came to my home on the fourteenth day of April, 1953."

"Encouraged" by Andrews. "I said to him, 'Mr. Andrews, when you came to St. Louis and spent an afternoon at my home and assured me you were going to clean up this situation it gave me great encouragement. You told me you did not want to do the job piecemeal, you were going to familiarize yourself with the situation and you were going to move everywhere at once.'"

"When in the following July you removed nearly all of these people who had been promoted, many of them for what they had done in attempting to block the investigation here and elsewhere, I was further encouraged."

"But when I saw you just took the pegs and moved them to nearby holes, when I saw men who had been guilty of that conduct maintained in a status quo by you or else promoted, given additional reward, since then, Mr. Andrews, I have not felt so much encouraged."

"I told him exactly what I thought, and that is the man who thinks that federal judges do more to break down respect for the administration of justice than do racketeers and gangsters."

Cooper, vice president and general manager of Andy Burger Motors, Inc., was sentenced to five years in federal prison on the perjury charge. Judge Moore termed perjury "a monstrous offense" as he imposed the sentence.

Colorful Veterans' Day Parade With Balmy Breeze, Sunny Skies

60 Units March as Drums Roll, Bugles Blare — Mayor Tucker and Senator Symington in Line.

The Veterans Day parade, complete with the traditional roll of drums, the sound of bugles, and the hopes and memories of young and old, marched through downtown St. Louis streets today as a crowd of spectators watched in balmy, spring-like weather.

The sun shone in a sky marked only by a few sparse clouds and the temperature reached 74 degrees as the 60 marching units, including an Army tank, jeeps, trucks, and a host of drum and bugle corps, filed past.

The crowds gathered early, with children sitting on Washington avenue curbstones waiting for the parade to start. The marching began promptly at 2:30 o'clock, with a police motorcycle escort and Steve Kriewake, the perennial grand marshal of St. Louis parades, heading the line.

Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, United States Senator Stuart Symington, and other civic officials followed. A Scott Air Force Base band supplied martial music, along with the drum and bugle corps from a number of city schools. The American Legion, Eleventh and Twelfth districts, provided the guard of honor.

Route of Parade. The parade started from Twelfth boulevard and Washington avenue, went east to Sixth street, south to Locust street, west to Twelfth, south to Chestnut and then west in Chestnut to the reviewing stand in front of Soldiers Memorial.

The elementary school units included stern-faced, tiny majorettes concentrating hard on their chores with the baton, and red-faced small boys, cheeks puffed out, doing a fine job with their bugles.

Along with the Mark Twain School unit, brightly uniformed in red coats and white pants, was one boy in civilian clothes. He was 9-year-old Tommy Fussen, who wanted to march with his brother Billy, 11, a member of the school's drum and bugle corps.

Marines Bring Bulldog. The Third Infantry Battalion, U.S. Marine Corps Reserve, was equipped with an English bulldog as a mascot. A tank, jeeps, and two and one half ton Army trucks rolled past as symbols of America's armed might.

Earlier, in an address to an American Legion luncheon at the De Soto Hotel, Senator Symington said the "death of the Geneva spirit" brought about this week by the stand of Soviet Foreign Minister V. M. Molotov was "the greatest

STRATTON RAKES MADISON COUNTY LAW OFFICIALS

Says Gambling Exists 'Only Where Somebody Is Paid Off,' Plans More Raids.

By a Special Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 11.—Gambling exists "only where somebody is paid off for protection," Gov. William G. Stratton declared yesterday in a sharp rebuke to law enforcement officials in Madison county.

Answering questions by reporters on recent raids by state police on gambling establishments, the Governor said that local authorities "just shrug their shoulders and do nothing" despite the fact state police had notified them of the existence of gambling in their areas.

Gov. Stratton was particularly critical of Madison county, which he termed "notorious" for its open gambling.

State police last week raided Frank (Buster) Wortman's Club Prevue on U.S. Highway 40 near Fairmount Park race track and chopped up dice and blackjack tables and roulette wheels.

"We'll keep raiding Madison county until we get conditions cleaned up there without further notification to local authorities," he declared.

The state does not intend to supersede local authorities, he explained, but the policy of suppressing organized, syndicate gambling will be continued.

The Governor denied that state police raids were "political." Sheriff Kenneth T. Ogde of Madison county had complained that state police should not have conducted raids in his county without notifying him.

Gov. Stratton pledged that such raids will continue only when local law officials are "unable or unwilling to cope with lawlessness gambling and vice."

"Let's stop kidding," he said, "they can stop gambling if they want to."

Singling out Madison county again, Gov. Stratton pointed out that state police had received a number of complaints in recent months from individuals, newspapers and investigators about gambling there.

All such information, he continued, was relayed to local authorities so they could remedy the situation. State police only made raids when the information was ignored, he said.

Gov. Stratton endorsed the statement of Phil M. Brown, superintendent of state police, who named eight counties, including Madison, St. Clair and Grundy—the Governor's home county—where raids will be made without further notification to local authorities.

However, Gov. Stratton said that if local authorities show a willingness to co-operate with state police, they will be allowed to deal with crime on the local level.

State Has Options on 25 Homes On Boone Expressway Extension

Land on Harter Avenue Is First to Be Acquired in Richmond Heights East of Hanley Road.

The State Highway Department has acquired options to purchase 25 homes on Harter avenue in Richmond Heights, east of Laclede Station road, along the route of the Daniel Boone expressway extension, it was announced today.

Myer Ableman, St. Louis urban area engineer for the highway department, said agreements on the purchase price for the property have been reached with the home owners through private negotiations within the last month.

Warranty deeds transferring title of these homes to the highway department have been signed, and are being held in escrow until the state pays the owners, Ableman said this was expected to be done shortly.

First Acquired. This is the first property to be acquired by the state east of Hanley road for extension of the Daniel Boone expressway, since St. Louis county and the highway department entered into an agreement on the project. The county will pay half the cost of acquiring the right-of-way east of Hanley.

Funds to finance extension of the Daniel Boone expressway from its present eastern terminus at Brentwood boulevard to the Express Highway in St. Louis are included in the proposed $39,712,000 county bond issue which will be voted on Nov. 22.

Ableman reported that negotiations to purchase the 25 Harter avenue residences were initiated in almost every case by the property owner. The highway department employed independent appraisers who fixed a fair market value on the home.

Rent-Free Six Months. He said that after the money is paid by the state for the homes, property owners will be permitted to remain in the residences rent free for six months, to give them an opportunity to find new homes. This also is done because the state cannot pay moving costs for these families, he explained. "Evidently most of the home owners along the Daniel Boone route are satisfied with the amounts we are offering," the highway engineer said. "We even completed one deal in five minutes."

Ableman also reported that the highway department expects to acquire all the property necessary to construct cloverleaf interchanges at Brentwood boulevard and Hanley road within the next two or three months.

He said the state already has acquired about half the land necessary for this work. About 40 parcels of property are to be taken at each point. The work of acquiring this property had been started some time ago, because the county and state had previously agreed to the extension from Brentwood boulevard to Hanley.

Council to Co-operate. Members of the Greater St. Louis Hospital Council announced today they will co-operate in the campaign for approval of the county bond issue. The council said it will provide absentee ballots for all county residents who are hospitalized at the time of the election, so they will be able to vote on the bonds.

The bond issue has been endorsed by the Council of Trade Association Executives, it was announced by John K. Bryan, chairman.

Indorsement of the bond issue was given yesterday by members of the county's Khoury Baseball Leagues at a meeting of league commissioners representing 20 county communities. Special emphasis was given to Proposition No. 4 calling for $2,200,000 to provide playground and recreation areas throughout the county. The funds would be used to buy and equip 100 recreational areas and to build turnouts from major highways to be converted into small park-picnic areas in the county.

BOY, 14, RESCUES TWO INFANTS IN SOUTH SIDE FIRE

Carries Them From Smoke-Filled Second Floor — 3 Children Taken to Hospital.

Two infants were carried to safety by 14-year-old William Robins today when fire swept through two second-story rooms of a rooming house at 1610 Mississippi avenue.

Smoke was pouring from both rooms as young Robins, coughing and choking, made two trips to effect the rescue.

He was treated for smoke inhalation at City Hospital as were the two babies.

The babies are Kenneth Moentmann Jr., 14 months, and his brother, Russell, 3 months. Their mother, Mrs. Patsy Moentmann, had left them in the care of a neighbor while she went shopping.

Firemen said Mrs. Moentmann told them she asked the neighbor who lives in the same house to keep an eye on the children as she left the rooming house.

The neighbor said she went upstairs and sat with the Moentmann babies for awhile. Then, she said, she went back to her apartment to check on the activities of her own two children.

A cigarette left in the kitchen ignited some waste paper, firemen reported. The blaze spread, catching wallpaper in the kitchen and bedroom.

The Robins boy, who lives on the second floor, smelled the smoke and went to the Moentmann living quarters. He saw Kenneth Jr. lying on a bed and carried him downstairs. Then, told by a neighbor there was another baby in the apartment, he returned and carried Russell to safety.

The blaze was quickly extinguished by firemen who estimated the damage at $60.

Eisenhower Flies Back to Washington

another welcome to the President.

At the Washington end of Memorial bridge he was to pass under an arch of fire ladders from which a huge banner said it again—"Welcome Home Ike!"

PRESIDENT SPEAKS BEFORE TAKE-OFF

DENVER, Nov. 11 (AP)—"An eternally grateful" President Eisenhower left Denver for Washington today after thanking all who have aided him in his illness, in a nation-wide television and radio broadcast.

The President's plane took to the air at 9:02 a.m. (10:02 St. Louis time).

Speaking from the ramp of the Columbine 111 in raw, damp 36-degree weather, the President said that the misfortune of his illness made him aware "of how good people are."

The President, looking surprisingly well, spoke directly to an audience of Air Force personnel and a small group of friends and dignitaries. He said that the force at Fitzsimons Army Hospital and at Lowry Air Force Base had "earned my eternal gratitude."

Expresses Appreciation. He expressed appreciation too, for the "messages of friendship" and to the people around the world who had "sent up their prayers" for his recovery after he suffered a heart attack seven weeks ago tomorrow.

The President spoke but briefly after he and Mrs. Eisenhower drove up to the ramp of their plane and were greeted by a bi-partisan group headed by Democratic Gov. Ed Johnson and Republican Mayor Will Nicholson.

Standing on the sixth step of the 19-step ramp, he spoke simply and with no word about any major domestic or foreign policy.

Text of Statement. "My friends," he said, "again it is time for Mrs. Eisenhower and me to say goodbye to Denver, after a summer stay. This time we leave under somewhat unusual circumstances. As you know, I have spent time in the hospital. Such a time is not fully a loss. Misfortune, and particularly the misfortune of illness, brings to all of us an understanding of how good people are."

"To General Griffin, to the staff at Fitzsimons, the medical staff, the nurses, the clinical technicians, the enlisted men, all of the people that even clean up the hospitals, my very grateful thanks because they have done so much, not only to take care of me, but to make my stay as pleasant as possible. They are devoted people."

"In the same way here at this post, Gen. Sprague and his staff have taken on an additional and extra load and have done it cheerfully and in a way to earn my eternal gratitude."

"Then, Mrs. Eisenhower and I have both been touched with the volume of messages that have come in—telegrams and letters and flowers and gifts. And finally, we have been especially grateful for the knowledge that over this country and over the world, friends have sent up their prayers for a sick person."

"So I leave with my heart unusually filled with gratefulness to Denver, to the people here, to the locality, in fact to everyone who has been so kind. I hope that those people who have sent in messages and Mrs. Eisenhower has not been able to reach them—and she did her best—that they will know that through this little talk we are eternally thankful to them."

"Goodbye and good luck." (Maj. Gen. Martin Griffin is commanding general of Fitzsimons Hospital. Maj. Gen. John T. Sprague is commandant of Lowry Base, site of the Denver White House.)

Appears Grave. The President appeared grave as he came down on the elevator from his eighth floor hospital suite.

A crowd of Army men, hospital patients, nurses and reporters crammed the Fitzsimons lobby.

As photographers snapped pictures, the crowd broke into applause and the President flashed a grin.

He walked out toward the hospital main entrance where a White House car waited to take him to the Air Force base.

As he walked the 80 feet from the elevator to the car a military police detachment from the hospital kept his path open. Walking along with the President, Mrs. Eisenhower and her mother, Mrs. John S. Doud, were James C. Hagerty, White House press secretary, and Tom Golden, Denver detective who is a personal friend of the President's and has guarded him throughout all of his stays in Denver.

At the entrance to the hospital the President stopped briefly and posed for more pictures with Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Doud and the staff which had taken care of him during his illness. He had said his goodbyes to the staff before leaving his suite.

Mrs. Eisenhower wore a gray suit, a fur stole and had a bouquet of white orchids, a gift of the hospital staff.

A few minutes before the President left the hospital, several of the physicians who had cared for him during his stay went up to the eighth floor and then came down again. They included Dr. Paul Dudley White, Boston heart specialist, who made four previous trips to check the Chief Executive's condition, and Col. Byron Polack and Lt. Col. John A. Sheedy, Fitzsimons physicians. Maj. Gen. Howard M. Snyder, the President's personal physician, left the hospital a few minutes before the President.

Crowd Along Route. A crowd of several thousand persons turned out to bid farewell to the President along the six-mile drive from the hospital to the air strip.

Riding in a big black limousine with Mrs. Eisenhower and Mrs. Doud, the President waved a greeting all along the way. Just before he left the hospital grounds a group of youngsters turned up on the curb holding a big sign which read, "Good luck, Ike."

A bit further along there was another sign saying "Good luck, Ike and Mamie."

Perhaps the biggest crowd was in front of the Colorado Women's College, where the student body was out in force. A Secret Service car rode immediately behind the President's limousine.

Next in line was a car carrying Dr. White of Boston, Maj. Gen. Snyder and Col. Thomas W. Mattingly, of the Army's Walter Reed Hospital in Washington.

All three physicians flew back to the capital with the President.

Flying from the staff in front of the Lowry air base administration building was a big United States flag, the garrison type, which had not flown there since Sept. 24, the day of Eisenhower's heart attack. It denotes the President's presence on the base.

Several hundred people, many of them Air Force personnel, were waiting at the landing strip for Eisenhower's arrival.

A 28-piece Air Force band, many of the musicians wearing gloves, struck up snappy tunes.

A cordon of air police was thrown around the landing field and extra precautions were being taken for security in the light of recent plane crashes in the area, in one of which sabotage is strongly suspected.

Just under the tail of the Columbine a huge flat bed truck was parked for television, newsreel and still cameramen to record the takeoff.

The President had a kiss for Mrs. Doud, on his arrival at Lowry air field as he left the car.

Mrs. Doud remained behind, planning to join the presidential family later.

PRESIDENT LEAVES IN BUOYANT MOOD

By JAMES DEAKIN

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch

DENVER, Nov. 11—President Eisenhower, in buoyant "going home" spirits and sharing the confidence of his doctors that his heart is on the mend, departed for Washington today.

The last hospital bulletin said: "The President had a good night's sleep of more than seven hours. He awoke feeling refreshed and in a cheerful mood. He told the doctors that he 'was feeling fine and ready to go.'"

A slight rain which began falling in the night stopped shortly before the take-off, although the skies remained overcast.

Besides his remarks at the take-off the President plans to make another brief statement, also to be broadcast and televised, on arrival at the Military Air Transport Terminal adjoining Washington's National Airport. He will be met there by Vice President Richard M. Nixon and other dignitaries.

Then he will be driven in a plastic-topped limousine to the White House, through streets lined with thousands of persons welcoming him back to the capital—and reassuring themselves that he looks as well as reported.

Television viewers could notice Mr. Eisenhower's loss of weight during his 48 days in the hospital shows up around his neck. Also inclement weather the last two weeks has kept him from regular trips to the hospital sundek, and he has lost some of his tan as a result.

Mr. Eisenhower plans to spend the weekend in Washington. On Monday, his wife's fifty-ninth birthday, he will go to Gettysburg to begin a longer period of rest and recuperation in familiar surroundings.

Monday also will be three months to the day since the President arrived in Denver for the vacation that was interrupted by coronary thrombosis Sept. 24.

Depending on the weather, the President will make the 68-mile trip from Washington to Gettysburg either by car or in his light plane. If he uses the plane, Mrs. Eisenhower probably will go ahead by car.

Although Mr. Eisenhower's physicians have said he may be able to hold Cabinet meetings and other official conferences as early as next month, and may even be able to go into Washington on brief trips, they still say it will be Jan. 1 before he returns to the capital for good.

With his departure from Denver, the temporary White House here closed shop. Members of the President's immediate party returned with him on the Columbine.

They included: Sherman Adams, chief presidential assistant; Mrs. Adams; White House Press Secretary James C. Hagerty; Mrs. Ann Whitman, the President's personal secretary; Mrs. Mary Jane McCaffrey; Mrs. Eisenhower's secretary; Col. Robert Schulz, the President's military aid; U. E. Baughman, chief of the Secret Service; James Rowley, head of the Secret Service White House detail; John Mooney, the President's valet; Mrs. Rose Wood, Mrs. Eisenhower's maid, and other Secret Service agents.

President Napped on Flight, Sat In Cockpit Over Abilene

Columbine Went Higher and South of Planned Route to Avoid Choppy Air and Clouds.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—President Eisenhower napped a little on his flight back from Denver today and sat for a while in the cockpit of the Columbine III as it winged past, his old home town of Abilene, Kan.

The Columbine went a little higher and a little south of the planned route to avoid choppy air and cloud formations.

And, with a tail wind pushing, it slowed down so the President wouldn't arrive too far ahead of time for the reception planned for him at Washington airport.

A weather ceiling had pressed down to near minimum—300 feet—at the time of the Columbine's Denver take-off this morning. The departure was delayed a bit, not by weather, but to await airway clearance because of other traffic aloft to the north.

The original flight plan called for the return to Washington by way of the airlines over St. Joseph, Mo., Indianapolis, Columbus, and Morgantown, W. Va., at 11,000 feet.

But after the Columbine was airborne, the air was bumpy around 11,000 feet and the presidential pilot, William G. Draper, got permission to go up to 17,000 feet. That is higher than Mrs. Eisenhower likes to fly, but the cabin was pressurized and she was entirely comfortable.

The trip was routed a little south by way of Abilene where the President grew up. He got a view of it from the plane and shortly afterward, around 12:55 p.m., turned in to nap in a bunk. From there on, the route was by way of Kansas City, Evansville, Ind., and Louisville, Ky.

Presidential press secretary James C. Hagerty radioed word to reporters in an accompanying press plane to pull alongside and let photographers make pictures of the Columbine.

With the presidential ship cruising at around 350 miles an hour, the chartered United Air Lines DCT caught up with it as Kansas City, Mo. Hagerty said both the Chief Executive and Mrs. Eisenhower were on the side of the ship toward the press plane and Mrs. Eisenhower was waving out the window.

The press plane took off at Denver 15 minutes after the Columbine, but beat it into Washington by nearly an hour by reason of faster normal speed and a stronger tail wind at the 21,000-foot level it flew.

Mr. Eisenhower just missed the start of a snowfall in Denver. Snow was beginning to come down, driven by a 20-mile-an-hour wind out of the north, when the press plane took off.

AUGUST A. BUSCH SUIT OVER HORSE DEAL BEING TRIED

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11—August A. Busch, president of the Anheuser-Busch breweries, is seeking $22,000 in federal court here from Mrs. Elizabeth Whitney Lunn, race and show horse breeder of Llangollen Farm in Upperville, Va.

Busch said yesterday he paid $15,000 in 1950 for five of Mrs. Lunn's horses, with the assurance they were "sound of wind and limb and safe for children to handle."

After taking the horses to his Grant's Farm in St. Louis county, Busch said, he discovered they were "balky, nervous, unruly and dangerous, aside from having physical defects."

In addition to the $15,000 purchase price, Busch is demanding an added $7000 for feeding and boarding the horses. Following a brief court session, the trial was recessed until Monday.

Washed Out. LOS ANGELES (AP)—A package gave out a whirling sound as it slid down the chute at the post office.

"I think we've got a bomb here," Superintendent Sam Weingarten telephoned police. Sgt. Erwin Yde, demolition expert, arrived with two other officers, carried the package to the parking lot and slit it open. Inside, whirling away under battery power, was a toy washing machine.

ROBBER'S AUTO IS ONE 5 MEN SEIZED IN GARAGE

Police held up Clay Martin, operator of the J. C. Buffet, 5324 Natural Bridge avenue, as he was returning from the Mound City Trust Co., with $10,000 to cash pay checks for Chevrolet and Fisher Body plant workers. Thursday was their payday.

In a scuffle with the second robber, Martin dropped about $4400 on the sidewalk. Berresheim, seeing this, grabbed the paper bag with the rest of the money and ran.

A customer of the restaurant fired one shot at him just as Patrolman Roberts walked into view and saw Berresheim running with the top of a woman's stocking over his head and face. The officer caught him in a used car lot. The $5600 in the bag was recovered.

Berresheim, known also as Kenneth Joseph Barrett, gave his occupation as a salesman and his address in the 5000 block of Tholozan avenue when arrested in the taking of his machine from England's garage in East St. Louis.

He was charged with stealing a radio from the garage at the same time as the automobile was taken, but the charge was dropped Nov. 1 after garage employees failed to identify him. Along with Hazel Berresheim, he was subpoenaed to appear before a federal grand jury at Danville, Ill., in an investigation of the failure of the witnesses to identify Berresheim in connection with federal warrants against suspects charging unlawful flight to avoid prosecution.

Assistant Circuit Attorney Frederick Mayer questioned Berresheim at the police station, but Berresheim declined to make a statement to Mayer. To police, however, he admitted having the $5600 in his possession, but denied he held up Martin.

AEC GIVES EX-MANAGER ACCESS TO ATOMIC SECRETS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has agreed to give its former general manager, K. D. Nichols, access to atomic secrets.

His name was included today on a list of 97 private companies and individuals, which the AEC said it had approved for the purpose in October. The number was the largest for any month so far.

Nichols, a veteran of the Government's atomic program, resigned as AEC general manager last May 1 to become a private engineering consultant here.

The permits, which require security clearance, are part of the AEC's program to promote private development of atomic energy for peaceful uses. Since the first permit was issued last April, a total of 476 have been granted.

EXTRACTORS AT WORK

TORONTO, Nov. 11 (UP)—A visit to the dentist proved doubly painful for Bruce Blackwood.

Two masked men entered Dr. Robert Montgomery's office as Blackwood's teeth. They relieved the dentist and patient of their wallets at gunpoint and fled. Montgomery then finished the extraction.

CHURCH WOMEN HIT AT M'CARRAN ACT

Group Representing 10,000,000 Protestants Opposes Immigration Law.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11 (AP)—The United Church Women, an organization representing 10,000,000 American Protestant women, called yesterday for a thorough revision of the McCarran-Walter Immigration Act. In a resolution adopted at its seventh national assembly, the group said the 1952 act should be changed to "eliminate such undemocratic practices as inequalities in the quota system, discrimination based on race and naturalization provisions which create 'second class' citizens."

A resolution against universal military training was adopted after a lengthy debate on an amendment proposed by a Cincinnati delegate, Mrs. Dorothy Dolbey. The amendment was turned down.

As finally adopted the resolution read: "We register our opposition to any form of universal military training in peacetime, including the compulsory reserve system."

Mrs. Dolbey who is vice mayor of Cincinnati, wanted to add this qualification: "However, we are fully conscious that today's cessation of hostilities is not real peace and that the need for selective service continues."

Other resolutions:

Rejected legal censorship of motion pictures because it "is subject to political influence"; urged the government to continue disarmament talks with the United Nations; and disapproved termination of the policy of wardship of American Indians without the consent of tribes involved.

FRANCE MARKS ARMISTICE, TROOPS PARADE IN PARIS

PARIS, Nov. 11 (AP)—France observed an official holiday today to mark the thirty-seventh anniversary of the World War I armistice.

DOWD DENIES HE, FORD HAD DISPUTE ON CIVIL RIGHTS

Contents Row With Former Jury Foreman Involved Police Pay-Off Inquiry.

Circuit Attorney Edward L. Dowd insisted today that civil rights were in no way involved in a dispute between him and Charles Ford, a dispute that led to Ford's resignation as foreman of the circuit court grand jury.

Dowd asserted also that he had no disagreement of any kind with any other member of the jury. The present foreman, John Casey, agreed.

The circuit attorney took issue with the disclosure by the Post-Dispatch yesterday that members of the jury had objected to the delay of ordinary cases in favor of a police pay-off inquiry, in violation of the rights of persons in jail.

Seventeen persons were indicted yesterday—two on second-degree murder charges, 11 in lottery cases, three on charges of operating a hand-book and one on a liquor charge.

More 'Routine' Matters
"Routine" matters again will be the order of the day when the jury meets again next Tuesday afternoon, Dowd said he would not proceed with the pay-off investigation until the other cases, including those of persons held in jail awaiting grand jury action, are disposed of.

Circuit Judge James E. McLaughlin appointed an attorney yesterday for a prostitute who has been held for several weeks as a material witness.

Dowd said yesterday he understood Judge McLaughlin's instructions to the grand jury at the outset to mean that it should give priority to the pay-off case. When told of that, the judge said he did not mean that the jury should work on pay-off cases exclusively, although he did omit by inadvertence the usual reminder that cases of persons in jail should be considered first.

Judge McLaughlin said it was clear that the circuit attorney and the jury understood that ordinary matters should be considered, in view of the fact that 42 indictments returned Wednesday were routine in nature and only 11 were results of the pay-off investigation.

Dowd's Statement.

Dowd said: "When the September term grand jury was selected and Judge McLaughlin suggested the name of Charles Ford as the foreman, I pointed out that Ford had so many close personal friends in the police department that it was conceivable that it would impede our investigation."

"Despite this, Judge McLaughlin appointed him foreman. During the short time he was on the grand jury and since that time, the circuit attorney's office has had no dispute with the grand jury concerning the handling of any criminal cases."

"The subject of civil rights was not mentioned in connection with any matter when Mr. Ford was foreman or afterwards. However, shortly after I returned from the west coast to begin presenting the police inquiry, Ford asked me to stop the grand jury investigation, saying that he would vote no indictments on any policeman regardless of the evidence."

"In the course of our conversation, upon being asked, he admitted carrying brokerage accounts with some of the police officers who are under investigation. . . . He advised me that he was responsible for the promotion of one of the officers under investigation. It was then that I realized that it would be impossible for Mr. Ford to be objective in the police investigation."

"I requested Mr. Ford to voluntarily withdraw, and he refused. I requested Judge McLaughlin to order his removal quietly and to avoid any possible embarrassment to Mr. Ford. However, Judge McLaughlin refused to remove him on the first occasion and I then advised him that if he did not remove Mr. Ford, I intended to demand a public hearing and to file affidavits attacking Ford's qualifications as a grand jury foreman."

"Following Ford's removal, the grand jury and the circuit attorney's office have worked together very harmoniously. I have no reason to think this co-operation will not continue."

"When Mr. Ford was foreman of the September term 1953 grand jury, he stated that the delay in criminal trials was due to the fact that the judges were not devoting enough of their time to criminal cases. Mr. Ford's jury report reads, 'This grand jury is of the unanimous opinion that it is essential that at least two additional courtrooms be made available for felony trials. The grand jury urges the circuit judges and other authorized officials to take the necessary steps to achieve this objective.'"

Statement by Casey.
Casey issued this statement: "The September term grand jury as presently constituted has authorized me to state there is no rift between the grand jury and the circuit attorney over the matter that the civil rights of accused persons have been violated, or on any other important issues. Our relations with the circuit attorney are cordial and co-operative."

Dulles Offers to Extend Aerial Inspection Proposal

"most of the world will also not agree."

It is not easy, he told Molotov, to "disparage the judgment of one who won world-wide renown as the leader of the western coalition which won the great victory in the West for freedom."

Dulles reminded Molotov that when the Eisenhower aerial inspection plan was put forward, it was acclaimed throughout the world.

"People everywhere felt his proposal, if accepted, would for all practical purposes mean the ending of the danger of war between our two countries."

He quoted Mr. Eisenhower as saying the spirit of peace would prevail more surely if reciprocal understanding and openness existed between the two powers which have the greatest stockpiles of atomic weapons. It is this "moral aspect" of the proposal, Dulles said, which Russia "seems entirely to have missed."

He agreed with one Molotov comment to the effect that the carrying out of the aerial inspection plan would require enormous facilities and expenses. But Dulles said the United States was prepared for that and he could not believe "any country would refuse to embark on an undertaking for peace because it would require a diversion of resources from war."

Molotov also had asked for pledges against using atomic weapons and Dulles said these were "subject to the grave defect that they contemplate only promises."

"It is basic United States policy," he said, "not to allow its security to be dependent upon promises and agreements that may prove illusory."

Cites Stand on Germany.

In support of this position, he said the West had an example only this week of Russian refusal "to honor its agreement that Germany should be unified through free elections."

Under the United Nations Charter, Dulles went on, the United States has agreed not to use force against the Soviet Union and if the Soviet Union does not believe the United States "will live by that pledge, why does it want more pledges?"

With respect to a Molotov proposal that all atomic weapons be eliminated, Dulles said a Soviet disarmament statement on May 10 noted there are possibilities for hiding atomic explosives which are beyond the control of any international system.

He said he had stated the reasons why the United States "cannot accept the Soviet (disarmament) proposal" and urged that the Soviet Union "realistically accept that fact and work with us" in the United Nations subcommittee to develop an effective policing system which would provide the basis for arms reduction.

Molotov Replies.

Molotov, in his turn, objected to western proposals on disarmament. He said they would not end the arms race or bar atomic weapons and suggested the West had even retreated from agreements previously reached.

He said the West was using "alleged technical difficulties" over control as an excuse for inaction and there appeared to be inconsistency among the attitudes of the three western governments. Dulles, he said, had not dealt with the substance of his objections to the Eisenhower plan.

The American delegation issued this formal statement:

"The ministers, at their private meeting this afternoon, bearing in mind their agreement at New York that the conference would last three weeks, agreed to organize their work here so that the conference could finish its work on Wednesday."

This will conclude the conference one day short of the three-week target.

The ministers have spent 37 hours in formal session here since they convened Oct. 27 only to find Soviet resistance to German unity through free elections and to western proposals on disarmament and East-West contacts as steadfast as ever.

WHOLESALE PRICE OF COFFEE TO DROP 4 CENTS MONDAY

Wholesale price of coffee sold by at least four companies here will drop 4 cents a pound Monday. A similar decline in the retail price is expected to follow.

A spokesman for one firm explained the reduction was due to increased supplies of coffee from Central American countries.

Coffee bean crops are now being harvested and shipped to his country from Guatemala, El Salvador, Costa Rica, Nicaragua, Mexico and the West Indies, the spokesman said.

GEN. QUESADA QUILTS POST AS EXECUTIVE AT LOCKHEED

Air Force Lt. Gen. Elwood R. Quesada (retired) has resigned as general manager of Lockheed Aircraft Corp.'s missile systems division in Burbank, Calif. It was announced today. A company officer said the resignation resulted from divergent views on administrative policies and on the design and development of certain weapons.

Gen. Quesada, a member of the board of directors of Lockheed, joined the firm in 1953 after resigning from Olin Industries of East Alton. He was a vice president and member of the board of directors of the Alton firm, which is now known as Olin Mathieson Chemical Corp.

He retired from the Air Force in 1952 after a 27-year career in the service. In World War II, Gen. Quesada was commanding general of tactical fighters in Europe.

BAR INVESTIGATION INTO $4000 PAID BY LAWYER TO JUDGE

ier R. Mayne, for safe keeping. Barker said that in 1949 Nangle required that the canceled check be returned to him as part of a settlement of the Simpson & Barker liquor distributing business, following the death of J. D. Simpson. He said he got the check from Mayne and gave it to Nangle at a dinner at the Nangle home. Mrs. Barker attended the dinner.

Barker recently told his story to the Post-Dispatch at his Arlington home. He also testified before representatives of the bar advisory committee at his home, and made a sworn statement to a special agent of the Internal Revenue Service, which is investigating the check transaction. The two checks have been traced through St. Louis banks on the dates indicated by Barker.

Mayne, in testimony before the bar advisory committee last year, in Nangle's presence, said he held the check, and a photostat copy of it, in his office safe for "many months." Mayne added that he had no knowledge of "deals, if any," involving the check.

'Nothing to Hide.'

Judge Sartorius told the Post-Dispatch he "has nothing to hide."

"I borrowed $4000 from Nangle to help my father, John J. Sartorius, whose long-time grocery and saloon business at Ninth street and Russell boulevard was in financial difficulties in 1942," he said. "The family thought it would appear in an unfavorable light if my father's business failed while I was occupying a public position as circuit judge."

"It would have looked bad if I had received the $4000 direct from Nangle, so he made other arrangements," Judge Sartorius said. "I think he got the money from the Barkers. I repaid every cent, $500 and $600 at a time. There were heavy medical expenses for both my father and my mother, and it was some time before I repaid Nangle, five or six years perhaps. I have receipts from Nangle for the payments and I showed them to the bar committee last year."

Judge Sartorius, who is 71 years old, said the $4000 loan failed to save his father's business, "but staved off a public failure." The elder Sartorius, a former State Senator, died in 1948.

'Political Expenses.'

Discussing the political contribution he said he made to Judge Sartorius, Nangle told a reporter he had "helped the judge with a few thousand dollars to pay for printing and other expenses."

"His father was an old friend of mine, and I think the father suggested that 'it would be nice' if I helped the judge with his political expenses," Nangle declined to elaborate further on the transaction with Judge Sartorius.

Judge Sartorius made no political campaign in 1942, having been elected to his second term two years earlier. His report filed with the Secretary of State for the 1940 campaign listed expenses of $1705 and only two contributions, of $25 each.

The Hazlett Kyle Campbell estate litigation developed into an epic, in which Nangle traveled throughout the United States and the British Isles hearing testimony of persons claiming to be heirs. Hazlett Campbell died in 1933, leaving no close relatives. His estate had been inherited from his father, Robert Campbell, who established the family fortune through the fur trade.

Nangle's final report to Judge Sartorius, in 1941, named 161 persons who were entitled to share in the estate, all of them distant cousins of Hazlett Campbell. More than 1000 claims were reviewed by Nangle in three years of extensive hearings and examination of hundreds of vital statistic records and family Bibles.

Nangle and the Government have been in litigation over the amount of taxes he should pay on his $100,000 fee. The last hearing on the matter was before the Court of Claims, at Washington, last summer.

ROBBER OF PEVELY BANK FAILS TO ESCAPE PRISON

Robert T. Weaver, who was convicted of bank robbery in the $40,174 holdup of the Bank of Pevely, Mo., last year, was one of five inmates of the federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan., who failed in an escape attempt last night.

Authorities said Weaver and four others armed themselves with handmade knives and overpowered two prison employees, seizing their keys. The breakout failed after the employees were missed in a routine check and an alert was sounded.

Four of the convicts were captured on the prison roof and a fifth was seized after he slid down a drain spout. Weaver was serving a term of 37½ years. He and Robert M. Hickman were convicted for participation in the bank holdup.

ARGENTINE COFFEE RETURNED TO OLD PRICE AFTER PROTEST

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 11 (UP)—Coffee was sold at the old price today in concession to Argentine coffee users who protested against an announced price increase of almost 100 per cent.

The Federation of Coffee, Tea and Spice Industries announced the price increase two days ago because of the devaluation of Argentine currency. But the federation reversed itself and said the old price will prevail until present stocks are exhausted—probably in less than a month.

President's 7 Weeks in Hospital Made Political History; Recovery Was According to Schedule

Highlights of Eisenhower's Illness—His Rapid Progress Ruled Out Any Delegation of Powers—Doctors Say They Treated 'Whole Man.'

By JAMES DEAKIN

A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

DENVER, Nov. 11.

PRESIDENT EISENHOWER'S departure from the hospital brings to an end seven weeks of convalescence which made political history.

The seven weeks of treatment at Fitzsimons Army Hospital saw Mr. Eisenhower, in his sixty-fifth year, come back from a coronary thrombosis which left a scar on his heart muscle and saw him gradually resume many of the duties of his office.

A longer period of rest and recuperation now lies ahead for him at his comfortable farm home near the battlefield of Gettysburg in southeastern Pennsylvania.

Almost from the start, the President's hospital schedule was plotted in advance by his physicians along traditional lines observed in thousands of other coronary cases. The doctors warned, however, that Mr. Eisenhower's recovery might or might not follow the standard pattern.

With perhaps one exception, the President's progress did follow the medical schedule, almost day-for-day, week-for-week. The close adherence to schedule was one of the noteworthy features of his convalescence.

No Delegation of Powers. In putting a quick end to speculation that Mr. Eisenhower's heart attack might necessitate some delegation of his powers to others.

An early, favorable medical opinion on prospects for his recovery together with a reassuring outline of his future hospital schedule, undoubtedly played a part in insuring that a "regency" type of interim government, never seen officially in this country, did not materialize.

As early as Sept. 26, two days after the heart attack, Dr. Paul Dudley White, chief architect of the medical schedule, set forth, in general terms, the treatment for the first three weeks.

He gave a full medical description of the President's illness, in itself reassuring, then added that the chances for a complete recovery were "reasonably good."

Treated "Whole Man." Last Monday, looking back on six weeks of caring for the President, Dr. White summed up what the physicians had tried to do.

"We have tried," he said, "to treat not simply the heart but especially the whole man. For they are inseparable and mutually dependent."

As he had before, the noted Boston heart specialist described the course of treatment prescribed by Mr. Eisenhower's doctors as a "middle" ground between over-caution and more extreme, even radical, measures.

The events leading up to the President's heart attack began last Aug. 14, when he arrived in Denver for "work and play" vacation. The summer White House was set up at Lowry Air Force Base on the outskirts of Denver.

Mr. Eisenhower made two trips to Fraser, Colo., in the Rocky Mountains, to fish and relax at the ranch of his old friend, Aksel Nielsen. He returned from the second trip on Friday, Sept. 23.

Attack About 2 a.m. Saturday, Sept. 24—President Eisenhower suffered a coronary thrombosis, or occlusion, about 2 a.m.

He had gone to bed early Friday night at the home of his mother-in-law, Mrs. Elvera Doud, after playing 27 holes of golf during the day. His personal physician, Dr. Howard M. Snyder, was summoned and found him in pain.

Mr. Eisenhower was given a sedative. After several hours sleep, he awoke and Dr. Snyder confirmed the first diagnosis of a heart attack. At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon, the President was taken to Fitzsimons Army Hospital.

At just about the same time, almost 12 hours after the attack, reporters were notified. Throughout the day, the President's illness had been described as a "digestive upset." At the hospital, Mr. Eisenhower was placed in an oxygen tent.

Heart Specialists Arrive. First week, Sept. 25-30: Two heart specialists, Col. Thomas W. Mattingly of Walter Reed Hospital in Washington, and Dr. White, arrived Sunday and went into consultation with the other doctors. They reported the President "withstood the attack well" and was "resting comfortably" with no complications.

More than 100 reporters, photographers and radio and television men began converging on Denver. Cabinet members and Government officials were notified.

On Monday, Dr. White told a crowded press conference, Mr. Eisenhower had suffered a "moderate" coronary thrombosis, a clot in one of the heart arteries. The attack, he said, was neither mild nor severe, and the first two weeks would be the crucial period, in which complications might occur.

Visited by Son. Mr. Eisenhower visited his father for the first time that day. Mr. Eisenhower was out of his oxygen tent at various times but still used it for sleeping. Mrs. Eisenhower had moved into a rear room near the President's on the eighth floor, where she was to remain for the rest of his hospital stay.

Mr. Eisenhower began sign-

FLEESON Labor Holding Fire for G.O.P. To Set Course

President's Choice on NLRB Vacancy May Be Campaign Clue.

By DORIS FLEESON

WASHINGTON.

REPUBLICANS are facing both ways on labor as they head into the presidential year.

One wing of the party has been noticeably pursuing within recent days the divide and conquer strategy with which the late Senator Robert Taft won his final striking victory in Ohio.

The G.O.P. Policy Committee, Chairman Barry Goldwater of the Senate Campaign Committee and Senate leader William Knowland have in turn appealed to union members over the heads of union officers. They have complained of huge sums spent from union treasuries to aid the Democrats, and have warned against an all-powerful union merger.

Secretary of Labor Mitchell meantime continued to maintain a conciliatory attitude. He has stoutly insisted that the President's social and economic policies have benefited labor. At the same time he has held the line in the Cabinet against proposals which labor fears.

Seeking Clearer Picture. In general, labor leaders are inclined to hold their fire until the campaign prospects and the candidates move more clearly into their line of vision.

They are carefully noting what is being said and, even more important, what is being done in a situation extremely important to them. It involves a vacancy on the National Labor Relations Board and a struggle over its chairmanship. The NLRB chairman has certain special powers which make him a key figure in its deliberations.

Secretary Mitchell's candidate for the vacancy and chairman is his departmental solicitor, Stuart Rothman. Rothman is an Eisenhower Republican from Minnesota who worked here for the United States Housing Authority when he first graduated from law school. He has the backing of the G.O.P. Senator from his state, Ed Thye.

Making a spirited campaign for the chairmanship is a present member of the board, Philip Ray Rodgers, who was associated with Senator Taft in the drafting of the Taft-Hartley act.

Labor leaders assert that Rodgers hates unions and has voted against them in a long line of decisions. They were amazed when he recently told a San Francisco audience that labor leaders were men with the best interests of the country at heart and praised the AFL-CIO merger.

While they were still goggling

Red 'Surprised' at Firing

ALEXANDER V. VLASOV, Russian architect, talking with reporters at New York yesterday as he prepared to sail for Europe after being stripped of his government decorations and fired as chief architect for Moscow. Head of a 10-man group which has been inspecting housing in this country, Vlasov said he was surprised at his dismissal and knew of no reason for it, but was sure of his future work. He is still president of the Russian Academy of Architects.

over these remarks, their teamster colleague, Dave Beck, suddenly extended the hand of friendship to Rodgers. At the same time Beck said he voted for Mr. Eisenhower and for Gov. Dewey in 1948.

One Beck associate remarked that Dave, a business man to the core—his fine new teamsters headquarters is a showplace of Washington—had been holding out his hand to Republicans for a long time but that Rodgers was the first to take it.

At this point, supporters of Rothman and Rodgers don't know exactly where to turn since patronage problems are being kept from the President. And the NLRB docket is piling up.

The appointment of the NLRB chairman will be regarded by labor leaders as a clue to what they can expect from the GOP in 1956.

German Army To Be Born Tomorrow

First 100 of Bonn's Soldiers to Take Oath of Loyalty to Republic.

By WILFRIED SALIGER

BONN, Nov. 11.

WEST GERMANY'S new army will be born tomorrow, when about 100 men, of all ranks from non-commissioned officer to lieutenant general, will pledge themselves to serve the federal republic.

They will be the first German soldiers since Adolf Hitler's Nazi Reich crumbled in 1945.

The men to be sworn in tomorrow are the nucleus of the 500,000-man defense force which is to become a part of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

Waiting to join the new army are the 20,000 members of the Genschutz Corps, the border police, who up to now have been West Germany's only armed men.

Chancellor Adenauer and his Government have taken precautions to keep the new army democratic and under tight civilian control.

Defense Minister Theodor Blank is ready to accept the border policemen. However, the police have been trained and disciplined in the tradition of the old Prussian army. They want to be incorporated into the new army in complete units.

Blank wants them to enter individually and to distribute them through the new army. One problem is that many of the Genschutz police are army veterans. They accepted low rank in the corps, hoping to get high rank when an army was organized.

Among those who are to give the pledge of loyalty are Lt. Gen. Adolf Heusinger, Lt. Col. Werner Panitzki and Capt. Kurt Zenker.

Heusinger, with his old lieutenant general's rank, is to be the commander in chief of the new defense force. Panitzki is to head the air force, and Zenker the navy. It is expected that Panitzki will be made a brigadier general and Zenker a rear admiral.

ALSOP Democratic Gains Put G.O.P. Under New Pressure on 1956

If Eisenhower Is Out, Many Republicans Favor Warren Over Nixon—Doubtful Chief Justice Would Run.

By JOSEPH and STEWART ALSOP

WASHINGTON.

IN PUBLIC, the Republican leaders are showing a stiff upper lip about the results of the local elections in Indiana and elsewhere. Nonetheless, this new development has clearly put an extra edge on the rather edgy political situation that is waiting in Washington for President Eisenhower.

Everyone in a key position has been and still is extremely chary about getting committed in any manner. But it is now possible to give a crude outline of the opinions on the Republican future that the President will hear from those who are closest to him.

The men around Mr. Eisenhower, like all Republicans, naturally hope that the President's remarkable recovery from his heart attack will make it possible for him to run again. However, the odds will still be rather heavy against Mr. Eisenhower agreeing to run, even if he gets the kind of medical certificate that would clear the road.

Pressure From Family. The truth is that the President himself did not want to run, and his wife and family were passionately opposed to his running, even before he had his heart attack. The President's reluctance, and the pleas of Mrs. Eisenhower and Maj. Eisenhower, were being gradually overcome when he went to Denver. All the Republican leaders in the country were shouting the call to duty in Mr. Eisenhower's ear.

At that time, he regularly answered that there are plenty of younger Republican leaders who are capable of finishing his job for him. But the constant appeal to his sense of duty was clearly overcoming his doubts. As reported in this space some weeks before his heart attack, the stage had been reached where an Eisenhower candidacy to succeed himself was all but inevitable. "Unless he had the kind of upset which would give greater force to the pleas of his wife and son."

Real Significance of Attack. The importance of the heart attack is not so much that it has partly incapacitated the President, although this is desperately important. The real importance, as one Republican politician gloomily remarked, is that "you can't tell a man who's

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

Some Day Soon

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
This is a comment on Senator William Fulbright's statement to a Columbia audience, "Half the people of the world are hungry, and we should send them our surplus food, but I don't know how to solve the problem of distribution."

Now, I doubt that the American genius for distribution as well as production can really have escaped Senator Fulbright, a Rhodes scholar and instigator of the Fulbright Plan. What are all those leeches and bath-tubs doing in Arabia? How does that Pepsi-Cola bottle happen to be lying in the steaming jungle of New Guinea? Where did that pretty girl in Hong Kong get the nylons hanging her shapely legs?

We don't lack a distribution system. We do lack leadership. But some day soon, if democracy is to become the chosen way of life of this hungry half of the world, some respected government official is going to come before us—maybe over a nation-wide television hookup—and say: "My friends, half the world is hungry, and hungry people can't hear, for the growling in their stomachs, what we say about free elections, representative government, and individual liberty."

"Nor can hungry people produce enough goods to be able to buy the comforts of life we enjoy in such abundance and for which we must find a continually expanding market if we are to maintain this standard of living."

"Therefore, I have instructed the governmental agencies concerned to begin sending our surplus food to the people who are chronically hungry by means of every American government-owned transportation vehicle having available cargo space."

"The food will be distributed as directly as possible through our Point IV officials, through our missionaries, through private charitable organizations having overseas representatives, through Fulbright scholars, perhaps, in some cases, through voluntary groups of Army wives and the like."

Yes, we will be giving away millions of dollars' worth of food, but we will give it to hungry people, not to potential customers and potential friends.

We can, of course, leave these millions of bushels of food to fatten the hungry rats in our warehouses, but the plan I am proposing seems more consistent with our way of life, past and present.

The only identifying mark on this food will be the following legend printed in the appropriate language: "Nature has blessed us with a surplus of food; we want to share it with you. The United States of America."

MRS. ROBERT D. KREIGH,

Warning to the G.O.P.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
Are recent election results in various sections of the country the handwriting on the wall for the Republican party?

Gen. Eisenhower's warm sincerity, his innate integrity and his non-partisan political status are a stimulant to a landslide election victory in '52, thus bringing new strength to the national Republican party organization.

Have Republican professional politicians improved Republican party strength in the eyes of the American people since '32?

The Eisenhower philosophy can further improve Republican party organization strength if the party wholeheartedly recognizes, accepts, and sincerely adopts the true import of "enlightened self-interest" as the best insurance for political success for the Republican party.

An early demand from Eisenhower admirers for the nomination of the President's sincerely modest and capable younger brother, Milton Eisenhower, to take the grueling load off the shoulders of a great man, who Marshal Menemsky unbelievably acclaims as the most important world leader of our day, will achieve very important results. The least of these will be the bringing of further new strength to the Republican organization.

A REPUBLICAN.

Where Speed Hurts

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:
The splendid letter of Mrs. R.A.W. Jr. of Clayton in regard to that "accident" on Daniel Boone Highway should be required reading for two sets of people—our lawmakers who do not seem to be earning their salary and our auto manufacturers who are making millions in the "battle of horsepower."

Isn't it ridiculous to talk about safety belts and such devices for the "juggernauts" of the road when the simple trouble is apparent to all—speed? Some people aren't mentally capable of handling the high-speed machines of today yet they are making them ever faster and faster.

Maybe the lawmakers and manufacturers will wake up—I have detected a strong current of public reaction and feeling toward both groups because of the unnecessary slaughter on our roads.

One of the best automobile drivers I know recently commented when I told him to be careful on the highway as he departed for a long trip westward. His answer was simple, and I thought singularly eloquent: "No matter how good a driver you are if you venture on a highway you are eligible for death."

Hard Facts at Geneva

Whether the "spirit of Geneva" is considered to be dead, dying, gravely or slightly strained, or just about what it was in the beginning depends largely on how well that beginning is kept in mind.

The general affability accompanying the meeting of the Big Four chiefs of state last July indicated such a change in tone and atmosphere from the earlier international bickerings that it was regarded as sensational.

But observers not blinded by the new emotion carefully pointed out that this change had not been formulated in any specific agreements. The foreign ministers were to see if anything in that line might be accomplished later. Hence the current Geneva meeting.

Alert observers also noticed a tacit understanding that there need be no hurry about working out, for example, the German question. That is why the reaction of the Germans was so bitter. Even the moderates among them said that the summit conference had made it necessary for them either to live for an indefinite time with an unsolved problem, or to seek a direct German approach to its solution. The latter position obviously was not to the taste of pro-Western Chancellor Adenauer, yet he did go to Moscow.

Those aware of the considerations which made it most improbable, if not impossible, for either the East or the West to make at this time the concessions involved in German reunification, did not expect a miracle of the foreign ministers.

The immediate reason for Western insistence on reunification under these circumstances was the hope that such a stand would help Dr. Adenauer regain his grip on a strained political coalition. The Russians, for their part, are plainly stalling for time until Adenauer gives way to another chancellor. In these conditions deadlock was inevitable and foreseeable. It is not a new, sensational "betrayal" of the Geneva spirit.

Disarmament discussions at Geneva repeated this story with variations. Here again there was the feeling in advance that no large measure of agreement was to be expected at this time. Despite the sensation it caused last July, President Eisenhower's air inspection proposal was not a disarmament plan. Indeed Adm. Radford and others felt it would be much more to the advantage of the United States than of the Soviet Union. So it was agreed apparently to return the disarmament theme to the United Nations as quickly as possible.

Deadlock on these two issues, especially if accompanied by some relaxations in the commercial and cultural fields, should not mean the "spirit of Geneva" must be abandoned as empty. After all, it does represent two positive if unguaranteed attainments. One is the recognition that the big bombs have made it suicidal for the great powers to push their interests by force. The corollary to this is that settlements, if any must be achieved through diplomacy.

This did not mean last July, nor does it mean now that the differences between East and West have ceased to exist. But it implies renunciation of war as a means of settling those disputes. It implies a continuing effort to negotiate settlements even though the road to agreement be long and rocky.

Until such settlements are achieved this country must of course maintain its military power and above all nourish the Western alliance to sturdy health. Yet, while keeping up our strength and vigilance, we need to guard against panicky counsels of despair. The world is still divided, but the world still has no practical alternative to peace.

Deplorable, Not Deliberate

In commenting on the cases of the two Air Force enlisted men who were illegally confined in City Jail for more than two months, Circuit Attorney Dowd declares there was no deliberate intention on the part of his office to deprive anyone of his civil rights.

That can be taken for granted. Nobody has even hinted, much less charged, that the conduct of Mr. Dowd's office in these cases was "deliberate"—only deplorable. There is quite a difference. If the two airmen were deliberately deprived of their rights, serious steps would be in order.

Whatever the cause, be it over-zealousness or carelessness, the facts are that the two airmen were deprived of their liberty without due process, and that the Circuit Attorney's office is responsible.

Mr. Dowd says that some 50 defendants are in City Jail awaiting grand jury action. If any of these cases parallel those of the two airmen—that is, if the defendants having been freed at a preliminary hearing have subsequently been rearrested and are being held for the grand jury—then Mr. Dowd has a duty to present the facts in the case to the jury forthwith.

St. Louisans expect their Circuit Attorney to be zealous in protecting the constitutional rights and liberties of all citizens, including those accused of crimes. He would do well to reaffirm his intentions in this respect.

A Note of Appraisement

What's love worth? We doubt that this question has ever bothered true lovers, yet the poets have been worrying about it as long as they have been working at their trade—which, of course, is a very, very long time. And what a confusion they've made of the answer.

Some say this silver-sweet lily among thorns is worth but a hut or a cottage; others say a horse and six. One has set the price at a day's journey; many have put it at a tune, a song, a lyric or a melody; but there are those who have marked it down to dust and ashes. The Greeks believed it worth a war—or at least it was the excuse they gave for their aggression against Troy. Its value has been reckoned that of an April day and also of heaven itself. As is to be expected, there are those who cannot make up their minds, counting it both gall and honey, tears and kisses, folly and miracle.

For a long time, we felt that precise-minded educators, devoted to scientific measurement and the correct information of the young, would not always tolerate this shameful confusion. Now the doyens of Beloit College have announced love's exact price: a penny a minute (at the current rate of exchange). And they have applied their appraisement:

On specified nights, a co-ed may spend extra time with her date provided one of the couple pays an assessment of one cent a minute.

No doubt, sorority pariers are being fitted with parking meters inscribed with John Heywood's admonition: "Love me long."

A penny a minute, 60 cents an hour, $14.40 a day, $100.80 a week, $5241.60 a year—well, it doesn't come cheap, does it? But no doubt there are rebates for the time spent at table or at work. Knowing the right people, one may even get it wholesale.

The State's Blank Check

Gov. Donnelly's call for a state bond issue election on Jan. 24 arouses mixed feelings. On the one hand, the need for new buildings at the penitentiary, the university and state colleges, and the eleemosynary institutions is obvious and urgent. But, sympathetic as they are with proposals to meet these needs, many Missourians will resent being asked to sign a blank check for $75,000,000 without any advance assurance of how the money will be spent.

Gov. Donnelly says that a Legislature which is trusted to control the expenditure of large sums every two years surely can be relied on to spend the $75,000,000 in bond issue funds in a satisfactory way. But that is not the point. The point is that when the voters are asked to incur a state debt which will be with them for 20 years to come, they have a right to know beforehand how the expenditures will be distributed and why they are needed.

Neither the Governor nor the Legislature has come close to drawing up a specific building program for specific purposes. In his message last January the Governor mentioned a total of $55,000,000 to $60,000,000 in building expenditures that might be needed, but offered nothing more concrete. The Legislature took care to grab control of the expenditures, vetoing the Governor's plan to have them supervised by a state building commission, but beyond that likewise dealt in generalities.

With the election now set, it is too late to place on the ballot a detailed and specific program, similar to that presented in the St. Louis city and county bond elections. But Gov. Donnelly, if he wishes the bonds approved, will do as much as he can to overcome this deficiency.

In our opinion he would be wise to appoint a citizens committee at once to review all building requests and draw a clear and definite program for the spending of the $75,000,000 if voted. Such a committee could not, of course, commit the General Assembly, but if the Governor adopted its program as his own and if the program were clearly a conscientious, non-political effort to meet real needs, it would carry great weight with the public.

Without some idea of how the money might be spent, many voters are likely to be most reluctant to vote the bonds.

The Country of Texas

An American teen-ager who is going to school this month in Moscow has already learned some interesting things about Russian notions concerning the United States. Thirteen-year-old John Benton, son of the former Senator from Connecticut, says that one of his classmates wanted to know if Texas was a separate country. The Russian student said an American delegation had visited the school and the Texans in the group had given that impression. We know exactly how the young Russian got that idea. Every now and then we meet up with someone who has the dust of the lone star in his eye if not that yellow rose in his buttonhole and we begin to think the same thing ourselves!

Thunder From the Bench

Nobody in the Eisenhower Administration ought to underestimate the seriousness of the indictment leveled against it by Chief Judge George H. Moore of the United States District Court.

Judge Moore, whose single-handed war against official apathy and cover-up in the Truman Administration broke open the James P. Finnegan case, now says official apathy and cover-up are still blocking a real housecleaning in the Internal Revenue Service.

It is three full years since the Eisenhower Administration went election with a promise to clean up the "mess in Washington," which to many people meant the mess in the Internal Revenue Service. Yet Judge Moore can now say, in an extraordinary blast from the bench:

"That 'oratorically evasive' Internal Revenue official who tried to block the earlier grand jury investigation has since been promoted."

"That while tax evaders themselves have been prosecuted, the Government officials who connived at tax evasion have not been dealt with, especially 'the ones in Washington.'"

"That Commissioner of Internal Revenue T. Coleman Andrews personally promised a cleanup but only 'moved the pegs around' and is now refusing to become associated with a company which has a $5,000,000 tax claim against the Government."

The public cannot know just which officials Judge Moore has in mind when he suggests that some are escaping justice. Nor can it know how strong is the evidence against them or why nearly five years of grand jury investigation has failed to bring them to the bar.

But Judge Moore's grave accusation commands respect from all who know him and his record. The Administration will be wise to pay heed to this premonitory roll of thunder. If it does not, it can be assured of a heavier storm to come.

Should Attorney General Brownell harbor any doubts on that score, we suggest he consult Former Attorney General J. Howard McGrath.

Challenge to Enterprise

Has tariff protection for infant industries become tariff babying for mature industries? A study backed by the National Planning Association and the Twentieth Century Fund strongly suggests that this is so. Dr. Don D. Humphrey, Duke University economics professor who wrote the report, specifically mentions automobiles, chemicals, electrical equipment and machines as over-protected industries.

A challenging idea is presented in the Planning Association's proposal that the Federal Government give interim relief to workers and producers adversely affected by lowered tariffs, to enable them to readjust themselves. Such transitional aid is necessary, the association said, "if a substantial reduction of import restrictions is to be achieved."

There is a decided question whether a nation can pursue an internationalist policy at the diplomatic level, as the United States is doing, while pursuing an insular policy at the commercial level, without losing effectiveness because of the inconsistency.

There is a further question whether unnecessary protection may not have a deadening effect on enterprise. England found it so with the over-protection many of its manufacturers had obtained from cartels.

Dr. Humphrey has faith that American enterprise can compete against cheap foreign labor and against the ingenuity and drive of enterprises in other countries without the special advantages of higher tariffs. Surely it is time to give that independent and vital kind of philosophy a larger, fairer trial than ever before.

A VETERAN RETURNS

The Cure for Runaway Trucks

The Mirror of Public Opinion

ICC writing tighter brake regulations for tractor-trailers, and probe of highway safety laws suggested in House; separate system for each vehicle would be cheapest and best, the truckers say; state legislation needed for intrastate runs.

From Business Week

In the past five months, runaway trucks killed 27 persons, injured many others, and left wreck and destruction in their wake. In every case, the accidents were caused by brake failure.

Washington recently took steps to curb catastrophes of this kind. The Interstate Commerce Commission, charged with regulating trucks, is now in the process of writing tighter brake regulations for big combination tractor-trailer trucks.

Representative Frank M. Clark (Dem.), Pennsylvania, a member of the House Public Works Committee, has called for a congressional investigation into highway safety laws, to see if they are adequate and are being properly enforced.

Right now trucks aren't required to have an emergency brake system. They have the normal service brakes and a parking brake. But a parking brake won't stop a truck when it is moving.

Trucks do have a "breakaway" braking system that stops trailers if they become separated. This prevents a disconnected trailer from running wild; but so far, no emergency brakes have been required to stop trucks if the service brakes go out.

This doesn't mean that all trucks operating today have just the minimum requirements laid down by ICC. Some truckers have put various types of emergency brakes on their vehicles to safeguard against accident.

Two Emergency Brakes Studied

Nobody argues the need for stricter regulations. And since last May—when a big moving van roared down Nob Hill in San Francisco, killing seven persons and wrecking a dozen cars—ICC and the trucking industry have been working together on the problem.

Two basic types of emergency brake systems are under consideration. One type would put brakes on each axle to operate independently of the brakes on all other axles, so that if brakes are lost on one axle, the truck could be stopped by applying the brakes on the other axles.

The other system would have an independent set of brakes for each vehicle—one for the tractor and one for the trailer. If the brakes went out on the tractor, the trailer brakes would stop the truck, or vice versa.

In Washington, brake manufacturers demonstrated to the American Trucking Association convention models of braking systems that would meet the requirements of either of the systems under consideration by ICC.

There is a big difference in cost between the two brake systems—by-vehicle or by-axle. While there is a higher margin of safety in the by-axle method, truckers say it will be too expensive to install.

They claim that a separate system for each vehicle will accomplish the same results—stop runaway trucks—and yet be cheap enough to make compliance with the regulation comparatively easy and sure.

Preliminary tests, truckers say, show that separate vehicle emergency brakes stop a truck in about twice the distance taken for a truck fitted with individual axle emergency brakes.

To fleet owners with several hundred trucks, the difference in cost is a big item. For example, on a four-axle rig—two-axle tractor and two-axle semi-trailer—it will cost between $125 and $250 to install a by-axle system. But a by-vehicle unit can be put in for about $25.

Maintenance Key to Problem

Maintenance, too, is a key to the problem. A complicated by-axle arrangement would require more maintenance than the simpler by-vehicle system.

The truckers say that the difference in initial safety between the two systems would be reduced by the amount of maintenance given each one.

They claim that almost all the major accidents can be traced to improper maintenance of present equipment.

For example, the accident at Cumberland, Md.—when a truck loaded with 20 tons of aluminum ran down Big Savage Mountain, killing five—resulted from friction tape used to patch an air-brake hose gave way.

So a system that requires less maintenance would stand a better chance of being kept in good repair.

Affected by the coming regulations will be an estimated 1,500,000 combination trucks operating in interstate commerce, plus about 70,000 new trailers built each year. It will take at least a year to equip all trucks with a new brake system once the order is issued.

Trucks that operate solely within a state do not come under ICC regulations, so it will be up to individual states to decide if similar requirements will be made on their intrastate trucks.

These factors will be weighed by the commissioners when they decide on what type of regulation to adopt. It is possible that a compromise may be reached—by-vehicle brakes for trucks in operation now, and by-axle brakes on new ones.

Grand Manner Diplomacy

FRANZ JOSEPH AND NAPOLEON III 1853-1864: A STUDY OF AUSTRO-FRENCH RELATIONS. By Charles W. Hallberg. (Bookman Associates, Inc. pp. 28.)

This is an account of the devious relations between France and Austria in one troubled 12-year period wherein cautious Franz Joseph, advocate of the status quo and dynastic interests, knew ceaseless challenge from enigmatic Louis Napoleon, enemy of the existing order and advocate of the principle of nationalities.

With each ruler directing the foreign policy of his country—and that without close or persistent concern about his subjects—this diplomacy in the grand manner: royal hunts, secret interviews, palace dinners and a constant flow of correspondence. The Tuileries, St. Cloud, Fontainebleau and Biarritz are featured places. Foreign Ministers Rost, Rechberg, Drouyn de Lhuys and Walewski, along with Ambassadors Hummer, Metternich and Bourqueney, support the two principals, while the background occasionally includes Italians such as Cavour, and Englishmen in bit roles.

Given the trends of the times and the nature of the problems which arose, Louis Napoleon was the peculiar nemesis of Austria. The Crimean War, the rising tide of nationalism, the Italian problem, the Balkan question—all illustrated the relationship between Austria's internal weaknesses and her foreign failures. Napoleon's determination to undo the settlement of 1815 helped to set in motion a sequence of forces which, in furious climax long after the French monarch's death, wrecked completely the Hapsburg pattern for Austria.

Professor Hallberg bases his appraisal of the interaction of these two unlike empires upon a wealth of manuscript material. With Austria commonly on the defensive, it is natural that his account is largely from the viewpoint of Vienna. The author's refusal to give any consideration to the economic, psychological or social factors impinging upon and helping to dictate Austro-French relations gives this record, a ring of remote historicity. Present day realities that is unfortunate.

The Saga of the Fields

THE SINGING STORM, by Marjorie Allen. (Putnam, $12.00, 352 pp.)

This is the fourth novel in the saga of the Field family. The time is the 1830s, the place Cincinnati, and the characters: Faith Field, her sons Mai and Jed, her daughter Constitution and her grandsons Lance and Life. When Jed Field and his wife separated, Jed took his son Life to Ohio to live, leaving (unknown to Jed) Life's twin brother Lance. Lance was raised by his mother and grandfather at their plantation in Louisiana until his grandfather's death when Lance was 18. Turned over to Jed as his legal guardian, Lance returned to Cincinnati when he and Life soon became inseparable.

As the boys grew older, they became more aware of the question of slavery. Faith Field was an ardent abolitionist and Life took after his grandmother. Lance, however, who had inherited a plantation run by slaves, felt that slaves should be educated and then freed. When Life fell in love with a lovely octopussy, Lance tried to help him overcome his folly, by introducing him to Angela Durham, whom Lance himself loved. Miss Allen has crammed her book with private and public events, so that the period vividly and believably. It was a period of turmoil, with the slavery question filling men's minds and friends and family splitting over it with their own solutions to the dilemma, and mob violence as a prelude to the greater violence to come. The West's Gamble Fails at Geneva

WASHINGTON. MR. DULLES, AND MR. MACMILLAN AND MR. PINAY as well, went to Geneva knowing that there was no chance whatever that the Soviet Union would accept their terms for the reunification of Germany. There is no warrant, therefore, for pained surprise at the fact that Mr. Molotov has restated what was so obviously the Soviet position while the President was talking to Bulganin at Geneva last July.

Just to show how obvious it was to one who was not in Geneva, I should like to quote from an article I wrote while the summit meeting was still in session: "The Soviet Union has rejected the Eden plan" and "The West is left with what is in fact a gigantic gamble: Whether the time is on the side of Adenauer or of the opposition to Adenauer, the German chancellor is playing for very high stakes—for a German settlement on his own terms, for a Germany reunited within frontiers that are better than those of Potsdam, reunited under his government in Bonn and under his party, rearmed within NATO and when rearmed, the leading European power within NATO. . . .

Pinay

To Balk Adenauer's Foes. "What the Atlantic allies very much need is something that will reinsure their interests in case Dr. Adenauer's gamble fails, and a successor enters into direct negotiation with Moscow."

For reasons which seemed compelling to them the Western foreign ministers chose to go to the Geneva conference with the old Adenauer terms, which they knew, which their experts knew, which every correspondent knew, were not negotiable.

After a visit to Moscow in September, we may almost take it for granted that not even Dr. Adenauer himself can have failed to realize that reunification could not be had on his terms.

So far as I have been able to find out, the reason why the Western foreign ministers remained inflexible on the un-negotiable terms was that they feared the effect on the German opposition to Dr. Adenauer of any concession from them.

No Unification With NATO.

In any event the gamble has failed. Unless there is some kind of brilliant improvisation by the Westerners at Geneva, we are once again in the kind of position we were in when we stood so immovably on the European army plan and saw it rejected by the French Assembly.

The situation then was saved by Mr. Anthony Eden's diplomatic ingenuity. The situation we are now in will need a very bold statesmanship if it is to be saved.

What is at stake is our position in Germany and the confidence of the Germans in our leadership of the Western coalition. For there is a very strong German opposition, by no means limited to the Social Democrats, which has never believed that we could prevail upon the Soviet Union to accede to Dr. Adenauer's terms. This German opposition has always maintained that Germany could not be unified as an armed state within the Western military alliance. It has always argued that German membership in NATO must be treated as a negotiable asset in dealing with the Soviet Union.

Now it may well be that the Soviet Union would not agree to German unification even outside of NATO. My own belief is that the Soviet Union will not agree to that now—in view of the inner political weakness of the Western powers.

But what Moscow would do now is not the first question. The first question is whether the German people will think we are making proposals that are not only sincere but are rational and practicable terms for their own reunification.

Worth Basic NATO Change

To make German membership in NATO negotiable would be to take a position that Moscow cannot reject without great loss of face in Germany.

As long, on the other hand, as we stand fixed in a position that is not negotiable, there will be in Germany a growing loss of confidence in our good sense, and even in our sincerity.

Our position is very difficult indeed. For if we concede German membership in NATO in order to promote German unification, we shall be faced with a deep dislocation of the NATO military structure.

Western Germany is the key-stone of the structure, and if it were taken away, the strategic conception of NATO would have to be radically revised. The Western Governments would consider that an exorbitantly high price to pay for the unification of Germany.

Deals by Two Germanies.

On the other hand, if we stand pat on our present terms and, as Mr. Macmillan has said so hopefully, "continue to lean" on the Soviets, we must be prepared to see increasing intercourse and direct negotiation between the West and the East Germans.

Insofar as we cannot or will not negotiate across the table with the two Germanies, the Germans themselves will negotiate under the table.

If anyone doubts this, he might study the proposals made to this Geneva conference by the German Social Democratic party. He will find there a call for direct dealings between the two Germanies which differs in principle and in legal form but not very much in its practical purposes from what Mr. Molotov is proposing.

We shall now see whether the foreign ministers have prepared themselves for what they must have foreseen would happen at Geneva. For they knew they could not succeed with their terms. Have they prepared themselves for what comes next?

CALLS MASS MEDIA DISCUSSION KILLER

Sociology Professor Talks at Adult Education Meeting.

Techniques of mass communication "are not enlarging and animating face-to-face public discussion, but are helping to kill it off," C. Wright Mills, professor of sociology at Columbia University, said here today.

Mills, a panel speaker at opening sessions of the national Adult Education Association conference at Hotel Jefferson, said radio, mass magazines, television and the movies "increasingly destroy the reasonable and leisurely human interchange of opinion."

These media "distract and obscure" the viewer or listener from an opportunity to gain understanding, "by fastening his attention on artificial frenzies," he declared.

Mills said that those in America who examine the experience of mankind and give judgments on it "are not honored by the community," and added:

"The really respected intellectual pillars of the community are likely to be silly old rich men who sit on park benches or tough, crackpot realists in charge of air fleets and frightfully expensive bombs."

"In such a situation, the teacher is a rather minor and often temporary white-collar employee and nothing else."

At another national conference of an education group today, Alexis Larriviere of the Louisiana Department of Education said that much larger numbers of this country's ill-educated millions would go back to school as adults if they had the opportunity.

Larriviere, executive assistant in the department at Baton Rouge, led one of several discussion groups at the third annual conference of the National Association of Public School Educators at Hotel Statler.

Outlining the problem of education for illiterates, Larriviere said 66 per cent of Americans did not finish high school, while 10,000,000 are classified as "functionally illiterate," or below fifth grade level.

Larriviere said economic as well as cultural advantages were to be gained from an accelerated program for teaching illiterates to read and write at public expense. He said the majority of such people want education.

In Louisiana, the discussion brought out, the state budget for adult education is $250,000 annually. That sum finances schooling in grades one through twelve for 20,000 persons, but is inadequate to meet the demand.

"There is a backlog," Larriviere said, "of 50,000 adults in Louisiana who want to go to school but no money, because there is no money for the purpose."

Leader of another discussion group this morning was Kurt Schneider, director of adult education for Richmond (Va.) public schools. He talked about co-operation with business, industry and labor in meeting specific educational needs.

JEWISH WELFARE GROUP PLANS TO REMODEL BUILDING

The Jewish Child Welfare Association announced today that its two buildings at 6630 Oakland avenue will be remodeled to provide larger facilities for the care of children.

A United Fund agency, the association provides care for emotionally disturbed children. The two buildings, now used as home units, will be turned into four smaller units that will house eight children each, Mrs. Earl Rosen, association president said.

Cost of the remodeling, which is to be completed in six months, will be paid from the association's capital fund, Mrs. Rosen said the proposed enlargement of facilities was the result of a two-year survey by the Social Planning Council which showed a need for specialized group care for emotionally-disturbed children in the St. Louis area.

DETROIT RAISES $15,808,447 FOR CHARITIES, TOPPING GOAL

DETROIT, Nov. 16 (AP)—The Detroit United Foundation, which said its charity drive goal of $14,450,000 was the largest in the world, topped the goal by $1,358,447 as the campaign of "give once for all" ended yesterday.

Solicitations began Oct. 18 for funds to support 150 charitable and welfare agencies during 1956.

Benson Ford, vice president of the Ford Motor Co. in charge of its Lincoln-Mercury division, was chairman of drive and announced pledges of $16,808,447 at a "victory dinner" last night.

HOOVER URGES QUEST FOR LASTING PEACE

Represents Eisenhower at Tomb of Unknown Soldier on Veterans Day.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (UP)—Former President Hoover called on the nation in the memory of the Unknown Soldier today to continue its "eternal quest for the holy grail of lasting peace."

"Today we can rejoice that the shambles of death are suspended," the white-haired thirty-first president said. "Yet today there is no peace."

Hoover spoke on behalf of President Eisenhower at Veterans day services before the tomb of the Unknown Soldier at Arlington National Cemetery. He personally laid the presidential wreath on the gleaming marble tomb.

"We do not glorify war," he said. "No man came back from the furnace of war who does not pray that war be ended forever."

"On this day we renew our dedication to the eternal quest for the holy grail of lasting peace, not only for ourselves alone but for all mankind."

He said the nation also must dedicate itself "to maintain the respect of nations for our preparedness and our might to defend ourselves against aggression."

A 21-gun salute boomed across the rolling cemetery when Hoover arrived and again when he departed. The high notes of taps cut the still air after he laid the large wreath.

Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay dedicated an American Legion plaque at the historic Civil War battlefield at Gettysburg, Pa., after an address by Legion Commander J. Addington Wagner.

The plaque is inscribed: "We pray for peace . . . but peace with honor."

JERSEY GOVERNOR TO TAKE MARGARET TRUMAN TO GAME

TRENTON, N.J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Gov. Robert B. Meyner's office said yesterday the Governor would escort Margaret Truman, daughter of the former President, to the Yale-Princeton football game at Princeton tomorrow.

The two have been linked romantically for two years and Miss Truman has been a visitor at Meyner's summer home.

Yeh Returns to Formosa.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Nov. 11 (UP)—Foreign Minister George Yeh returned to Formosa today from Manila following a two-month visit to the United States. His arrival in Taipei was delayed by bad weather.

UNITED FUND GETS THREE LARGE GIFTS

All Show Marked Increase Over Last Year's Donations.

A total of $29,106 has been given to the United Fund campaign by the American Associated Insurance Co., its executives and employees, it was announced today. The amount is 18 per cent more than the total donated by the group last year to all organizations now represented by the United Fund.

Two other large gifts were received yesterday in the drive. General Steel Castings, its officers and employees pledged a total $26,128 and Rice-Stix, Inc., and its employees pledged $17,547.

The gift from General Steel Castings represents an increase of 27 per cent over last year's gifts. Donations of the Rice-Stix group in the current drive amounts to approximately 10 per cent more than was given in 1954.

The employees of St. Louis State Hospital have contributed a total of $6891 to the United Fund campaign. Angelica Uniform Co. and its employees have pledged $6619. An overall gift of $5890 has been made by the Mississippi Glass Co.

New contributions received in the drive include $1838 from the St. Louis Housing and Land Clearance Authority and $700 from the employees of the regional sales office of Reynolds Metals Co.

Russell L. Savage, chairman of the Industry and Manufacturing Division, the division with the lowest per cent return, said yesterday the workers in all four sections of the division have been "extremely slow in reporting returns." He said one section encountered difficulty at the beginning when a strike tied up the firm from which most of the solicitors were to come.

The four sections together have raised a total of $60,757, or 10.3 per cent of their combined $587,247 goal.

SCULPTOR ADELAIDE JOHNSON DIES IN WASHINGTON AT 103

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Adelaide Johnson died yesterday at the age of 103.

Her single block sculpture of Susan B. Anthony, Elizabeth Stanton Cady and Lucretia Mott, women's rights leaders, has stood in the Capitol since the 1920s. It is in the crypt beneath the dome.

She once was married to a Britisher who changed his name to hers. She was born in Plymouth, N.J.

The long-lost

Key to healing

"If God can heal some things, God can heal anything—and will," says Christian Science. If the sinner's prayer for help is answered, the sick man's prayer also can find the same response. How?

A thankful multitude testify that Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy is the "key" to this priceless understanding. It unlocks the Bible promises, opening for all their healing power. This book, the Christian Science textbook, shows you how to turn to God—how to have His help here and now, no matter what the human need may be.

Science and Health may be read, borrowed, or purchased at any Christian Science Reading Room, or sent $3 and a copy will be mailed postpaid.

CROP REPORT BOOSTS SOYBEAN PRICES

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (AP)—An advance running to around 3 cents in soybeans featured dealers in a generally firm market on the Board of Trade today.

A lower than expected government crop estimate, plus reports Argentina wanted a substantial quantity of various vegetable oils, created a strong demand for soybeans.

Other grains were ragged at the start, advancing later. They could not match the strength in beans. Some buying entered feed grains on a forecast for cold weather in the Midwest.

Argentina was reported to have asked the United States for around 200,000 pounds of cottonseed oil, soybean oil and other edible oils. If granted, payment would be made in Argentine currency with the United States spending the proceeds in Argentina.

WILLIAM BENTON'S SON GIVES PARTY FOR RUSSIAN BOYS

MOSCOW, Nov. 11 (AP)—John Benton, 13 years old, gave a party yesterday. It was for four Russian schoolmates who went to John's room at the National Hotel to eat cookies and drink fruit water. It was probably the first affair of its kind since the beginning of the cold war.

The host, who is the son of former Democratic Senator William Benton of Connecticut, has been going to a Russian school an hour daily for the last two weeks. He has quit now, however, since his leaving Moscow tomorrow for Warsaw, Budapest, Prague and home. The host gave his guests postcard views of the American scene as souvenirs.

7 WEEK HISTORY OF EISENHOWER'S STAY IN HOSPITAL

good health," the specialist said. But, he added, it would be two to three months before he could tell with any certainty whether there would be a full recovery.

On Oct. 23, Mr. Eisenhower stepped out of bed and up on a pair of scales. They showed he had lost four pounds since entering the hospital, going from 176 1/2 to 172 1/2. On Oct. 25, he took his first real steps, walking one or two steps to an easy chair.

On the same day, he had his first formal photographs taken, posing in the wheelchair in the sun. Later in the week, he conferred with Secretary of the Interior Douglas McKay, issued a statement on the eve of the Geneva Big Four meeting and saw his first motion picture, a "Western."

Stands for X-ray.

Sixth week, Oct. 29-Nov. 4: On Saturday, the President had his first standard X-rays taken, starting up in front of the X-ray machine on the third floor. They showed no enlargement of his heart, a possibility the doctors had been watching closely. Two days later, Mr. Eisenhower stood up to shave; up until then he had been shaved in bed by a medical corpsman.

Early in the week, he faced his first really controversial domestic issue. After a conference with Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson, the President announced his endorsement of support of Benson's non-criticized farm policies.

Mr. Eisenhower increased the length of his walks around his room, conferred with Postmaster General Arthur E. Summerfield and Secretary of Labor James P. Mitchell. The President had an increased number of social visitors during the week.

Toward the end of the week, he took his longest walk, about 523 feet. He now could walk at will on the eighth floor and had begun taking his meals with Mrs. Eisenhower in the dining room.

Began to Climb Steps.

Seventh and final week, Nov. 5-11: Mr. Eisenhower's wheelchair now stood idle almost all the time. He began, on Saturday, to climb steps, using a two-step exercise stilt, and this, as much as anything, indicated the hospital phase of his convalescence was drawing to a close.

He visited on Saturday with an old friend, British Field Marshal Lord Montgomery.

On Monday, Mr. Eisenhower, Dr. White and the other physicians laid it over. Dr. White had just concluded his fourth and final examination. The President made the decision: he would leave the hospital on Friday.

Also on Monday he had his last hospital conference with a member of his cabinet, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Marion B. Folsom. On Wednesday, Mr. Eisenhower welcomed a visiting head of state, President Carlos Castillo Armas of Guatemala and later saw Under Secretary of State Herbert Hoover Jr.

Yesterday, the President of the United States was ready to leave the hospital. Today, well along the road to recovery, he made the trip back to Washington.

OFF-YEAR VOTES PUT G.O.P. UNDER NEW PRESSURE

run if he decides not to run himself.

At the present moment, the Chief Justice is freely telling all that nothing will change his mind about staying on the Court. He means every word of it, beyond question. But no one, including the Chief Justice himself, is in a position to forecast the Chief Justice's response to the kind of appeal the President can make if he chooses. The odds are against Warren's yielding, but he may.

Say the odds are even on the President making the appeal. Say the odds are two to one against Warren yielding. That makes one chance in four of the Chief Justice becoming the Republican candidate if Mr. Eisenhower does not run.

Then, if both Mr. Eisenhower and Warren are finally eliminated, it will be Vice President Nixon against the field. And then most of the old Eisenhower-for-President crowd, who do not fancy Nixon, will be searching the dark horse stable with a rather feverish intensity.

GRANITE CITY STEEL TO INCREASE OUTPUT

New Blast Furnace, Open Hearth Changes Will Raise Production.

Granite City Steel Co. will increase its steel-making capacity by about 30 per cent through an expansion program that will be completed early in 1956.

John N. Marshall, president of the firm, announced today.

By late next year the company will be able to increase its production of hot rolled coils and sheets but it will be near the end of the program before production of cold rolled coils and sheets will be increased, Marshall said.

Present ingot capacity is 1,025,000 tons a year.

Included in the expansion program is purchase of a new blast furnace capable of producing 1200 tons of pig iron a day. Over-all height will be 209 feet, including the gas removal apparatus.

The new furnace, to be built by the Koppers Co. of Pittsburgh, will double the capacity of the furnace it replaces, which will remain in operation until next March. The plant has one other furnace.

Changes have already been made in the plant's open hearth furnaces to enable the use of charging boxes with a capacity almost double that of the old boxes. The boxes, largest in the steel industry, are used to load scrap into the furnaces.

When the new blast furnace is completed Granite City Steel will be able to use a higher percentage of molten iron in its open hearth "heats," Marshall said. This will reduce the time required to make steel in open hearths.

ST. LOUIS AHEAD OF U.S. IN OFFICE MAIL EXPERIMENT

An announcement in Washington by Postmaster General Summerfield that the lobbies of some 750 major office buildings throughout the country will soon be adorned by special red, white and blue steel racks in a move to improve Post Office efficiency—found St. Louis well-prepared today.

In fact, said Postmaster Bernard F. Dickmann, 13 such "co-operative mailing racks" are already in design to the racks which will be distributed, containing three mail bags. By placing mail in the correct bag, according to destination, office clerks can greatly speed its handling in the post office.

The racks are placed in buildings here between 4 p.m. and 6 p.m., when office mailing runs heaviest, and have had a "sensational" reception, Dickmann said.

Summerfield said the new move should save more than $600,000 a year.

FLIGHTS CONTINUE DESPITE STRIKE AT PARIS AIRPORT

PARIS, Nov. 11 (UPI)—French and German airlines scheduled a small number of flights in and out of Paris today despite a strike by 3500 radar and control tower workers.

Air France said 17 of its overseas planes would take off from Orly Field in the day. The West German airline Luftansa scheduled flights from Orly to Frankfurt.

British Overseas Airways was switching its operations from Le Bourget to Orly, where operations were made possible by French air force men working at nearby Bretigny air base.

VETERANS ASK FOR U.N. INQUIRY INTO KOREA ATROCITIES

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Six American veterans organizations joined today in demanding a United Nations investigation of atrocities committed by Communist troops in the Korean war.

Saying they spoke for about 3,000,000 veterans, the groups declared that Red Chinese and North Koreans responsible for the acts should be branded as war criminals and every effort made to punish them.

A similar petition is to be presented to the United Nations Government. The veterans said they were also urging former comrades in arms of other U.N. nations to get behind the idea.

The appeal was signed by leaders of the Amvets, the Catholic War Veterans, the Jewish War Veterans, the Military Order of the Purple Heart, the Military Order of World Wars, and the Veterans of Foreign Wars.

NEW TWIST IN PRETZELS, THEY'RE FREE WITH MUSIC

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Nov. 11 (AP)—That old beer standby—pretzels—took on a new cultural twist last night.

The Kansas City Philharmonic Orchestra inaugurated the first of a series of pretzel concerts—free pretzels and light music. The pretzels were so popular they disappeared before the evening was over. The audience of 1000 wound up nibbling hurriedly substituted potato chips. Beer, not free, also was served. It was the first time in the Philharmonic's history that beer and pretzels were mixed with music.

Drifting Vessel and Fate of 25 Offer New Ghost Ship Mystery

Like Fabled Marie Celeste, 70-Ton Trading Craft Bears No Clue to What Happened to Those Aboard.

PAGO PAGO, Nov. 11 (UP)—seafaring men said today a long-missing island trading vessel had become sister ship to the fabled Marie Celeste, a ghost ship drifting aimlessly across the sea without passengers or crew.

The 70-ton cabin cruiser Joyita disappeared five weeks ago. It was carrying 25 passengers and crewmen when it left Apia, Samoa, for a two-day voyage to Fakaofo in the Tokelau Islands.

When it became overdue, planes and ships searched for days over a 100,000-square-mile area. Yesterday, the steamer Tuvalu came upon the waterlogged Joyita drifting far off its course 90 miles north of the Fijian island of Vanua Levu.

There was no trace of the 25 persons who had been aboard.

The Fijian government ship Degel set out to take the Joyita in tow. Its captain, E. L. James, said, "This looks like another Marie Celeste."

The Marie Celeste was one of the great sailing ships of the last century. It was found cruising across the Atlantic under full sail. There was no sign of trouble. Everything was in order, but there was no trace of the crew. That was in 1872 and the mystery has never been explained.

The Tuvalu said there were some signs of an explosion aboard the Joyita. Its funnel was missing and it was listing heavily.

"We have no theory yet as to what actually happened," he said.

An awning was rigged on the deck. Planes of the Royal New Zealand Air Force renewed search operations in hopes some of the passengers may be found aboard life rafts in the vicinity.

The Joyita, which carried only enough food and water for two days, was believed to have encountered a heavy storm shortly after it left port.

Aboard were its skipper, Thomas H. Miller, wartime British naval officer; his mate, American Indian Charles Simpson, 11 passengers and a native crew of 12.

PAY HIKE DENIED, POLICE POUR ON TRAFFIC TICKETS

NORTH BERGEN, N. J., Nov. 11 (AP)—Hundreds of traffic violation tickets have been put on automobiles here since voters rejected a $500 annual pay increase sought by policemen.

Police Commissioner James Nolan ordered a check of the situation when more than 300 tickets were written Wednesday.

The normal for a day is between 10 and 20.

BINGHAMTON, N. Y., Nov. 11 (AP)—Binghamton policemen, denied a pay rise in the election Tuesday, handed out 270 traffic tickets. Wednesday.

Mayor Donald W. Kramer issued a warning yesterday that the police were not to be "petty or vindictive." The warning also went to firemen, likewise denied an increase. The 270 tickets topped the combined total for the previous eight days.

Open and Shut Case.
CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (UP)—A "grand opening" sign on a men's clothing store was changed yesterday to "closed for inventory." Burglars cleaned out two thirds of the store's stock.

LEFTIST MEXICAN PAINTER, SQUEIROS, NOW IN MOSCOW

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Russian embassy said yesterday the Mexican painter David Alfaro Siqueiros is in Moscow. The internationally known leftist painter reported left Mexico for Poland sometime ago hoping to get a contract for a large mural there. When no word was received from him, newspapers checked the Russian embassy and it said Siqueiros had gone on to Moscow to see Russian muralist P. Korin. Also in Moscow is Mexican muralist Diego Rivera, undergoing treatment for cancer.

PASTOR FOUND GUILTY IN 3RD HERESY TRIAL

Lutheran Synod Recommends Suspension on Five Doctrinal Counts.

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11 (AP)—The third heresy trial in the history of the northwest synod of the United Lutheran Church found the Rev. Victor K. Wrigley guilty on five of six counts of doctrinal deviation and recommended last night that he be suspended from his pulpit.

The Rev. Mr. Wrigley, 33 years old, pastor of Gethsemane Church in the nearby small community of Brookfield in Waukesha county, was not present when the trial board returned its findings.

The minister did not attend any portion of the trial or previous investigational hearings on the advice of his church council, which demanded certain procedural concessions from the synod before it would permit him to be present.

Will Follow Recommendation.

The recommendations of the seven-member trial board were presented to Dr. Paul E. Bishop, synod president from Minneapolis. He said he would "without a doubt follow" the recommendation. He added:

"I hope the congregation accept this verdict as the decision of the synod and the church. The decision was reached in sadness, reluctance and for the welfare and stability of the church."

"I hope the pastor will accept it as an action in which the church seeks to aid him, that he might establish himself in its doctrine."

"The door is always open if he wishes to recant."

Pastor Wrigley indicated earlier he expected a finding of guilty. His church council, he reported, planned a meeting Sunday night to discuss the decision returned by the trial board and to make recommendations to the congregation, slated to meet Nov. 27.

The Rev. Mr. Wrigley accused the synod earlier of "changing the rules during the game" and served notice he could not be forced out as pastor of his church.

Up to Congregation.

"It is entirely up to the members of the congregation which called me as pastor . . . to decide whether or not I remain as their pastor. I will not on my initiative break fellowship with either the synod or the congregation," he said.

He issued a general denial of the six charges and in defense submitted only a statement touching on each of the points. It was read to the trial board. He asserted that Christian faith is "neither measured nor determined by the opinions a man might hold about such questions as these."

The trial board found him guilty of charges alleging he denied the objective of Holy Scripture, repudiated true exposition of the Holy Scripture in conformance with Lutheran Confessions, denied the Virgin Birth of Christ, denied the physical Resurrection of Christ, and repudiated the sacramental

MEMPHIS ELECTS BUSINESS MAN IN POLITICAL DEBUT

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 11 (AP)—Edmund Orgill, a wealthy business man making his first bid for public office, was elected mayor yesterday. He defeated a veteran politician, S. Watkins Overton.

Orgill, 56 years old, led from the beginning in the first election here in nearly 30 years that was not dominated by the late E. H. (Boss) Crump.

Final unofficial returns gave Orgill 51,798 votes, Overton 33,154. Both candidates are Democrats.

Overton, 61, was twice mayor under Crump. He had the support of most of the old Crump organization's leaders.

There were no firm issues in the campaign. Pleas for votes were based mainly on past records, the city's future needs and on administrative ability.

CAUGHT IN SPEED TRAP, TREASURER OF U.S. ADMITS

DENVER, Nov. 11 (AP)—Mrs. Ivy Baker Priest, treasurer of the United States, said yesterday she was caught in a Sunday speed trap while driving west across Nebraska.

"They stopped me and took me to the fire house where the justice of peace was all set up and waiting for his intended prey," she told a meeting of Colorado Republican women's clubs. "He asked for my driver's license, studied it for a moment, and asked, 'Are you the lady who signs all the money?' I admitted I was. He turned to the others present and said, 'Well, boys, it looks like we really hit the jackpot today.'"

Mrs. Priest did not disclose the town or the amount of the fine.

No Verdict on Original Sin.

The sixth allegation contended he denied Original Sin. The trial board said it was unable to return a verdict on the charge because of conflicts in the pastor's defense statement.

The heresy trial was the third in the 65-year history of the synod. The Rev. George P. Crist, Durham, Waukesha county, was ruled guilty last July on nine of 14 counts. He was ordered suspended from his pulpit and later turned back his ordination papers.

The Rev. John Gerberding, of Menomonee Falls in Waukesha county, was found not guilty on eight charges in an August trial. A group of Milwaukee synod pastors asked for a new trial and he offered to resign. His congregation refused his offer and he continues in his pulpit.

All three of the trials and penalties are subject to review by the synod convention scheduled here next spring. The penalty under a finding of guilty, according to the church constitution, ranges from a rebuke to defrocking.

U.S. REJECTS BIDS ON CANNED PORK

Processors' Prices Seemed Too High—Lard Is Purchased.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Agriculture Department says it has turned down all offers received this week to sell canned pork products to the Government under the recently announced pork products purchase program. It had accepted bids on lard.

The department said yesterday the prices quoted were not considered to be in proper relation to hog prices now being received by farmers. The prices submitted by the processors presumably were too high.

Secretary Ezra T. Benson recently announced that up to $35,000,000 worth of pork and lard would be bought in an effort to bolster dropping hog prices.

The department will continue to receive offers to sell to the Government canned pork products on a weekly basis.

The next offers are due next Tuesday and Wednesday for canned luncheon meat, canned pork and gravy, and canned ham.

The department reported Wednesday its purchase of 1,015,000 pounds of lard.

Products purchased under the program will move directly into use through the school lunch program and other such outlets.

50C PHONOGRAPH TO FIGHT RADIO JAMMING BY REDS

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—A 50-cent gadget was demonstrated yesterday as the free world's latest answer to Iron Curtain radio jamming.

It is a rugged, hand-operated phonograph. David Sarnoff, president of the Radio Corp. of America, said it can be distributed by air drop and is so simple that anyone can put it together and play it. Records, costing about 5 cents each, can be "dropped from the sky like leaflets," he added.

Sarnoff said the phonograph can be manufactured at a cost of 50 cents or less, maybe even 20 cents in quantity. He demonstrated one at the Overseas Press Club and said he had shown the machine to President Eisenhower and other Government officials last April 5.

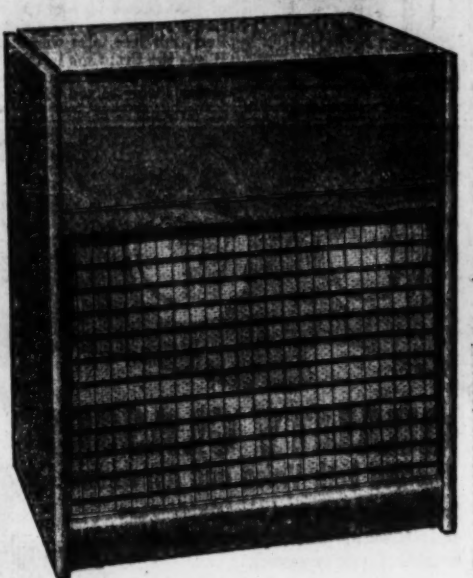

Sarnoff called the device the answer to the need for a message carrier that cannot be blocked by radio jamming or the absence of electricity. He said a number of such phonographs have been given to the Voice of America for field tests.

The phonograph is made mainly of unbreakable plastic. It weighs 10 ounces, including cardboard container, and can be carried by balloon.

The man who developed it is Arthur Van Dyke of RCA.

British Renew 1950 Guarantee To Protect Peace in Palestine

Reaffirm Three-Power Pledge to Prevent Territorial Changes by Force.

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Britain today strongly re-affirmed support of the 1950 pledge by Britain, the United States and France to prevent any changes by force in the Israeli-Arab armistice line.

A Foreign Office spokesman said "the policy of Her Majesty's government remains based on the 1950 declaration" by the three powers guaranteeing Palestine peace.

He told a news conference Britain "warmly welcomes and supports President Eisenhower's statement reaffirming the policy expressed in the declaration of 1950 and the United States warning against a resort to force."

The Foreign Office statement appeared aimed at dispelling any doubt that Britain is determined to protect peace in the troubled Middle East.

"Obligations Unchanged." British newspapers had noted that Prime Minister Eden said in a speech Wednesday that either side resorting to force in the Arab-Israeli dispute would lose Britain's sympathy and some quarters interpreted this as backing down on the 1950 declaration.

The Foreign Office spokesman said: "The Prime Minister, when warning whatever side resorted to force would forfeit the sympathy of the United Kingdom, referred in particular to the situation in the El Auja demilitarized zone. This had no bearing on our attitude toward our obligations under the 1950 declaration, which remain fundamental and unchanged."

Just before this announcement was made, Eden conferred with United States Ambassador Withrop Aldrich. It is believed their subject was the Middle East and Eden's offer to mediate the Israeli-Arab dispute.

The Foreign Office yesterday instructed Britain's diplomatic representatives in the Middle East to urge acceptance of Eden's mediation offer.

But in New York, Israeli Foreign Minister Moshe Sharett said "I deeply deplore" Eden's speech because it suggested a compromise on territorial claims. He said Israel would reject the idea of making any territorial concessions and that a mediator should not set the terms of peace in advance.

The Foreign Office spokesman said, "Her Majesty's government regrets the Israeli government's uncompromising attitude toward the Prime Minister's suggestion for settlement of Arab-Israeli disputes, which is possible in a spirit of compromise and by confessions on both sides."

In Rome, Italy announced it would refuse export licenses for 30 Vampire jet fighter planes which Egypt has ordered from a private Italian manufacturer. An Italian Foreign Office spokesman, announcing this, said he had no knowledge of the order or of 16 Italian-built Vampire jets delivered earlier this year to Egypt.

Confirmation of Deals. Nevertheless, Associated Press correspondents received separate confirmations of the two jet deals from responsible officials of three separate interested governments.

The Egyptians claim they have information 36 modern French Mystere-III jet fighters have reached Israel in recent months.

Egypt is said to have signed its contract with the Macchi Company of Italy for Vampires after a request for Mysteres was turned down by France.

"There is no deal between Italy and Egypt for delivery of planes," said the Rome Foreign Office spokesman. A reporter noted that the reported contract was between Egypt and a private manufacturer, not Italy.

"Private contracts for exporting such things as arms have to be approved," said the Foreign Office spokesman. "We have received no application for such approval."

SEVEN SOVIET JOURNALISTS TALK WITH JUSTICE DOUGLAS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Justice Douglas of the Supreme Court today told seven visiting Russian journalists that in his recent visit to their country he was greatly impressed with the "quality" of Soviet judges and lawyers.

Douglas spent 20 minutes with the group, after which a court spokesman related to American reporters what had taken place. The Americans were not permitted to attend the conference.

The spokesman, Bannington Whittington, said Douglas told the journalists his visit to Russia was a pleasant one, the people were friendly, and generally he was allowed to go where he pleased. An interpreter helped the journalists and Douglas to understand one another.

SENTENCED TO 25 YEARS FOR KILLING IN DISPUTE

Willie Baber, laborer, of the 2500 block of Montgomery street, was sentenced to 25 years in the state penitentiary yesterday by a jury in the court of Circuit Judge Franklin E. Reagan when found guilty of second degree murder in the killing of another man in a fight.

Baber, a Negro, was charged with having shot and killed Eddie Brown, also a Negro, 3051 Cass avenue, in an altercation in the 1100 block of North Thirteenth street on Dec. 4, 1954.

It was brought out in testimony that Baber slapped Brown and shot him once after Brown had made a derogatory remark about Baber's sister. Baber testified that he shot Brown in self defense because the victim struck him first and pulled an automatic pistol. No weapon was found at the scene, police said. Baber fled and was arrested later by the Federal Bureau of Investigation in the South.

A Regal Sandwich Shop at 932 South Kingshighway was robbed of $95 early today by two men who held up the attendant, Raymond Newcombe, and fled in an automobile with two others who waited outside, Newcombe told police.

William J. Kilcullen, 3116A North Sarah street, reported he was forced to hand over $90 to a Negro who accosted him last night as he was walking on St. Louis avenue near Prairie avenue.

A Mavros candy store at 524 North Grand boulevard was held up last night by a man who forced the clerk, Mrs. Beatrice Miller, to give him about $20 from the cash register, police reported.

The field marshal was given a gold key to the city and a citizenship certificate by Mayor W. A. Gayle who said the city and county were named after two other military heroes—Gen. Richard Montgomery, killed at the battle of Quebec; and Maj. Lemuel Montgomery, killed at the battle of Horseshoe Bend, Ala., in Andrew Jackson's campaign against the Indians.

BROWNELL CHARGES U.S. AGENCY IS LAX

Says Small Business Group Conducts Operations in Haphazard Manner.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (UP)—Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., accused the Government's Small Business Administration yesterday of conducting part of its operations in an "indirect and haphazard" manner.

In a report to the White House and Congress on the administration of the Small Business Act, Brownell said the agency does not have an effective policy to determine whether firms getting loan and procurement benefits may be "dominant" in their industry.

He said that Congress intended to deny benefits of the act where such benefits might tend to create a monopoly.

SBA uses a screening process to exclude possible dominant producers from its programs, he said. He added that this general screening is an insufficient rule.

"A more intensive individual check on this consideration for eligibility appears necessary," Brownell said. "This is especially necessary since the standard of non-dominance is not emphasized in the agency's policy pronouncements and procedural manuals."

"In actual operation, information necessary for a determination of this question is obtained in an indirect and haphazard manner."

Brownell said as a result of this system SBA investigators are not adequately briefed or prepared to collect necessary facts from business applicants.

Brownell also announced that he is withdrawing anti-trust immunity previously awarded to 13 small business production pools. He said he is doing so because the pools "have shown little disposition to seek defense contracts."

As far as was known, Brown-

SYLVANIA CO. ACQUITTED OF PRICE FIXING CHARGE

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (AP)—Sylvania Electric Co. was acquitted yesterday of charges of price fixing.

The Salem (Mass.) company was the only one of five defendant companies which pleaded not guilty and went to trial. The other four pleaded guilty and were fined $2000 each. A United States district court jury returned its verdict acquitting Sylvania before Judge Julius J. Hoffman.

The five companies were indicted March 3 on charges of violating the anti-trust laws in the fluorescent glass tubing industries. All were accused of increasing prices under agreement. The Government alleged Sylvania, largest of the defendant firms, used its power to carry the others along in the agreement.

'NO BASIS' FOR CHARGING WOMAN POISONED BOYS

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 11 (AP)—The district attorney's office found "no basis whatsoever" for charging Mrs. Mary Moss Falcon with murder in the death of two small boys.

The woman walked out of jail last night after posting a $2500 bond in an unrelated aggravated battery case. She denied that she had anything to do with the deaths of the two Baughman boys, William, 7 years old, and Lawrence, 6.

Police arrested her Monday night when she returned to the tenement house where the Baughman boys lived with their parents and five sisters in a single room.

The boys died Oct. 31 in Charity Hospital a few hours after they were taken from the tenement on complaint of neighbors, who said the children rooted for food in garbage cans and begged meals door to door. The coroner's office class-sified their deaths as accidental poisoning.

Homicide detectives found roach poison in Mrs. Falcon's room and contended she had vowed to "get even somehow" because Mrs. Helen Baughman, the boys' mother, ripped her blouse in a quarrel.

Justice Emilio Del Toro Dies. SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico, Nov. 11 (UP)—Emilio del Toro, former president of Puerto Rico's Supreme Court, died last night at the age of 79. He was retired and had suffered from cancer the last 11 years. He was an active member of the island's Republican Statehood party.

Another Volume of New Catholic Translation of Old Testament

It Contains Seven Books in More Modern English, Renames Ecclesiasticus and Drops 'Thee' and 'Thou.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Roman Catholic officials have prepared a new English translation of seven more books of the Old Testament.

The translation goes "back to more reliable sources" and uses more modern English than the Douay version for English-speaking Catholics, the National Catholic Welfare Conference announced yesterday.

One change is a renaming of Ecclesiasticus the book of Sirach. The books of Sirach and Wisdom do not appear in the Protestant version of the Bible.

The other books translated, as part of a project begun in 1944 to cover the whole Bible, include Job, Psalms, Proverbs, Ecclesiastes and Canticle of Canticles (known to Protestants as the Song of Solomon).

This passage from the book of Proverbs in the new translation is a sample of the language change from the Douay-Rheims Bible, used since the seventeenth century.

Old: "As he that taketh a dog by the ears, so is he that passeth by in anger and meddles with another man's quarrel."

New: "Like the man who seizes a passing dog by the ears, he who meddles in a quarrel not his own."

The new translation takes advantage of advancements in scientific "textual description, improved knowledge of Hebrew and related dialects and manuscript discoveries as late as 1931, the announcement said.

For one thing, the new translation drops the obsolete "thee," "thou," "hath" and "hast" and turns to contemporary usage.

The project is being directed by the Confraternity of Christian Doctrine, under the Episcopal chairmanship of the Most Rev. Edwin V. O'Hara, Archbishop of Kansas City. Several members of the Catholic Biblical Association of America were responsible for translation and editing.

The new volume is the second of the five-volume edition to be published, although it is Volume III of the series.

The announcement said it was decided to issue Volume III out of order because work was farther along than on Volume II.

Volume I was issued in 1952. It contained the first eight books of the Bible.

RUSSIANS CLAIM A DRUG BETTER THAN PENICILLIN

LONDON, Nov. 11 (UP)—A new antibiotic claimed to be more effective than penicillin was described in the British Medical Journal today by a Russian scientist.

Dr. G. P. Gause, deputy director of the Institute for Antibiotic Research of Medical Sciences in Moscow, reported that in tests extending from 1952 the new substance, albomycin had:

Proved effective in treatment of pneumonia, especially in young children; in the septic complications of dysentery and measles, and in meningitis due to penicillin-resistant pneumococci.

It has also been used with good effect, he said, in the treatment of peritonitis and other surgical infections, and for penicillin-resistant prostatitis and urethritis due to Gonorrhea.

The Journal said it hoped Russia would make some of the albomycin available to British doctors to study here. Dr. Gause is among a party of Soviet physicians visiting Britain.

TENNESSEE BAPTISTS END SEGREGATION IN COLLEGES

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Nov. 11 (AP)—Trustees of Tennessee's four Baptist-supported schools were authorized yesterday to admit students of "all races" from now on. The step was taken in a resolution approved by the 2000 messengers (delegates) to the eighty-first annual meeting of the Tennessee Baptist convention.

Schools affected are Union University of Jackson, Belmont College at Nashville, Carson-Newman College at Jefferson City and Harrison-Chilhowee Academy in Sevier county. They are now all-white schools.

The resolution was passed without a dissenting vote. It originated at the recent Baptist Students Union convention in Clarksville, Tenn., attended by 500 high school and college students.

Italian Movie Pioneer Dies. TURIN, Italy, Nov. 11 (AP)—Giovanni Casaglie, 75 years old, director and actor in the first Italian motion picture film "Cabiria," died here today.

"Cabiria" was filmed in 1913 and 1914.

BIG-STORE SALES INCREASE 12 PCT. OVER YEAR AGO

St. Louis area department stores sales increased 12 per cent in dollar volume last week compared with the corresponding week a year ago, the Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis reported today.

For the four-week period ended last Saturday, St. Louis area department store sales increased 11 per cent over those of the corresponding period in 1954. Cumulative sales since Jan. 1 were up 7 per cent in dollar volume over the same 1954 period.

Dollar volume of sales rose 7 per cent in the Eighth Federal Reserve District as a whole last week over the similar period a year ago and were 8 per cent higher in the four weeks ending Saturday over a year ago.

Nationally, department store sales were 1 per cent higher last week than in the corresponding week of 1954.

$1,200,000,000 OUTLAY IN 1956 BY STANDARD OIL

Spending by Jersey Corporation and Related Companies May Set Record.

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (AP)—Standard Oil Co. (New Jersey), biggest oil company in the world, announced plans yesterday for what may be the biggest one-year capital spending program ever undertaken by an industrial firm.

Next year, Chairman Eugene Holman said, the worldwide companies in which Jersey Standard has an interest will lay $1,200,000,000 on the line for oil exploration and capital improvements.

That's 20 per cent more than the Jersey Standard companies will have expended in 1955.

"Decisions underlying the projected figure reflect our confidence in the economic outlook," said Holman.

One billion 100 million will be expended by companies directly affiliated with Jersey Standard. An additional 100 million will be spent by companies in which Jersey has an interest of one-half or less.

Of the one billion 100 million to be spent by the affiliated companies, about one half will go toward looking for and producing crude oil. One fourth is earmarked for refining and the rest for marketing and transportation. Included in the total are funds for the construction of 14 new super-tankers in addition to 27 now being built.

Eighty-five per cent of the total will be spent in the Western hemisphere and 15 per cent elsewhere, chiefly in Europe. Roughly 43 per cent will be expended in the United States and 42 per cent in other Western Hemisphere countries, notably Canada and Venezuela.

Behind the vast outlay, Holman said, is rising consumer demand for oil. "No major financing" is planned in connection with the capital spending program.

CHRYSLER CORP.'S 5-YEAR PROGRAM

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—L. L. Colbert, president of Chrysler Corp., announced yesterday a billion-dollar five-year expansion program but said even that probably would not be sufficient to fill expanding demands for new cars.

In a speech to the National Press Club, Colbert estimated that in the years ahead the automobile industry will have to build 4,000,000 or 5,000,000 cars every year "just to replace those that are scrapped."

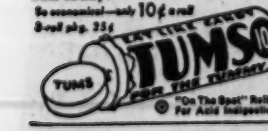

And we are going to be working full time," he said, "to supply the increasing demand from people who will be buying cars for the first time and those who will buy second and third cars to make life more enjoyable."

He said the automobile industry underestimated the market for the 8,000,000 cars being built and sold this year. Asked whether the industry plans mass production of economy-size cars, Colbert said so long as the public demands "big, fancy cars, that's what they'll get."

END TO FEDERAL NEWSBAR URGED BY INQUIRY HEAD

House Group Chairman Says Need for Legislation Is Shown — Hearings Recess.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—A House subcommittee investigating Government information policies has recessed its hearing until January with chairman John E. Moss (Dem.), California, calling for "a breaking down of many existing barriers to the free circulation of facts, opinions and ideas."

Moss said yesterday, at the end of four days of hearings, that testimony taken so far demonstrates a "clear need for new legislation" to flatten such barriers.

Moss, who heads a Government operations subcommittee, said it is "evident that non-security information has been withheld... which should not have been withheld."

Moss said that in some federal agencies which the subcommittee checked information regulations were overly restrictive. He also said it was found some of these regulations ran counter to the general information policy statements of the agencies where they were in force.

The subcommittee chairman spoke of "exaggerated claims of authority to withhold information based on 'inherent' powers stemming from the presidency."

"There are indications that some officials in Washington today believe they have authority to exercise presidential powers without the President's authorization or his prior knowledge or even subsequent review of their acts," he said.

Many agencies have cited as grounds for withholding information authority derived from the separation of powers under the Constitution.

Frequently cited is President Eisenhower's May 17, 1954, letter to Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson telling Wilson to withhold any information from Congress regarding conversations between officials in the executive branch. The letter was directed at the Senate Army-McCarthy investigation.

"Some of the regulations which the subcommittee has reviewed indicate that virtually unlimited discretion, of questionable legal status, is sometimes passed down departmental hierarchies to subordinates," Moss said.

"It appears evident that non-security information has been withheld from the public which should not have been withheld," he said. Agencies have "misapplied" laws to keep information secret, he said.

Sigma Delta Chi Says Right to Know Is Violated.

CHICAGO, Nov. 11 (UP)—Delegates to the convention of Sigma Delta Chi, national journalistic fraternity, adopted a resolution yesterday, charging "the worst abridgement of the American's right to know about Federal Government in the 168 years of the American experiment in freedom."

The resolution blamed politicians, big Government and an apathetic press and public.

Such major news stories as the comparative air power of the United States and Russia, the danger of atomic fallout, the Salk polio vaccine and the Dixon-Yates power contract were shrouded by "political propaganda and secrecy at the source," the resolution said.

Despite the millions of words printed during the year on these stories, the resolution said, "it is doubtful that the American people received the true picture even though their tax money—and their very lives are at stake."

Newspapers were called upon to "smash this on page one" until the paper curtain is lifted and to "go far beyond the call of duty in taking the full story to the people."

The resolution said "American free government as we know it" along with freedom of the press, is at stake.

In a speech before the convention last night, Roy W. Howard, chairman of the Scripps-Howard Newspapers, said newspapers play a key role in keeping the United States strong and free.

However, he said, news men must let the public know the facts of journalism's "contribution to every phase of our national progress."

1. A fight for public acceptance of a professional status for journalists.
2. A drive to have the word "journalist" substituted for the word "newspaperman."
3. A determination to restore idealism, imagination and pride to journalism.

2 POLICEMEN HALT THEFT ATTEMPT, ONE HURT IN CHASE

An attempted burglary at a cleaning establishment at 2839 Madison street was halted early today by two police officers.

Patrolmen Oscar Fantroy and Roy Miller saw a man attempting to pry loose the bars of a window and attempted to slip up on him. The burglar fled north in Glasgow avenue to an alley. Fantroy fired two shots in the air and two shots at the man, apparently failing to hit him.

The man jumped into an automobile with an accomplice waiting at the wheel, and they sped east in the alley to Leffingwell. Patrolman Miller fell and injured his right knee in the chase. He was treated at Homer Phillips Hospital.

Wrong Diagnosis. STORRS, Conn. (UP)—After being hustled onto an operating table, a University of Connecticut student finally managed to explain that all he wanted was treatment of a minor hand injury. The red stain on his shirt, he added, was strawberry flavoring from the university's ice cream department.

BENSON CHANGES MIND, NOW BACKS 'SOIL BANK' PLAN

Administration Will Propose Paying Farmers to Take Land Out of Production.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (UP)—The Eisenhower Administration will propose a "soil bank" plan to Congress next year for retiring millions of surplus-producing acres from crop production, it was learned today.

Details have not been settled yet. But an official said flatly: "We will have a soil bank plan." He said he had 17 different programs on his desk for such a plan.

Most versions of the plan have this much in common: Farmers would contract with the Government to take a specified amount of land out of crop production. They would plant the fields to grass or other soil-building plants and carry out approved conservation practices in return for payments partially covering the lost crop income and the cost of planting.

Farm organizations backing the proposal say it would result in "banking" fertility in the soil for future needs instead of storing the same fertility, in the form of surplus crops, in Government warehouses.

The decision to bring a soil bank plan to Congress represents an about-face for the Department of Agriculture, headed by Ezra T. Benson. A few months ago it was frowning on the idea in official reports to congressional committees.

The plan would probably cost too much and be difficult to administer, Under Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse of St. Louis wrote at the time.

But the Senate Agriculture Committee has found widespread support for the plan in its current series of coast-to-coast "grass roots" farm hearings. Committee members, including Chairman Allen J. Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), called it a likely solution to the problem of boosting farm income without adding to surpluses which have depressed farm prices.

The number of acres farmers retire from crops will probably depend on how high Congress sets payments under the program, the official said. He said there has been no decision on the size of payments to be recommended by the Agriculture Department.

The department's proposal will probably recommend paying farmers the cost of turning crop land to grass, plus whatever additional payment Administration planners decide on, the official said. Current thinking also calls for land retirement contracts running "several years."

State Department Criticized at Farm Hearing.

ALEXANDRIA, La., Nov. 11 (UP)—Continued sharp blasts at State Department policies which farm leaders charged are "seriously hurting" the American farmer highlighted the final session yesterday of the Senate Agriculture Committee's hearings here.

Senator James O. Eastland (Dem., Mississippi), said it is "a national scandal" that the State Department has prevented Japan and the Philippines from purchasing American rice.

Rice and tung oil producers appeared today before the committee, which is conducting a nationwide series of hearings at the "grass root" level on the problems of the American farmer.

The criticism of the State Department was the only thing that witnesses agreed on. Suggestions to the committee ranged from no support prices at all to "let's support all farm products."

H. T. Chalkley of Lake Charles, chairman of the rice commodity committee of the Louisiana Farm Bureau, cited instances of what he called State Department interference to keep Japan and the Philippines from purchasing American rice.

He also said the United States armed forces had requested rice growers to increase production in 1953 and then did not buy the rice.

"This fact contributed greatly to the current surplus of rice," he said.

George Shannon, associate editor of Tung Oil magazine, charged that the Commodity Credit Corporation is buying more Tung Oil from Argentina than that country is able to produce.

Senator Allen J. Ellender (Dem., Louisiana), chairman of the committee, asked where the remainder of the oil was coming from.

Louie Chenel of Covington, La., president of the Tung Growers Association, replied "from Red China." He apparently meant that Red China's Tung Oil is finding its way into the United States via Argentina.

SEEKS PERU MINE RIOTING INQUIRY, AMERICAN HOSTAGE

LIMA, Nov. 11 (AP)—A Peruvian Senator yesterday asked for a congressional investigation of recent disorders at the American-owned Northern Peru Mining Co. in which the American manager, Gideon Fisher, was reported to have been forced to ride a donkey and to stuff his mouth with coca leaves.

Senator Tudela Lavalle said troops were sent to the place, in Quiruvilca Department to restore order.

He told the Senate his reports were that large groups of workers and women had taken Fisher as a "hostage" in an effort to obtain freedom of some employees arrested for theft.

THOUSANDS SWING TO DECAF COFFEE FOR STEADIER NERVES AND BETTER SLEEP

Who'd ever dream coffee so good could be as good to you as Decaf Instant Coffee! You can drink this full-strength coffee to your heart's content—morning, noon and night—without a bit of caffeine worry. Decaf leaves your nerves steady, lets you relax better and sleep better, too. For Decaf is 97% caffeine free. It brings you a new feeling of well-being. With Decaf, you no longer have to count the cups of coffee you drink. So if you love good coffee—full-strength coffee—new Instant Decaf is the coffee for you.

Decaf Proclaimed a Wonderful Breakfast-till-Bedtime Coffee

"Being a cab driver, I love lots of good coffee," says Mr. Ted M. Czelusnick of 1840 W. 47th St., Cleveland, Ohio. "But too much coffee made my nerves jittery until I started drinking Decaf. Decaf's he-man flavor made a big hit with me right off the bat. I can drink as many cups as I want now—Decaf lets my nerves relax. My little wife deserves the credit—she found Decaf!"

"I enjoy every cupful," says Mrs. Charles Knowles of 1540 S.W. 12th Ave., Miami, Fla. "As a mother and a housewife, I'm kept pretty busy. I had to cut down on coffee because too much caffeine gave me nervous indigestion. My friends have noticed I no longer complain. For now, with Decaf, I enjoy as many cups of coffee as I want... without the caffeine that put my tummy on edge."

"Its flavor is great!" says Mr. Sherwood Hughes, business man, of 564 S. Harrison, Kirkwood, Mo. "I've always wanted a caffeine-free coffee that gave me the full coffee flavor I like. Now at last I've found new Instant Decaf. It's really full-strength coffee that doesn't bother me. It's swell to be able to enjoy good coffee and later, be able to sleep like a baby, too!"

"Now I can drink lots of good coffee and feel better, too!" That's what Captain "Red" Miller, a Chief Pilot of TWA International Constellation, has to say about Decaf. If you, too, are one of those people who need steady nerves on the job, and a good night's sleep, like Captain Miller, remember you can get them with Decaf. Decaf gives you full coffee joy and no caffeine nerves.

PERSONAL NOTICE: Ellen—Please come home. I'm a new man now. No more fits of temper... no nerves on edge—and I'm sleeping better, too, since I discovered Decaf! Love, George.

FIRST FULL-STRENGTH COFFEE THAT'S CAFFEIN FREE

People by the hundreds of thousands are happily discovering that Decaf Instant Coffee is real "he-man" coffee. Decaf gives full coffee enjoyment without the ill effects of caffeine. Caffeine contributes nothing to the flavor of coffee. It can be the cause of nervous unrest.

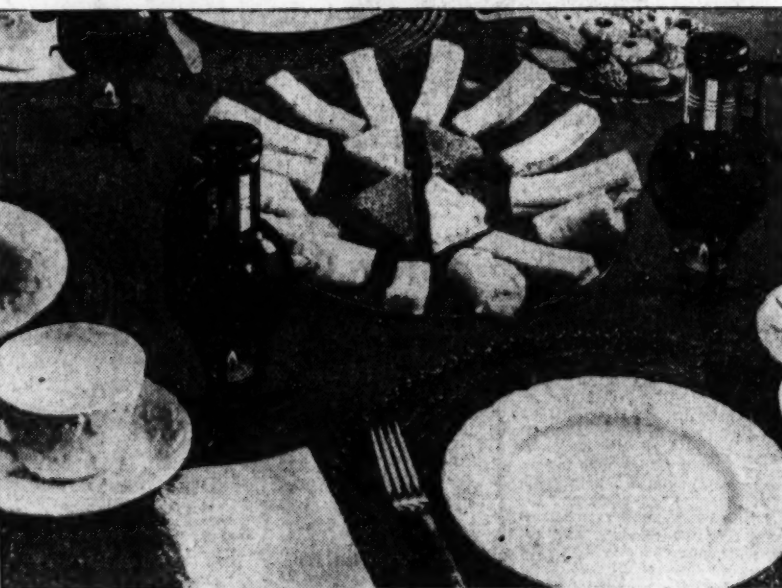

Decaf can give you heart-warming flavor in every cup because the Nestlé Company, world's foremost roasters of coffee, discovered the way to remove caffeine from Decaf BEFORE ROASTING. It's the roasting that brings out the flavor in coffee. By removing the caffeine before roasting, Decaf keeps full-strength flavor from roasting time till coffee time.

So now thousands of people are enjoying full-strength coffee they can drink to their hearts' content—and work better, play better, and sleep better.

LEADING STORES FEATURE DECAF PREMIUM OFFER

Right now, leading grocery stores throughout the city are featuring special Decaf displays. For a limited time, Decaf is offering an individual coffee server as a premium to introduce this new product to even more coffee lovers.

New Decaf Instant Coffee Provides Full Coffee Enjoyment—Without Caffein

Revolutionary New Process Takes Caffein Out, Leaves Flavor In!

At last... here is a new instant coffee that gives all of the satisfaction a fine cup of coffee can provide, yet imparts none of the nervous jitters ordinary coffees sometimes cause. This sensational new coffee is called Decaf Instant Coffee and it's made by a revolutionary Swiss process that removes 97% of the caffeine but leaves in 100% of the roaster-richness of the world's choice coffees.

With Decaf, everyone can now enjoy as much coffee as they want, without caffeine worry. No more need to count the number of cups of coffee they drink. Coffee lovers everywhere find they can drink Decaf all day—from breakfast till bedtime—and not be concerned about the jitteriness and general upset caffeine can cause.

For steadier nerves—new feeling of well-being, remember new Decaf Instant Coffee—the full-strength coffee that is 97% caffeine free.

KIDNAPER RULED INSANE

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 11 (AP) — Betty Jean Benedicto will go to a state mental institution instead of standing trial for the kidnapping of a 2-day-old boy from a hospital here.

The Stockton (Calif.) woman was declared insane yesterday by Judge John B. Molinari. She confessed she took the infant Sept. 19. Nine days later she telephoned the father, Dr. Sanford Marcus, to come to Stockton and get his son.

$1,000,000 BUILDING FOR BROTHERHOOD IS DEDICATED

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (UPI) — A $1,000,000 "building for brotherhood," a gift of the Ford Motor Co. fund, was dedicated today by the National Conference of Christians and Jews in ceremonies at Carnegie Hall.

The eight-story building will be the new home of the National Conference and several associated groups.

Dr. Ralph J. Bunche, Under Secretary General of the United Nations, presided at the dedication exercises. Others who participated included Brig. Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Philippines Ambassador to the United States, and William Clay Ford, a vice president of the motor company who handed over the keys to the new building.

In presenting the keys to Roger Straus, an industrialist and national co-chairman of the conference, Ford said the motor company fund was "most happy... we have been able to play a small part in the important work you have undertaken and which has grown during the past 27 years to such worldwide effectiveness."

3 EAST SIDE TAVERN OWNERS FINED ON PINBALL TAX CHARGE

Three East Side tavern owners pleaded guilty to evading federal taxes on pinball machines and were fined by United States District Judge Charles G. Briggie at Springfield yesterday.

Marshall J. Zack, owner of Zack's Circle Bar, near Belleville, was fined $200 and ordered to pay $500 in taxes and a $250 penalty. Chris and Gus Georges, owners of the C. T. Restaurant, 318 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, were fined a total of $200 and ordered to pay $500 in taxes and penalties. Maximum penalty is a year in jail and $10,000 fine. The charges resulted from raids by United States Treasury agents last month.

MORE EX-G.M. DEALERS ASK TO TELL TROUBLES

But Auto Firm Officials Say It's a Case of 'Poverty With a Ham Under Your Arm.'

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP) — The Senate Anti-trust subcommittee is still receiving requests from former General Motors car dealers who want to testify in the current G.M. hearings, a subcommittee employee said today.

In some cases their connection with the big auto corporation was severed only recently, he said.

The hearings, started this week, are in recess until Tuesday.

Dealers' complaints are one topic which acting chairman Joseph O'Mahoney (Dem.), Wyoming, of the subcommittee has promised to explore thoroughly, but no time has been set for testimony on these.

One top G.M. executive indicated clearly at yesterday's session the corporation was ready to meet charges by dealers.

'Tough Situation.' O'Mahoney said a number of dealers had told him of "the tough situation" they faced.

Henry M. Hogan, vice president and general counsel of General Motors, replied: "Why don't you ask them how much they've made in the last five years to see if they're crying wolf? That's poverty with a ham under your arm."

Harold L. Hamilton, retired G.M. vice president, commented that "I think they (the dealers) ought to be able to live off their fat for a while."

Hamilton, first G.M. witness to appear in the hearings, entered a vigorous rebuttal to testimony from competing firms that the corporation got an unfair advantage in its diesel locomotive sales out of a World War II Government order.

The order allocated production of diesel over-the-road locomotives to G.M. in the war, but gave most of the output of diesel switchers and steam engines to other companies.

Since the war, United States railroads have converted almost entirely to diesels. The subcommittee has produced figures to show G.M. currently is producing 76 per cent of them.

Hamilton, former head of the division which made the diesels, said "I take exception" to any argument that G.M. gained its position through "artificial conditions."

Figures Produced. He and Hogan produced figures that G.M. sold 67 per cent of all diesel locomotives in the country in 1940, fifty-seven per cent in 1941, fifty-three per cent in 1942, forty per cent in 1943, fifty per cent in 1944, fifty-one per cent in 1945, and 55 per cent in 1946.

"They (other firms) had a sheltered position in switchers, just as we had in road locomotives," Hamilton said.

"The success of General Motors (in the diesel field)," Hamilton declared, "has resulted from advanced engineering and planning, planning that sometimes ran six to seven years ahead of sales, and to high efficiency in production."

Hamilton said General Motors became the world's biggest producer of diesel-electric locomotives by the 1930 purchase of two small companies which had "come to the end of the road" of economic power.

By the United Press.

Six Years in the Red. Hamilton said G.M. went into the railway engine market in 1930 but didn't get out of the red until six years later with a money-saving switcher. Because the depression was still felt then and many railroads had neither cash nor credit, Hamilton said he sold locomotives with no down payment.

In fact, he said, he had a deal whereby a railroad agreed to make a big investment could rent a locomotive. It was free to return the engine at any time. But if it paid the rent for three years it could buy the locomotive for $1.

BRITAIN'S EXPORTS REACH RECORD HIGH FOR MONTH

LONDON, Nov. 11 (AP) — Britain's exports hit a new monthly record high of £2,885,100,000 ($750,680,000) in October, the government's board of trade reported last night.

It was especially good news for Britain worried that setbacks in international trade might hit their standard of living. The total was 13½ per cent above the average figure for the first nine months of 1955.

Imports were up, too—4 per cent more than the monthly average—reaching £2,333,500,000 ($633,800,000). But the gap between exports and imports was well down on the average.

PUNISHMENT FITS THE CRIME; GIRL CAN'T WATCH TV

FLINT, Mich., Nov. 11 (AP)—A 12-year-old girl was forbidden by court order yesterday to watch television, unless the program first has been approved by her family. She also was forbidden to use the telephone without specific permission of her parents.

That's because she said she got the idea for threatening a schoolmate's life by telephone from watching television.

Probate Judge William Doran turned her over to her family, ending a four-day stay in a juvenile detention home.

A caller threatened the life of John Baker Jr., 12, son of Municipal Judge John Baker, four times in telephone calls last Friday and Saturday. Once the caller demanded $2000, then said, "Forget it, I'll see you at his funeral."

Police finally traced the calls to a girl schoolmate of young Baker's who said she was angry because John had laughed at her when their teacher asked her a question she couldn't answer but he could and did.

STRATTON ASKS JUSTICE DEPT. TO ENTER TILL CASE

Requests Brownell to Investigate Killing of Chicago Negro in Mississippi.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP)—Gov. William G. Stratton yesterday requested the Federal Government to make an investigation of the Emmett Till case in Mississippi.

Stratton's announcement came a day after the Leflore county grand jury refused to indict two white men on charges of kidnapping the 14-year-old Chicago Negro.

In a letter to Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr., Stratton said:

"As Governor of Illinois, I would like to call your attention to the disposition of the Emmett Till case in Leflore county, Greenwood, Mississippi.

Emmett Till, a citizen of Illinois, was abducted and brutally murdered. It now appears that those responsible for this tragic crime are not being brought to justice.

"As Governor of this state, I feel it my duty to respectfully request the United States Government, through your office, to investigate the violation of the rights of this Illinois citizen in another state."

"Somebody Should Pay," Stratton told reporters that he didn't believe the case should be dropped "at this point. Somebody murdered that boy and should pay for it."

"We have a responsibility here in Illinois to protect our citizens," he said. "It is clearly within our duty to ask for an investigation and clearly within the province of the Federal Government to make an investigation."

In another development, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People called on the Justice Department "to enter the case actively."

Seeks FBI Help.

Roy Wilkins, executive secretary of the association, wired Brownell that since the jurors in the trial based their verdict on the claim that the body recovered from the Tallahatchie river was not that of Till, then "the clear presumption is that his (Till's) kidnapers have carried him across a state boundary bringing the case within the jurisdiction of the Federal Bureau of Investigation under the Lindbergh Act."

J. W. Milam and his half-brother, Roy Bryant, were acquitted of Till's murder in Mississippi's Tallahatchie county, where a body was found.

The refusal to indict the two men for kidnapping was in Leflore, the neighboring county in which Till allegedly had been kidnapped.

SEVILLE CARDINAL
STRIPPED OF DUTIESControversial Prelate Relieved of Responsibilities by Pope.

SEVILLE, Spain, Nov. 11 (AP)—Authoritative sources say Cardinal Pedro Segura y Saenz has been relieved of all duties within the Seville archbishopric of Spain by Pope Pius XII.

The sources said yesterday a papal bull transferred the responsibilities of the archbishopric from the 75-year-old cardinal to Archbishop-Coadjutor Jose Maria Bueno y Monreal as apostolic administrator of the Holy See.

The reason for the Vatican action was not stated.

The cardinal has been a controversial figure in Spanish political life. The archbishop-coadjutor was appointed a year ago during a period in the archbishopric when attacks on high church prelates and the Spanish government were attributed to the cardinal. He served as administrator when the cardinal was ill last spring of a heart ailment and uremia.

Cardinal Segura has criticized the government from time to time for not adopting a tougher stand against Protestants in Spain. He also took a stand in a pastoral letter against the "aid-for-bases" agreements with the United States, saying they would throw Spain open to a flood of Protestant propagandists.

Road to Tibet Opened.

BIGGEST NARCOTICS HAUL, HEROIN IS PUT AT $10,000,000

MONTREAL, Nov. 11 (UP)—Police last night seized nearly 31 pounds of heroin aboard a French freighter. They said it was the biggest narcotics haul in North American history.

The heroin would have brought at least $10,000,000 on the underground drug market after being adulterated for sale to addicts, a Royal Canadian Mounted Police spokesman said.

The heroin was contained in 14 one-kilogram plastic-covered canvas bags hidden in the ceiling of a crew member's cabin aboard the French line freighter St. Malo.

A crewman, identified as fireman Robert Bianchi Maliverno, 30 years old, a French citizen, was arrested on narcotics possession charges.

Royal Canadian Mounted Police teamed with agents of the United States Bureau of Narcotics, New York, and the United States Treasury attaché's office here in an international investigation that led to the St. Malo, which also was carrying a cargo of foreign-made automobiles and champagne.

BRITISH AIR VICE MARSHAL
NAMED TO TWO NATO POSTS

PARIS, Nov. 11 (UP)—The North Atlantic Treaty Organization today announced the appointment of British Air Vice Marshal Sir Bryan V. Reynolds to two posts.

Reynolds was named Allied maritime commander in chief, Channel Command, and air commander in chief, eastern Atlantic area of the Supreme Allied Atlantic Command.

Reynolds, presently deputy commander in chief for air in the Mediterranean, will assume both posts next March or April.

Catching Cold? TAKE BUFFERIN!

WON'T UPSET YOUR STOMACH

Here's why

1. Medical science knows that a pain reliever must go through the stomach and into the blood stream to relieve pain.

2. Bufferin combines aspirin with two antacid ingredients. These speed the pain reliever out of the stomach and into the blood stream twice as fast as aspirin. So...

3. Bufferin acts twice as fast as aspirin to relieve pain. And it won't upset your stomach as aspirin often does.

Ask your own doctor about Bufferin's remarkable ability to relieve pain, about its freedom from harmful ingredients.

8 years of medical research in hospitals and clinics have established Bufferin's effectiveness and speed of action. Bufferin has met the rigid tests a doctor demands of medicines in his own practice.

NOTE: BUFFERIN was first made available to the medical and dental professions in October, 1948. Since then, EACH YEAR, HUNDREDS OF THOUSANDS OF PEOPLE have switched from aspirin to BUFFERIN for faster relief of pain without stomach upset.

Most people take two tablets as the usual dose

3 GEORGIANS RESIGN IN NEGRO VOTE CASE

Officials Protest Against Court Decision Favoring 22 Plaintiffs.

CUTHBERT, Ga., Nov. 11 (AP)—Cuthbert County's three vote registrars have resigned in protest against a federal court verdict awarding $880 in damages to 22 Negro residents on a complaint that they were unjustly deprived of voting rights.

R. S. Banks, C. C. Martin and J. W. Lay tendered their resignations yesterday to Superior Court Judge Walter I. Geer, suggesting that the grand jury at the current court term might submit names of successors. The judge appoints the registrars on jury recommendations.

The three complained that they had been "harassed, worried and brought into federal court . . . despite that the acts charged against them were done in complete good faith."

A warning by counsel for the Negroes that similar suits may be brought in behalf of other Negroes, the registrars added, constitutes a continuing menace, threat and intimidation.

Such a situation, they declared, hangs over them as a menace "should they examine the qualifications of any person as a voter."

The court judgment, delivered at nearby Columbus, Ga., Sept. 20, directed that the $880 damages be paid equally by Banks, chairman of the board of registrars, and Martin, a member. Lay, two county commissioners and the mayor of Cuthbert originally were named in the suit but were dropped during the trial.

The 22 Negroes had sought damages of $10,000 each or $220,000 in all. The award of $40 each was made by a jury after United States district Judge W. A. Butte had directed a verdict of guilty against Banks and Martin on charges of conspiring to deprive the defendants of their voting rights.

But the judge rejected a claim that the action of the registrars was aimed at Negroes as a class.

Atlanta attorney Dan Duke, who represented the 22 plaintiffs, charged that 403 other Negroes had been purged from this south Georgia county's voting lists. He demanded that they be restored and said he would bring other suits if they were not.

ANOTHER ATOMIC TEST BLAST SET OFF BY RUSSIANS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11 (AP)—Russia has set off another atomic test blast.

This was announced yesterday both here and in London. The United States Atomic Energy Commission said the Soviet Union has "in recent days conducted a further nuclear test" in its 1955 series. A British defense ministry announcement was similarly phrased.

Neither announcement indicated the nature of the Russian test—whether it involved atomic or hydrogen devices.

British sources said the new Russian series began just after the July summit conference at Geneva where leaders of the Big Four met to seek ways of easing world tensions.

The AEC reported Sept. 24 that the Russians had set off another nuclear explosion "indicating a continuation of their tests of nuclear weapons."

Dr. Ralph E. Lapp, director of the Nuclear Science Service which he established in Washington to act as a consultant to industry on atomic energy, said on Oct. 28 that there had been more than 12 atomic detonations in Russia in the last 13 months.

KIRKWOOD REPEALS LAW MAKING 2 STREETS ONE-WAY

An ordinance making Dougherty Ferry road an east-bound one-way street and Essex avenue a west-bound one-way street, west of Geyer road in Kirkwood, was repealed last night by the city council after it received petitions with more than 1000 signatures objecting to the ordinance.

Mayor William Berthold said the ordinance was originally passed to protect children walking to and from the new Kirkwood High School at 801 West Essex avenue. Residents of the area pointed out that the only congestion arises during morning and evening peak hours and that by making the streets one-way traffic was more congested and the danger to children was increased.

The council also gave first reading to an ordinance for the installation of sidewalks on West Essex and Dougherty Ferry from Geyer west to Chopin street as a protection for children at the high school and Keyser School.

Algerian Rebels Break Jail.

CONSTANTINE, Algeria, Nov. 11 (AP)—Eleven Algerian terrorists, including Mustapha Ben Bouaid who headed rebel forces in the Aurès Mountains, escaped from Constantine jail yesterday.

A twelfth man broke his leg in jumping from the wall and was recaptured.

REPORTS 70 PCT. OF NEGROES IN JOBS BELOW SKILL STATUS

About 70 per cent of the Negroes here who have training in a craft are not given jobs commensurate with their training, Irvin Sobel, associate professor of economics at Washington University, said last night in an address at Louderman Hall auditorium on the campus.

A study made of 2000 Negroes here showed that the lay-off rate during a period of economic decline is three times greater than that of white employees, Sobel said. Gains by Negroes in education and craft training "greatly exceed those in occupational attachment, creating a dangerous situation in the Negro community among the more educated and skilled," he said.

Little evidence of segregation in jobs was found, but the wages of the average Negro today still do not equal those paid the average white worker in 1950, Sobel said. His talk was the second in a series sponsored by the university on community problems and social science research.

SIX TEEN-AGERS KILLED WHEN TRAIN HITS AUTO

PLATO, Minn., Nov. 11 (UP)—Six teen-agers were killed last night when a Milwaukee road streamliner smashed into their car at a crossing.

Four of the dead were boys and two were girls. State police identified the victims as Maurice Olson, 14 years old, his sister, Carrie, 16, Milton Brjle, and Margaret Fuller, 16, all of Plato; and Robert Luedtke, 18, and Roger Fraundienst, 17, both of New Auburn.

Train crewmen said they first saw the car when the locomotive was 30 yards from the crossing. The crossing has no warning signals. Light rain was falling at the time.

The streamliner, No. 5, traveling about 70 miles an hour, was en route from Minneapolis to Aberdeen, S.D.

INTERNATIONAL SHOE CO., UNIONS TO MEET MONDAY

International Shoe Co. officials and representatives of 17,000 AFL and CIO employees on strike against the company will meet Monday at 2 p.m., A. E. Johnson of the Federal Conciliation Service said today.

The meeting will be held in the Conciliation Service offices in the old Federal Building at Eighth and Olive streets.

Nine thousand employees of the Brown Shoe Co. are also on strike. No negotiation sessions have been scheduled in that pay dispute.

Young, formative years . . . so sensitive to influences for right and wrong. This is the time when the good deeds of scouting build good character and good citizenship. Through your One Gift you help children enjoy the character-building activities scouting offers. Through your One Gift you help build today's youth . . . make tomorrow's men and women.

Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts are among the 114 agencies supported by your ONE GIFT . . . FOR ALL through United Fund. Let your heart make your gift a generous one. Let the payroll plan where you work make it easy to give generously.

Your gift through United Fund helps these 114 agencies to save and rebuild broken lives . . . Community Chest (now includes 109 agencies) • American Red Cross (St. Louis and Webster Groves Chapters and flood relief) • United Cerebral Palsy Association • Associated Hospitals (Christian Hospital, Deaconess Hospital, Missouri Baptist Hospital) • St. Louis Association for Retarded Children • St. Louis Diabetes Association.

CARDS TO HAVE 40 EARLY BIRDS AT ST. PETE FEB. 12

LANE TO TAKE GOOD LOOK AT YOUNG STARS AND OTHERS

Party major and minor league players will be invited to the Cardinals' early spring training camp opening Feb. 12 at St. Petersburg, Fla. General Manager Frank Lane announced today.

The official opening date for spring training under baseball rules is March 1, but players may accept an invitation to report earlier for special instruction and conditioning.

The group of 40 will include Pitchers Frank Smith, Stu Miller, Larry Jackson and Andy Johnson, and infielders Don Blasingame and Dick Schofield.

Two Purposes for Camp

"We're serving two purposes with this early camp," Lane said. "First of all, it gives the rookies and minor league players a better chance to make the big league team. Second, it gives them a chance to get a good look at all the young Cardinals players and our top minor league prospects."

Blasingame said he was anxious to get a good look at all the young Cardinals players and our top minor league prospects. "We want to explore fully all the players in our own organization who have any kind of chance to make the major leagues in 1956," Blasingame said. "Many major league players have been coming to the Cardinals camp in the past."

Two Catching Prospects

"Dick Rader and Hal Smith, two young Cardinals catchers, will be invited because we feel that position needs strengthening," Lane said. "Pitcher Frank Smith is recovering from a sore arm that kept him out of last year and we want to give him the chance to condition himself slowly. Shortstop Eddie Kasko and Outfielder Archie Wilson have just recently been acquired and we'll want a good look at them."

Others from the Redbird roster who will be invited to St. Pete early this year but have not been completely recovered from last year's season are Pitcher Ben Flanagan and Outfielder Russell Rice. From the minors will come Jackie Brandt and Allie Clark, right-handed hitting outfielders, and Pitcher Duke Markell, who played with the Browns.

Walsh Named to Captain Illinois In Badger Game

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP)—George Walsh, scrappy 180-pound left guard who was a standout in Illinois' 23-6 upset of Michigan, yesterday was named Illinois captain against Wisconsin tomorrow.

Walsh's defense play kept Wisconsin's attack well bottled in the middle.

The Illinois worked briefly in a drill devoted mainly to a review of assignments for their semifinal Big Ten game with the Hawkeyes.

MADISON, Wis., Nov. 11 (AP)—Wisconsin's football squad was given a tough scrimmage yesterday on defense against Illinois running plays in preparation for its final home game.

Coach Ivy Williamson said he did not expect Charlie Thomas, his big fullback from Evanston, Ill., to start but hoped he could use him at least part of the game. Thomas sprained an ankle in the Northwestern game last Saturday. Glenn Bector of Fossil Du Lac probably will start at fullback.

Dave Howard, an outstanding end from La Crosse before he tore ligaments in a leg three weeks ago, worked out with the squad but is not expected to play Saturday.

Moore Stops Off On Way to Coast

Archie Moore, light heavyweight champion of the world, stopped off here on an automobile trip to Hollywood, Calif., where he has an engagement to appear on television.

Moore continued his journey today after saying he would sail from New York Dec. 1 for his title defense against Rolando Penney, scheduled to be held in London on Jan. 10.

HEY! DUCK HUNTERS!

Temperatures have fallen sharply in Alberta and Saskatchewan and western North Dakota, but mild weather continues elsewhere in north-central areas. Temperatures range from zero to 10 below in Alberta, from 5 above to 6 below in Saskatchewan, 15 to 30 above in Manitoba and from 10 above to the middle 30s in the Northern Plains and Upper Mississippi Valley. Skies are partly cloudy to cloudy, and light snow is falling at scattered places. The only snow of consequence south of the border is in northern Minnesota, depths ranging Demonstrating the bowling form that enabled her to shoot a total of 711 for three games in league play, Wednesday night, is MRS. ROBERT BUCHROEDER, of the Picardi team. Her score is second high for women in the United States this season and was rolled at Arcade Lanes. Mrs. Buchroeder lives at 4403 Rolling drive, Berkeley in St. Louis county.

10,000 Expected to See Kansas 7-Footer in Debut In Frosh Basket Game

LAWRENCE, Kan., Nov. 11 (AP)—Wilt (The Stilt) Chamberlain, an amazing 7-foot Philadelphia high school basketball player, evidently will start breaking records even before he takes his first public shot as a college player.

Chamberlain, whom Phog Allen calls the choicest catch of his long coaching career, makes his debut in the Midlands next week—and attendance records are expected to tumble.

The Negro athlete will play as a freshman in the annual University of Kansas Varsity Freshman basketball game Nov. 18. The game will draw close to 10,000—possibly an all-time national mark for such an event.

Because of interest spurred by Chamberlain, 4000 seats in Kansas' 18,000-capacity field house have been placed on reserve for $1 each. General admission goes for 50 cents. The business office says all reserved seats and a large share of the general admission tickets likely will go before tip-off time.

In recent years, the varsity-freshman game has drawn around 1500.

There's been talk of the tilt since Coach Allen greeted Chamberlain as a Kansas student last September. Allen rates "The Stilt" as even a better prospect than Clyde Lovellette, now a star of the pro Minneapolis Lakers who led Kansas to the N.C.A.A. championship in 1952.

Lopes vs. Costa On TV Tonight

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (UP)—Featherweight contender Carmelo Costa of Brooklyn will let lightweight contender Joey Lopes of Sacramento, Calif., weigh up to 136 pounds tonight and try to beat him again in their return TV-radio 10-rounder at Madison Square Garden. (On KSD-TV and KSD at 9 o'clock, St. Louis time).

Costa, ranked fourth among 126-pound contenders, won a close but unanimous decision over Lopes, eighth-rated lightweight, at the Garden March 18 after an excellent fight in which each suffered four cuts.

But in the March bout each weighed 130. That contract provided neither could register more than 131. Lopes claimed that paring down to 130 lessened his punch and weakened him so that Costa was able to finish the stronger.

Arcaro Rides Gemlo To Jamaica Victory

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (UP)—Eddie Arcaro, who won the 1955 Kentucky Derby, today won a four and one-half length triumph yesterday in the $6000 Hyde Park purse at Jamaica.

The Lily-Ann Stable's Black-type, the favorite of the crowd of 18,250, finished second, another three-quarters of a length ahead of Guardian II.

New Job for Ted Payseur at Northwestern

EVANSTON, Ill., Nov. 11 (INS)—Northwestern University has announced a sweeping reorganization of its sport department which will move Ted Payseur from his post of athletic director to a new job as assistant business manager.

Payseur will be aided by another assistant business manager, Elliot Foster, who has been moved from his job as manager of sports facilities on the campus.

Dr. J. Roscoe Miller, Northwestern president, who announced the reorganization yesterday, made no mention of a possible change in the football coaching situation.

Simpkins and Meramecs Play In Cup Match

By Dent McSkimming

By a strange turn of the draw, Simpkins and Meramecs teams, which meet Sunday in a Khoury League match, must face each other again in the near future in a first-round U. S. Open Cup match. The cup competition draw is made in the New York office of the United States Soccer Football Association.

Other first-round Open Cup games here will be Jones club vs. Dogtown Amvets; Kutis vs. St. Ambrose and Carondelet vs. Diamonds.

Simpkins and Meramecs, both undefeated and tied for the lead in the Khoury League, meet for the first time as a preliminary to the Kutis-Milwaukee Sport Club match at Oakland Stadium, Sunday.

With only one change, Simpkins' manager, Joe Nuni, will field the same team that reached the western final of the U. S. Open Cup competition last season. Bob Fitzgerald has replaced Joe Fernandez at fullback but the lineup is otherwise the same. It includes Frank Borghis, John Galimberti, John Trainsa, Charley Colombo, Harry Desmuke, Nick Borzillo, Pete Trainsa, Joe Spica, Gino Pariani and Frank Wallace.

Johnny Barralle, Larry Miriani, Pantelis Meziris and Oscar Whetsel are the reserves.

Meramecs' probable starters are: Henry Kuster, goal; Werner Sontgerath and Oddy Knabbe, fullbacks; Sett Lorenz, Walter Muench and Nick Schneider, halfbacks; Fred Tiesert, Willie Seim, Gunther Reinhold, Leo Lehning and Ray Foster, forwards.

Bill Eppy, whose name was not included in the list of Olympic candidates, will be a starter at right halfback for Kutis in the game with Milwaukee Sport. Val Pelizzaro will be the other wing halfback with Jim Murphy ready to relieve either one. Missing will be Tom Julius whose left hand is in a plaster cast. He broke the hand in landing a punch on a Chicago Necaxa player last week.

Harry Crawford and Jim Moore will referee the Kutis-Milwaukee game which will start at 2 p.m. The Simpkins-Meramecs match is booked for 12:30.

Santee Too Fast

ARLINGTON, Va., Nov. 11 (AP)—Wes Santee, fastest miler in the United States, was fined $25 and costs on an automobile speeding charge in Arlington county traffic court yesterday.

Santee was charged with driving 75 miles per hour in a 50-mile zone on Shirley highway near Washington. Santee, now a lieutenant in the Marine Corps at nearby Quantico, Va., pleaded innocent to the speeding charge.

Badminton Star Ted Moehlmann To Defend Title

Abby Rutledge of Lafayette, Ind., and Ted Moehlmann of St. Louis will begin defense of their singles titles tomorrow in the Missouri Open badminton tournament at Concordia Seminary's gym.

The defending champions are top-seeded in the singles as well as the mixed doubles.

Tomorrow's rounds will begin at noon and at 5 p.m. Semifinals will be at 10 a.m. Sunday and the finals at 1:30.

Tomorrow's pairings:

12 noon—Bill Rutledge vs. Dick Root; Marvin Bang vs. George Britton; Rene Trov vs. Ted Anderson; R. Scherberger vs. Roland Sturhahn; George Brown vs. R. Scherberger.

Dog-Biting Mallard Turns Retriever Into a House Pet

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov. 11 (AP)

THERE are hunting dogs and house dogs.

Dan Duncan recently decided that his three-year-old Labrador retriever, Coale, should be trained for duck hunting. Duncan bought a live mallard drake and named him Frank. The idea was for the dog to learn to take the duck in his muzzle.

But Frank didn't take kindly to such nonsense. Result: one duck-bitten dog.

Now Duncan's Labrador "retriever" abhors Frank and won't have anything to do with ducks in general. And the Duncans have a 95-pound house dog.

Black Hawks Play to Tie With Red Wings

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (UP)—If the New York Rangers hope to get into the Stanley Cup play-offs this season, they had better learn how to beat the Boston Bruins.

For the third straight time this season, the Bruins defeated the Broadway Blues, 5-1, last night to move to within two points of the second-place Rangers. Four different Bruins rapped home the goals including a pair by Vic Stasiuk to hand New York its first loss in the last five games.

The Chicago Black Hawks, who have played almost as well as the Rangers thus far this season, tied the Detroit Red Wings, 2-2, on Johnny Wilson's third period goal in the only other game played Thursday night.

Crane Wins Trophy

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 11 (AP)—Irving Crane, world pocket billiards champion from Rochester, N.Y., won the Ralph Greenleaf Memorial trophy by defeating Luther Lassiter, Elizabethtown, N.C., six games to two. Crane took the sixth game 125-88 in 18 innings.

Hadley Five in Elsberry Basket Tournay Final

Hadley Tech will be idle tonight while the rest of the field catches up with Randy Pitts' Hornets in the annual Elsberry High School basketball tournament. In the final tomorrow night, Hadley will oppose the winner of tonight's game between Elsberry and Troy.

The Hornets reached the final last night when they swamped Linn, 55-48, the second lopsided victory for Hadley which trampled Herculaneum in the tournament opener, 80 to 36. Chief scorers for Hadley against Linn were Les (6-6) Hemmer who poured in 33 points and Bill (6-0) Harper who added another 20.

Linn had defeated St. Peter's of St. Charles in the first round, 55-51, while Elsberry advanced at Clifton's expense, 56-47. Troy, the defending champion, walloped a new school, House Springs, 80 to 34, in the Trojans' first test last night. St. Peter's nipped Herculaneum, 55-49, in a consolation game.

At 7 o'clock tonight Clifton will play House Springs and at 8:30 Elsberry will meet Troy. Tomorrow the Clifton-House Springs winner will oppose St. Peter's for consolation honors. Linn will meet the Elsberry-Troy loser for third place, preceding the championship game involving Hadley and the Elsberry-Troy winner.

Last Chance at Home for Mizzou; Injuries Worry the Bears

K-State Coached By Pupil Of Faurot

By Bob Broeg
Of the Post-Dispatch Staff.

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 11.—Don Faurot, the Purple football teacher has picked up more rotten tomatoes than polished apples from his pupils, finally must beat a former student tomorrow to keep the University of Missouri from finishing its first season at home without a victory in the veteran coach's 20-year reign.

Not since 1934, the year before Faurot returned to his alma mater, have the Tigers opened and closed a season without winning at Memorial Stadium. The rub, though, is that Don's coaching opponent in the last 1955 home game will be Kansas State's Bus Mertes, who played halfback for Faurot's Iowa Preflight team in '43.

"I sure hope I can do better against Bus than I've done against Bud Wilkinson and Jim Tatum," Faurot said, referring to Oklahoma and Maryland coaches who were his assistants with the war-time Seabawks, and since have beat Missouri and the "old man" 15 out of 15.

K-State Famine, Too. Mertes, who replaced Bill Meert at K-State this year when the former Wildcat mentor went to Houston, has a problem, too. Faurot, the Purple hasn't prevailed over the Black and Gold since 1938 and hasn't officially won one here since '34. A 14-12 Kansas State triumph four years ago was forfeited when it developed the Wildcats used scholastically ineligible players.

K-State has the better record this year with three victories to Ol' Mizzou's one and, as Faurot pointed out, has exploded for 42 points against Marquette and 46 against Kansas. By contrast the Tigers' best offensive showing was just three touchdowns in one game. Yet the professional handicappers have made Missouri a seven-point favorite.

A crowd of about 20,000 is expected for the Big Seven Conference contest which basically will pit K-State rushing and backfield against Missouri's passing and its strong defensive line.

On comparative scores, there's little choice. The Tigers did play better in defeat against both Nebraska and Oklahoma and, in addition, triumphed in an upset over a Colorado team that trimmed the Wildcats, but Kansas State hung a defeat on an Iowa State eleven that surprised Missouri.

Last Home Game for Four. Four M.U. players, two of them from St. Louis, will play their final home game—Tackle Al Portney and Center Tony Karakas along with Ends Hank Burnine and Terry Roberts—and two St. Louis-area players, Quarterback Bob Whitehead and Guard Ellis Rahnberger, will be in the K-State lineup.

The Tigers got a lift yesterday when Tackle Gene Campbell was restored to good standing on the squad. Campbell, suspended by Faurot early this week for insubordination, was reinstated on recommendation of the Tiger co-captains and the coach approved because the infraction, he said, was a minor one.

9405 Season Tickets Sold by the Braves

MILWAUKEE, Nov. 11 (AP)—The Milwaukee Braves, thanks to a brisk business in ticket renewal sales, already are assured of 9,405 customers for next year.

Sales have passed the 9,405 mark and Ticket Director Bill Eberly predicted a possible overall total of 10,500 by the end of the Braves' four-week mail order drive.

Eberly said he doesn't expect 1956 season ticket sales to reach last year's total of 11,922. The big magnet last year, he explained, was the All-Star game.

Oldtimers' Banquet. The annual banquet of the Oldtimers' Athletic Club, an organization made up of former players, will be held tomorrow night at 8 o'clock, at the Claridge Hotel.

Roosevelt Comes From Behind Late in Game to Beat McKinley

By Harold Tuthill

Roosevelt High pulled out of the fire last night by scoring a 7-6 triumph over McKinley after McKinley had led, 6-0, with an early touchdown in the fourth quarter.

McKinley, seeking to break its string of seven consecutive losses, outplayed the Rough Riders most of the game and muffed one scoring opportunity in the third quarter. The Gold-bucks bounced right back, though, and closed out the third period and opened the fourth with a 40-yard drive which ended after 3 minutes 28 seconds when Charles Miller went over from about a yard out. John Hughes missed carrying the ball over for the extra point.

2,245,000 Ducks Reported in Illinois

HAVANA, Ill., Nov. 11 (AP)—Ducks still are plentiful in Illinois.

Frank Bellrose of the Illinois Natural History Survey said there are 2,245,000 ducks in the state, an increase of 245,000 over a week ago. Seventy per cent of them are in the Illinois River valley.

Bellrose said a small flight of mallards and bluebills is expected to reach Illinois in about a week. The last big flight of the season will come from South Dakota about Dec. 1, he said.

Old Fort Wayne Players Meet Record Crowd Young Rochester Stars Here Sees Knicks, Warriors Win

By Harold Flachsbart

The first appearance of three National Basketball Association teams in Saturday night's doubleheader here should give St. Louis fans a good cross-sectional glance at the circuit. Two of the Western Division rivals of the Hawks are on the Kiel Auditorium program along with Syracuse, the Eastern pennant winner and play-off champion last spring.

In the 7:30 opener the Fort Wayne Pistons, Western Division champions last winter, will play the Rochester Royals. And the Hawks in the second game, starting about 9:20, will try for their second straight victory against Syracuse.

With two divisional titleholders and four crack teams in the first of four regularly-scheduled league doubleheaders here, what should fans look for in each club?

Red Holzman, soft-spoken leader of the Hawks who has seen 'em all in past seasons and played against some of the pros' list active, points out that Syracuse is a good fundamental team. "The Nats always do things right," he explained. "They have a good fast break, excellent ball-handling and don't make mistakes that might result in a one-sided rout for some other clubs on bad nights."

The Nats have in fact, and even when they are outscored, they don't lose because of errors.

Evaluating Fort Wayne, which looked so business-like in its Arena appearance here last winter, the St. Louis coach referred to its experience, resourcefulness and the presence of Andy Phillip of Granite City as a "good quarterback." Holzman also cited the Pistons' good front line of Larry Foust, Mel Hutchins and George Yardley, the last named a balding player of 25 from the West Coast who had a 17.3-point average last season and an exceptional night here in St. Louis.

"Older players make Fort Wayne a smart and experienced club," said Holzman, "and like Syracuse, the Pistons don't make many mistakes. Phillip is a driving force and keeps 'em moving constantly."

Rochester, another Western rival of the Hawks in their bid for a high spot in the standings, has a good young club on which Maurice Stokes is a great prospect, Holzman said. "The Royals are a lot of running and always try to keep the middle open, without using a stationary pivot man. Bob Wanzer (only player-coach in the circuit) is an excellent backcourt man."

No change is contemplated in the Hawks' starting lineup of five former All-Americans: Capt. Bob Harrison, formerly of Michigan; Frank Selvy, the flash from Furman; Charley Share, Bowling Green; Dick Ricketts, Duquesne; and Bob Pettit, a 2002-point scorer at L.S.U. and rookie-of-the-year in the N.B.A. last season.

Practice For Butler Is Slack

By Robert Morrison

An injury that threatens the high-efficiency passing of Tailback Mel Siegel plus assorted other ailments today cast a shadow of doubt over the prospects of another Washington University football victory tomorrow.

"We've had a very poor week's practice as a result of the injuries," said perturbed Coach Carl Snavely as his Bears got set for their game with the Butler Bulldogs at Francis Field.

Most disturbing was the shoulder injury passer Siegel aggravated in the Southern Illinois game last week, the third straight win for Washington in a 4-and-3 season.

Siegel missed a couple of days' work this week but the payoff didn't help the muscle injury in which a nerve had been affected. It appeared possible that his throwing would be hampered.

Three Linemen Miss Drills. In addition Linemen Dave Ladd, Don Sauer and Bill Bollinger also have missed important workouts. So the favored Bears could figure their edge was diminishing somewhat against a Butler team that has won three, lost four.

"Butler is a good sound football team," Snavely said in the midst of his worrying. "We'll have to be at our best to beat Butler and as of the moment we definitely are not at our best."

One factor in favor of the Bears, however, is that Butler, too, is without the services of a top performer—Fullback Leroy Thompson, who has been a top ground gainer over two seasons with the team from Indian-apolis.

Thompson was hurt in the Valparaiso game two weeks ago and it is understood here that he is out for the season.

Butler has another good fullback in Nick Nardo, however. Snavely remarked, "We'll see how Butler stacks up in a good game."

Comparison on Wash. The only point of comparison between Washington and Butler this season has been a 20-14, last-season Bear victory over Wash. and a 12-14 defeat by Wash. in the second game of the season.

In recent years under Snavely Washington has performed well against Butler, knocking off a previously unbeaten Butler team, 27-14, in 1953 and again winning, 25-14, last year.

Now the Bears have righted themselves after losing through their first four games this season and, but for recent ailments, would have been fully expected to beat Butler again.

Fortunately, Snavely's have demonstrated a more effective running attack in recent games with Don Pollock, Sauer and Bob Ladd developing an average of better than 5.5 yards per carry.

Game time is 2 p.m.

Ritenour Is Toughest on 'Night Shift'

Because it is certain to be quite dark at 8 o'clock tonight, Kirkwood High better watch its step against Ritenour. As shown by records of Ritenour's six seasons under Coach John Moore, the Huskies are virtual pushovers in daylight, but once that evening sun goes down it is a far different story.

Kirkwood, unbeaten and untied in seven games, will be Ritenour's guest tonight in a contest of importance to four teams in the Suburban League's Big Six. If Kirkwood wins it will be assured of at least a tie for the championship as it will have a 4-0 league mark, while all the others will have at least one defeat. Normandy and University City, each beaten only by Kirkwood in league play, will meet tomorrow afternoon.

Ritenour's night-shift habit has gone according to history this season. The Huskies have won five and lost two, with both defeats having come in their only daylight games. One was a league loss to University City and the other was a defeat by the ABC's Country Day.

This could be just a coincidence, of course, but look at the six-year record. At night Ritenour has won 26, lost 12, and tied 7. In their duels in the sun, the Huskies have won 1, lost 7, and tied 1. Discounting ties, their winning percentage at night is .684 and in daylight it is .125.

After tonight's game both squads have Thanksgiving (daylight) league matches to complete their schedules. Kirkwood will have its traditional game with Webster Groves and Ritenour will meet Normandy.

In a Suburban League Little Six game tonight, Ferguson will be at Brentwood.

Tomorrow, in addition to the Normandy-U. City battle, Maplewood will be at Webster Groves in a Big Six match. In the Little Six, Clayton will have a chance to tie Ladue for the title when they play at Ladue. St. Charles will be at Wellston.—J.J.A.

'Horse Defense' Is Mapped to Stop Horse Called Alan

NEW YORK, Nov. 11 (UP)—The New York football Giants came up with an intricate new defense yesterday which can only be described as a "horse" of another color.

The Horse defense, as it is called by Coach Jim Lee Howell, was tried out in practice with the idea of stopping Alan (The Horse) Ameche of the Baltimore Colts at the Polo Grounds Sunday. Ameche, currently the leading ground gainer in the National Football League, has not been stopped this season yet.

Owner, Trainer and Four Others Set Down On 'Doping' Charge

TRENTON, N. J., Nov. 11 (UP)—The owner, trainer and four other handlers of Blue Vet were suspended by the New Jersey State Racing Commission after tests showed the horse had been drugged in the fourth race at Garden State Park last Saturday.

Thomas Brogan, chairman of the commission, also announced the winner's purse of $4500 was being held pending the result of an investigation. Blue Vet, winner of only one other race in 16 starts, paid $7.20 to win.

Those suspended were owner Sam Serpico, trainer Joseph Kulina, Grooms Edward J. Summey and Thomas Bates, former Samuel Solow and hot walker Al Benton.

The suspensions followed a "positive report" on a urine sample taken from Blue Vet.

Cassell's Spunky Pete Wins Missouri Stake

Cassell's Spunky Pete won the open derby stake yesterday in the Missouri Open Field Trial at the Busch Wildlife Area at Weldon Spring.

Second place went to Mercer's Miller, owned by Col. B. C. Goss of Cleveland and handled by John Gates of Leesburg, Ga. Paladin is owned by D. W. Little of Whitesburg, Ky.

Prep Team Star. Austin Laramie, San Jose State tackle, was selected to the Syracuse Herald All-New York State prep team for two years while attending Witesboro High.

$14,000-a-Year Bench Warmer Well Satisfied

CLEVELAND, Nov. 11 (UP)—George Ratterman, the Cleveland Browns' No. 2 quarterback for the last four seasons, today scoffed at suggestions that he is dissatisfied with his lot as understudy to Otto Graham.

"As far as I'm concerned," Ratterman said, "I'm the happiest man in football."

Ratterman, who draws an estimated $14,000 a year to warm the bench, has appeared in only three of Cleveland's seven games this season. Despite the inactivity, he showed no signs of rust last Sunday against the New York Giants when he was called on to lead the Browns after Graham had been knocked unconscious by a controversial tackle.

Cleveland was behind, 14-3, at the time. Ratterman passed for two touchdowns and ran a "bootleg" play for another to pull out a 24-14 victory.

Even though he looked at home to everyone viewing the game, Ratterman admits he felt as if he had been away for some time. He was slated to take over the quarterback duties when Graham announced his retirement last fall and led the Browns through their exhibition schedule before Graham agreed to try "one more year."

Ratterman played the last half of the opening game, and saw brief duty in another after Cleveland had taken a commanding lead. Other than that, his chief function has been holding the ball for Lou Groza in field goal and extra-point attempts.

"Life hasn't been as gloomy as some people think," he said.

"Of course, I'd like to be playing. Who wouldn't? Yet there's no team I'd rather be with than the Browns and I know I'm helping them win games."

The statistics showed he was right. Although Graham leads the league regulars in passing averages, Ratterman has an even better mark. His average gain is 11.5 yards. His completion average is 68 per cent. He has thrown six touchdown passes.

Graham's yardage is 9.2 on 55 per cent of the passes he has completed. He has thrown four for scores.

Ratterman's football career has not always been that of a benchwarmer. He was a star at Notre Dame, and later was the leading passer for the now-defunct Buffalo Bills and New York Yankees. There is still the chance that some day, after Graham retires, he will take over first-string quarterback duties for the Browns.

"That's all in the future and I honestly don't think too much about it," Ratterman said. "I play one year at a time, and I figure I've got a few more seasons left before I call it quits. After that, I don't know."

Plentiful Supply

Deer Hunter's Role In Increasing Herd

By Leonard Hall

SOME people feel that deer hunting is an unwarranted sport which nothing can justify. And, of course, there is no reason why anyone should hunt deer who feels this way. Yet the fact is that we can either have a deer season during which a fairly large proportion of the annual increase is harvested and, at the same time maintain a large and healthy deer herd or we can go back to the situation which existed in Missouri not so many years ago, when, with no deer season whatever, the whitetails were on the road to extinction. Most of us would, I believe, prefer to have 100,000 or more deer roaming the forests and prairies of Missouri with an annual hunting season, than we would to have no hunting season and—eventually—no deer.

The reason why a plentiful supply of deer and a hunting season go naturally together is really not hard to explain. People who spend their lives studying the ways of the wilderness know that the numbers of any wild bird or animal are chiefly controlled by three factors: the range which is available for each particular species and the amount of food and cover which this range provides. Other things enter in; hunting pressure by man, predation by other birds and animals which use this particular species for food and the like. But the real keys to wildlife populations lie in the over-all range, the food and the cover.

THIS IS AS TRUE of the whitetail deer in Missouri as it is of our Bobwhite quail or, on a continent-wide scale, of wild waterfowl. Back in the days when white men first came to settle west of the Mississippi, the area now embraced within our state boundaries probably supported between 800,000 and 1,000,000 deer. These were widely distributed across the prairies, in woodlands along the water courses and throughout the big timber country of the Ozarks. As more of this land was put to use, the range for the whitetails dwindled. First they disappeared from the prairie as these level grasslands went into cultivation. As human population multiplied along the rivers, the deer were driven from the small bits of woodland cover which remained. At last even the forested hills knew the deer herds no more as saw and ax harvested the virgin oak and pine and this was followed by clearing for mountain farms and burning and hard grazing of the cut-over lands. By the end of the 1920s, deer had almost disappeared from the entire state; a condition which closed seasons seemed not to remedy at all.

The thing which started the whitetails on the road back in Missouri was actually the growing interest in conservation. Early in the 1930s we established the Clark and Mark Twain National forests in the Ozark counties which put 2,000,000 acres of cut-over land under good timber management for the first time. Fire was brought under control, grazing cut to a reasonable point, thousands of acres improved by removal of poor species of second growth and the girdling of old cut trees. In time, these rotted and fell to return humus to the forest floor and speed the growth of good young timber. Wherever this "release" work was done or where stands of usable timber were harvested for the saw mill, the openings thus created grew up in good deer-food plants that had formerly been starved out by second-growth scrub.

AT THE SAME TIME, Missouri created its non-political Conservation Commission with an interest in and responsibility for all the wild resources of the state. It also began a campaign for forest fire control on private lands, better timber use, scientific wildlife management and conservation education. Refuges were created where seed stocks of deer could multiply undisturbed; and when numbers had grown sufficiently, the Commission instituted a program of trapping and release of deer in suitable areas throughout the entire state. This program has been in effect for about 20 years, with the result that deer are seen today in every county in Missouri and are present in sufficient numbers in most counties to provide an open season.

The progress of the deer restoration program is all the more remarkable when we recall that in the space of less than 100 years, deer numbers in Missouri had declined from perhaps 750,000 to 3000 or even less. And the re-opening of a hunting season for deer came about not merely because sportsmen wanted it, but because a substantial annual harvest soon became absolutely essential to the continued health of the herd. Ordinarily, under conditions of a bountiful food supply, about 50 per cent of does will drop twin fawns in a given year. And this means that potentially the herd can double about every three years, so that 2500 deer in 1936 could become 160,000 deer by 1954—and by 1957, 320,000 deer.

UNDER WILDERNESS CONDITIONS, the herd is kept in check by natural predators such as the wolf and panther and by the changing pattern of weather, food, cover and range. Thus it seldom gets out of hand. But when man steps in, the picture changes radically. All of the natural predators are wiped out and other conditions are controlled. The herd keeps growing until, literally, it explodes. Overnight there takes place what the wildlife men call a "population eruption" and suddenly the range, food and cover are no longer sufficient to care for the numbers of deer. Then several unpleasant things happen, as experience in many states has taught us. The deer can't spread out, because there is no range to spread into. Food supplies become insufficient and first the fawns and then the adult deer begin to starve. Often the food plant species are so badly damaged they do not recover for years. The starved does become unthrifty and disease sweeps in to decimate the herd. Soon we are back to where we started and there are no deer.

In spite of all this, it seems to me that deer hunting tends to become an increasingly artificial sport, with less and less of skill and hardihood and knowledge of woodcraft required for its pursuit. As each season draws to a close, I find myself feeling rather glad that it is over—that how these beautiful dwellers of the forest can go back to the quiet and peace of their hills and hollows, safe for another year from all but the running dog pack, the occasional poacher and the cars which drive too swiftly on highways that run through the deer woods.

Dailey's Party for a Buddy

By Sheila Graham

NEW YORK, Nov. 11.

DAN DAILEY told me he came to New York especially to give old-time buddy Billy Reed a party for his fiftieth birthday. "No one," said Dapper Dan, "should spend his fiftieth birthday alone." Wife Gwen was on Dan's good right arm, thus confounding Broadway and Hollywood gossips who print their marriage is on the rocks. Later, Dan was at Luchow's, with guest Jackie Gleason beaming his favorite girl, Dorothy Taylor.

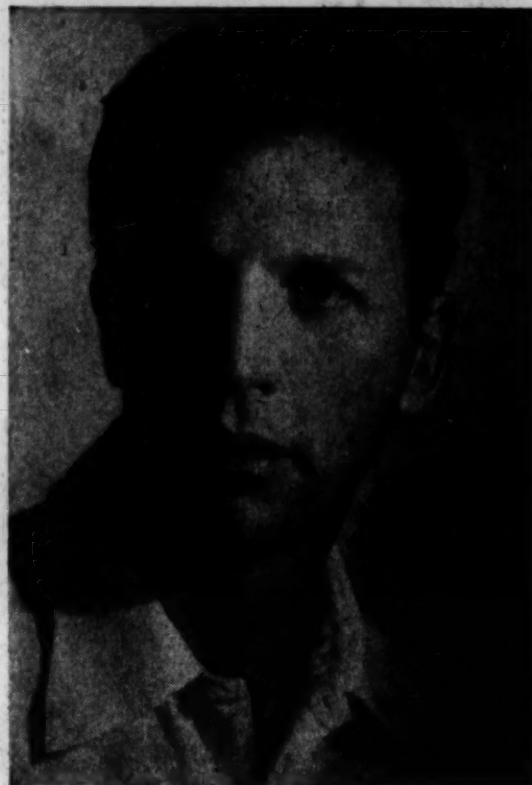

On Jackie's left, Candy Torme was with Hal "Big Boy" Question March—they'll marry when her divorce is final from singer Mel. Paulette Goddard brought her mother to town when she came here from Europe for her TV show. Put no sign of Erich Remarque.

I HAVE SEEN more movies made on this trip than I ever did in Hollywood. And New York is no exception. In "21" for lunch, I bumped into Paul Douglas, who invited me across the road to see "Solid Gold Cadillac." In production in the crowded street, with Judy Holiday and Fred Clark holding up traffic.

Paul gave me the latest news of wife Jan Sterling and their brand-new baby son. Jan was up and around one and a half hours after the baby was born. And next week, just three weeks after, she's starting rehearsals for "The Rainmaker" at the Huntington Hartford Theater.

Rosanna Podesta, Warner's new young Italian import, spent most of her first night in New York dancing with her handsome husband at the Warwick's Raleigh Room, and surprising bandleader Joe Ricardello with her awareness of popular American tunes.

READING in the New York press the names of the stars who attended the royal film command performance in London reminded me that Tony Curtis and Janet Leigh were invited but Janet didn't want to fly back from Paris—flight time, one hour, five minutes. The boy from the Bronx and the little girl from Squaw Valley have certainly come a long way... And, still with the command performance, there was big freeze backstage between Katy Jurado and Gina Lollobrigida, a sequel to the frost of their Paris "Trapeze."

Spotted Bert Lahr at the Stork Club, and when I told him he looked lanned, Bert replied: "It's my tight collar."

I watched Liberace in the foyer of the Ambassador Hotel here, surrounded by aged ladies demanding his autograph, and saw one swoon dead away after she read what Liberace wrote on her scrap of paper. Lee was in the Big City to kick off his "Sincerely Yours."

JOANNE DRU and John Ireland in Sherman Billingsley's Cub Room were very glad, they told me, because the notice for their critic-panned "Deadfall" had not been posted. "Now it will run for another two weeks," said Joanne.

Laugh Highlight of My Trip: In London, when Clive Brook was asked to repeat the famous "Toast to England," from the end of Noel Coward's "Cavalcade," he replied: "I'd love to do it, but I'll have to wear a wig, you know, because I must look old." Clive is 72!

Fix It Yourself

By Hubbard Cobb

IF you've ever spent much time in a fireplace you'll know without our saying that it gets pretty hot there when a good fire is roaring. In fact it gets so hot that after a period of time the firebricks which are used to line the inside of the fireplace start to crumble and the fireclay that holds them together begins to fall out. This is about the time that you should do something about the matter for once things begin to go, they can go fast.

First thing to do is clean out the fireplace so that you can get in it and see what's going on. Take a wire brush and brush down the inside to expose any falling mortar joints or crumbling bricks. Use an old screwdriver, small cold chisel or a similar tool to remove any of the loose mortar from between the bricks. Bricks that have cracked or are falling apart should be removed. This can be done by cutting out the mortar. If the surface of the bricks is crumbling, brush them down with a wire brush until you've got a solid surface.

When you get around to putting things together, you'll need firebricks if some have been removed and some fireclay. Ordinary cement mortar isn't good for this job because it can't stand the heat. Neither can common bricks.

The new firebricks should be set into place after the fireclay has been spread over the faces. After the brick is in place, pack the mortar into the joints so that they are filled. Fresh fireclay should be packed into joints where the old mortar has been removed. The same fireclay can be used to resurface any of the bricks that were wirebrushed down to remove loose material from the surface.

Fashionable Color
Brown is continuing to be featured as one of the most fashionable colors for winter wear. It is seen in variations ranging from khaki tone to a charcoal brown hue that is almost black. The darker shades usually are accented with black and suggest the wearing of black accessories.

Let's Explore Your Mind

By Dr. Albert E. Wiggam

1. A MAN CAN WIN A WOMAN BY SHOWING HOW MUCH HE KNOWS. TRUE OR FALSE?

Answer to Question 1.
FALSE. No man ever won a woman's heart by showing her that he could recite poetry in Greek or unravel the Einstein theory or explain Marxism (although this last might help her with the fact that he is a good golfer, swimmer, dancer, nature lover, or whatever. But the thing that really lands her is tenderness, understanding and, as James M. Barrie said, "being kinder than necessary."

Answer to Question 2.
No. Most psychologists believe that when you are born, you are not conscious of having any particular "self" at all. The recognition of "self" develops only as you realize your relation to other "selves." Of course, many persons are probably born with a greater tendency than others to be affected by approval and disapproval. These are the ones we call, in adult life, "self-conscious."

Answer to Question 3.
Because we spend our lives trying to bolster up our feelings of superiority and security, and one of the easiest ways seems to be to criticize others. Even if the person gets the better of us in some way—money, new car or home—we try to regain our sense of importance by criticizing his bald head, big nose, homely wife, or his undisciplined children, anything to save our own faces and feel important again.

What's your happiness curve? "Your Happiness Curve" will help you schedule important events by predicting your happiness "high" and "low." Send 15c (coin only) and self-addressed, stamped envelope (name, city and state) to Dr. A. E. Wiggam, care of The Post-Dispatch.

A Tasty Idea
Use the liquid from cooked dried apricots as part of the liquid needed when you are preparing lemon gelatin. Turn the gelatin into a small square pan and chill until set. Cut the molded gelatin into squares and serve on crisp greens with cottage cheese and salad dressing. Serve for lunch after hearty bowls of split pea soup and croquettes. The croquettes will taste especially good if you make them by browning and crisping small squares of bread in plenty of butter or margarine.

Problem of Too Early Deadline

By Elinor Williams

NEARLY every high schooler thinks he—or she—has to go home too early on Friday nights. Right?

Some girls and boys blithely believe that 3 o'clock in the morning is a good time to say "Goodnight" after a date! But these two girls really have a problem with a 9:30 p.m. "deadline." They write:

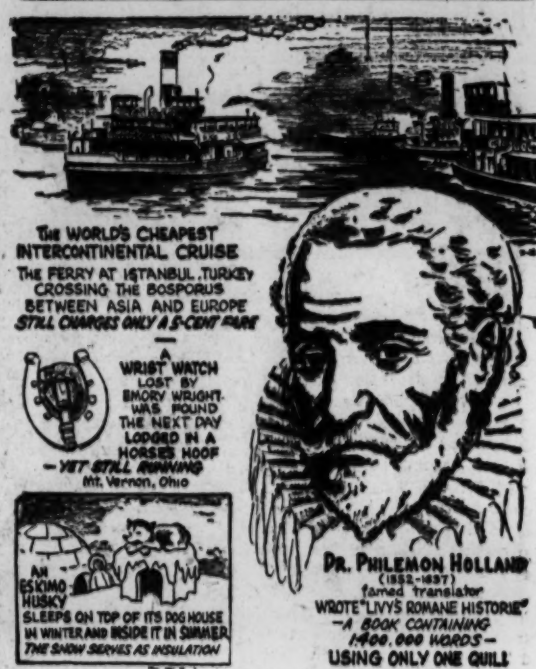

"My sister and I are 15 and 16 years old. Our mother has absolutely laid down the law that we must go to bed every night at 10 and be in the house at 9:30 p.m. None of the group we go around with run on that schedule, so they have to plan their parties to stop at 10 or else we'll have to become hermits. We've tried to prove we're adult, but it does no good. What shall we do?"

ANSWER: Your deadline isn't so unreasonable for week-night. If you keep it punctually, perhaps your mother will give you an extra hour for party nights, after a while. Or maybe she'll allow you to stay out an hour later for parties if she or another parent brings you home... until she gets used to the new deadline.

Otherwise, it appears you'll have to abide by her rule. Instead of being "hermits" or expecting others to end their parties at 10, why not go to the parties and enjoy them until your deadline, then go home.

TAKE YOUR MOTHER into your confidence and let her in on your friends' doings by telling her about where you go and what everybody does... without complaining or arguing... and just casually include the fact that lots of the fun happened after you left... that you always miss some of it by leaving earlier than everybody else... that other parents allow a "special" evening to last until 11. Possibly she'll gradually respond to this approach.

HERE is a quiz on water. Six correct answers is excellent.

1. Is water an element or a compound?
2. What temperature, centigrade, is the water that runs off melting ice?
3. Which is easier to boil, salt water or distilled water?
4. Is an equal volume of ice lighter or heavier than water?
5. At what degree, Fahrenheit, does water boil?
6. What do we call the process by which water changes from a gas to a liquid?
7. What do we call the method of purifying water by spraying it into the air?
8. What do we call the bent tube by which water can be transferred from one pall to another by atmospheric pressure?

- ANSWERS
1. Compound. 2. It is zero degrees C. 3. Distilled water. 4. Lighter. 5. At 212 degrees F. 6. Condensation. 7. Aeration. 8. Siphon.

The New Films

By Myles Standish

Lively Heroics

BY FAR the liveliest and most intelligent of the spate of pictures about medieval days which came in with CinemaScope is "QUENTIN DURWARD," adapted from Sir Walter Scott's novel, and now showing at LOEW'S STATE THEATER.

Steering artfully between the two usual courses of either burying the plot under panoply, magnificence and stuffiness or making it, merely a vehicle for a Western in armor, the film presents Robert Taylor as the derring-do in a spirit of high adventure, and mixes those strange ingredients for a costume picture, humor, sophistication and intelligence with its battles, duels and intrigues.

Robert Ardrey's screen play contains some good lines. Taylor, as Quentin Durward, the young Scot raised as a knight, who comes to France and is straightaway involved in the maneuvering and intrigue of King Louis XI against the Duke of Burgundy, is told by the skeptical English ambassador that he is a "slightly obsolete" relic of the Age of Chivalry who is being supplanted by gunpowder and treachery. Louis at first spurns the offer of Quentin's sword: "You are too honorable; I will not trust any man I cannot buy." Kay Kendall, the English actress, is the epitome of all the beautiful ladies that a knight ever rescued from an ogre, but in spite of the fact that she has little to do except "clutch her jewel box and flee" as Grace Kelly said in turning down the role, she makes the heroine memorable as so very human; she can almost throw away a "Horrors, save me!" sort of line with an elan that takes the curse of the stilted off it, and scramble down a steep roof with athletic abandon. Robert Morley makes Louis down to earth; a realistic and guileful player of political chess. George Cole is an amusing Gypsy who confesses he can't help being a coward.

On the side of action, the customers can't complain about getting their money's worth. Quentin's ferocious fights end up with one that should set a record for excitement and fervid imagination. After the bandit leader, Count De La Mark, "beast of the Ardennes" sacks a monastery and murders a bishop to get his hands on the heroine and her lands, he and Quentin engage in a duel in the bell tower, swinging on bell ropes while the flames rage below, hacking at each other with dagger and war-ax. The film was made in England, with some shots of the magnificent French castles of Chambord, Chenonceau, Maintenon and Fontainebleau (all of which by the way, were built during the 1500s, the century after Louis XI's reign).

Southern Exposure

Considering the verbose and elusively introspective nature of the book he had to deal with, Scriptwriter-Director-Producer Philip Dunne has done an excellent job in bringing to the screen Hamilton Basso's novel about the lingering provincial and class pride in a beautiful seacoast town in the Deep South—"THE VIEW FROM POMPEY'S HEAD," showing at the ST. LOUIS.

From the first shot of a long and gleaming empty beach, panning to a famous and now-blind author trying to scribble the words of a novel as he sits under a shelter, to the shots of great live oaks and hanging Spanish moss on the roadways, the wild trees on the dunes, and the magnificent old mansion, Mulberry, Dunne and his cameraman have made beautiful use of CinemaScope in creating the atmosphere so necessary to the story—why the spot, its culture and traditions got into its people's blood and made them cling blindly in spite of personal frustration or unhappiness.

The film is literate, naturalistic and rich in detail and imagination that carries it through its deliberate pace. As the home-town man who went to New York to become a successful lawyer and family man, and returns to settle a puzzling law claim and to become enmeshed in the old atmosphere and an old girl, Richard Egan is forceful and vibrant. A new British actress, Dana Wynters, is a devastating soft beauty in the mold of Elizabeth Taylor, and seems the manner born in Southern accent and combination of languorous and artistocratically willful temperament. Cameron Mitchell is the hot-headed and frustrated self-made man from the local equivalent of "across the tracks" "the channel," and Sidney Blackmer is the old blind and bitter novelist whose dark secret of ancestry is wrung from him in a tearing scene. It's a good acting job by everyone concerned.

More Action Than Moral

The influence of the great film, "The Treasure of the Sierra Madre," which was released in 1948, is still being felt in an occasional Western. The latest of these is "THE TREASURE OF PANCHITO VILLA," at the FOX, which, besides a certain similarity in title, carries the same plot of three men scheming over a treasure in gold which they have between them, the same Mexican locale (it was shot there), the same theme that greed ends but in disillusionment and death. In "Sierra Madre," the gold dust was blown back over the mountains by the winds after bandits cut the bags, thinking them to be nothing but sand. Here, the bags of gold coins are used by the remaining two survivors as a bulwark to fight off soldiers in a last stand on a mountain side, and are scattered by Federal bullets and blown up by dynamite.

But you can't reproduce a fine film merely by copying the framework of ideas. This movie does have excellent photography in beautifully clear SuperScope and color, and it does have a first-rate performance by the wiry, vital and sardonic Gilbert Roland as a Colonel in the forces of Panchito Villa whose interest in the gold, high-jacked from a Federal train in an ambush, is purely idealistic, to use for the revolution. But it completely lacks the dialogue, the direction and the acting otherwise to amount to any more than a fair action Western. As an American free-lancer who describes himself as a "hired gun" for Villa and who has his eye on the gold, Rory Calhoun is rather mild beside Roland. Joseph Calleia as a politician is the third man after the loot.

More Sex Than Philosophy

Speaking of the lasting influence of great pictures, there is a pale echo of "Rashomon," the Japanese masterpiece of four years ago, in "THE TEMPTRESS," at the PAGEANT. This, too, advances the thesis: "What is truth?—truth lies in the eye of the beholder." But this Italian film in no way carries the dramatic power of its predecessor.

It has the trial of a prisoner, French actor Michel Auclair, who sits mute in his cell as the testimony of the prosecutor shows him a wastrel and seducer who led astray an innocent young girl (Anna Maria Ferrero), then who finally shot her so that she fell and was run over by a streetcar.

But up pops an unshaven bum (another French actor, Michel Simon) who turns out to be a disbarred lawyer. Apparently getting his facts from a crystal ball, he proves the boy was innocent and high-minded, that the girl was a wanton and cheat who carried on as a prostitute under his nose. Furthermore, he says, an examination of the body will show no bullet ever entered it. Why this little piece of information was overlooked by the medical examiner, no one offers to explain, but it doesn't matter much. The film is another sleazy and tawdry bit of sex exploitation, chiefly animated as a vehicle to show the heroine in her underwear, of the type the Italians have been unloading on the American market in recent years under the guise of neo-realism.

From 'Hobo Kid' to a Pastor's Wife

Billie Davis Climbed Out of Ragged Vagabond Existence Into World of 'Real' People

By Mary Kimbrough

IT was hard to believe they could be the same person, this slim, well-groomed, gently-speaking woman and the "hobo kid" of 25 years ago, unkempt, ragged and lonely. Yet she was speaking with candor of the shabby existence her itinerant parents chose for her, in a makeshift world of tin cans and tents, of following the sun but living in a shadow.

Sitting there in the hotel room as we talked together, she was a prototype of a happy young matron. Her bright red dress was simple in design, yet smart in appearance. Her short, dark hair curled softly and her blue eyes were thoughtful. The low tone of her voice was cultured and her English was flawless.

Yet this was Billie Davis, born to the life of a hobo, peddling baskets from door to door almost as soon as she could walk. And this is her story.

Billie was the eldest in a vagabond family, twentieth-century nomads wandering from town to town, trying to eke out a living from the house-to-house sale of rustic furniture made from willow trees. Billie was also the star peddler, and she learned early the tricks of the trade, how to approach a busy housewife, how to avoid an angry dog, how to shrink from children who laughed at her ragged tennis shoes.

But Billie was not content. Something within her—she calls it the "God quest"—kept urging her to try for a better life. And far wiser than her years, she knew that the better life meant schools and churches and libraries and art museums.

Rung by rung, she clambered up the ladder, enrolling herself and her little sister in schools, maybe only for a few weeks until her parents move or again, following other children into Sunday Schools, into public libraries, into any other place that was free where she could find something better than the world of a hobo.

TODAY, a world is behind her. Married to the Rev. George H. Davis, pastor of an Assembly of God church in Davenport, Ia., she is a writer and Sunday School field representative for her denomination, has prepared a three-year series of vacation Bible school courses and for five years served as associate editor of a monthly publication for Sunday School workers. She also has become known as a lecturer, especially since her story, "I Was a Hobo Kid" appeared in the Saturday Evening Post, and it was that facet of her latter-day career which brought her to St. Louis this week as a featured speaker at the state convention of the Missouri Congress of Parents and Teachers. She is especially concerned with schools, for it was in the school room, taught by kind and warm-hearted teachers, that she found an equality with the "real" people, the ones who lived in houses and were smooth and clean and respectable. And it was there that she discovered her chance to rise from what she had been to what she dreamed of becoming.

"This is what we must fight for in our schools," she said, "the program and philosophy which help each youngster develop his potentialities. Let's stop expending all our energy on quarrels over methods of academic teaching, and support the schools for what they are doing to help the individual rise as far as he can."

"True education is discovering this potential in each person and helping him develop it to the best of his ability, so that he finds a measure of satisfaction in his own achievement and, what is equally important, in his ability to contribute to his group."

"The wonderful thing about our schools is that they accord as much self-respect to a boy as to the one majoring in Latin. I think that is the reason Communism has never made great inroads in our public schools, the fact that each has the right and the opportunity to make of himself what he can."

BUT why wasn't Billie Davis content in the squalor of her vagabond life?

"It's that 'God quest' I spoke of, that something which exists to some degree in each of us and keeps urging us to go on to something better," she said. "In those demoralized, bitter people with whom I associated as a child, that something had been squelched."

"But the beauty of our way of life is not that all is fair and lovely, but that there is always a chance for improvement. No one has the right to say he has no opportunity at all."

Billie was one of those who made the most of her opportunities. Longing to be like other children, wanting desperately to have pretty clothes, shining hair and honest-to-goodness leather shoes, she did the next best things. She followed the "real" children into churches and libraries and when she found they were free, she stayed.

"The first thing I found after I discovered schools was a public library," she said. "I asked a woman what it was. My second question was, 'Does it cost anything?' I couldn't pass up anything that was free."

"Then I found a church and it was beautiful, and I thought I might as well stay in a beautiful place as long as possible, so I followed the other children into Sunday School classes. The music was lovely. The first time, no one spoke to me, but as I went back I made friends. And then it was more beautiful than ever."

SOMETIMES, in those early days, Billie would take her little sister with her. Today, she is sending one of her younger brothers to college. Her parents are no longer living and the children are scattered. Two were adopted out; she doesn't know where they are. Two are in service.

"And out of all that family, only one ever got into any trouble," she said. "I think that's pretty remarkable when you think of the kind of life we lived."

Speaking without bitterness or resentment, she has evolved a happy philosophy in her journey from hobo life to the world of the "real" people.

"I think I'm pretty well-adjusted and I'm certainly happy. Perhaps the one way I failed, however, was socially. By that I mean I have never learned to play bridge or carry on small talk."

"I don't mind speaking to hundreds of people in a meeting, but I'm really a flop at a party."

Words, Wit And Wisdom

By William Morris

Who Goofed First?
AN editor calls attention to the current slang phrase, "I goofed," and asks for information on its origin and history. Well, despite widespread popular belief, it's almost never possible to decide just who first uttered a word or phrase that achieves wide popularity in the slang idiom.

Many students of language—especially those high-domed pundits for whom the American language is not a native tongue—credit Damon Runyon with creating a great many popular slang terms. Yet Dr. S. Stephenson Smith, one of the genuine authorities in this area, tells me that Runyon actually created only 96 slang words and phrases. And, of these, not more than two or three have gained any degree of popularity.

In the case of "I goofed," it seems clear that the comedian Jerry Lewis can be credited with popularizing it through his frequent repetition of the phrase in motion pictures and on television.

But Lewis didn't create the phrase. Far from it. For goof as a noun meaning simpleton has been common in the United States for at least 40 years. Some scholars believe it originated as a colloquial of "goff," an obsolete word meaning dolt or stupid fellow.

Very likely the presently popular phrase "I goofed," meaning "I made a foolish mistake," had its origin in this earlier noun meaning. During World War II, the phrase "goof off" was widely popular in two senses: to shirk onerous assignments and to make a mistake. "I goofed" has been recorded as long ago as 1946 and probably was current during the war as a streamlined variant for "I goofed off."

It appears, then, that we can credit the ever-fertile imagination of the American serviceman for first evolving the terse and expressive "I goofed."

Designing Woman Stain-Resistant Fabric

By Elizabeth Hillyer

"IT SEEMS WRONG THAT ONE BIG STAIN CAN SPOIL IT."

THE fabric should be as damage-proof as it can be to protect an investment in a sofa. So Mrs. J. McC. believes, and she writes:

"We don't often buy anything as important as a sofa, and it seems wrong that one big stain can spoil it. Especially with children in the house, there's always that danger. Will you tell me what to look for in fabric on our new sofa that will keep it in good condition as long as possible?"

There's a new process, Mrs. McC., which gives fabrics a silicone base finish, and this is the farthest step yet in making them resistant to stains. Coffee, tea, soft drinks, and fruit juices roll off fabrics in this finish or can be blotted off with cleansing tissue or a sponge. Oily spots can be removed with household solvents without leaving a ring.

The process is called sylmerizing, and while it started on custom-made furniture only, it is now used by nearly 40 fabric manufacturers for all kinds of fabrics and the upholstery fabrics among these are used on furniture made by approximately 60 leading manufacturers.

The sylmer finish changes the appearance of the fabric not at all, so you must be told that it's there.

MRS. B. E. M. "We have a server in our dining room which is 30 inches wide and 28 inches tall. There's a spoon rack on the wall 16 inches above it, with two black trivets hung one at each side. What should be placed on top of the server?"

A single, fairly large piece would look best. A tureen, perhaps, or a big bowl. Height is needed to fill in the 16 inches of wall, so the wall decoration will be better related to and not separated from the furniture.

MRS. C. A. "I'd like to change the dark gray of my living room walls, and the new color must be one that will go with both my winter and summer color schemes. In winter the sofa is black and white tweed, two chairs are salmon, and the draperies are a print in gray, black, and salmon. In summer the sofa is in a print with gray, black, pink, and aqua and the chairs and draperies are aqua." Have you thought of white walls? White would lighten the room and thus make quite a change from the color which you have probably felt is too dark. A very pale gray would have a similar effect, and you might like it better. A very soft faint pink is also a possibility, but it should lean toward the salmon and be such a light tint it is barely off-white.

Chicken Giblets
Chicken giblets need from 1 to 1½ hours when they are being simmered in water. Turkey giblets take from two to three hours. Put the giblets through a food chopper, then mix them with crisply-cooked crumbled bacon, mayonnaise and salt and pepper for a fine sandwich spread.

So East—another charming old lady—played the jack and didn't seem to be surprised in the least when it held the trick. Then she returned the eight of hearts—and what would you do now?"

"Oh, oh!" said the other expert. "Precisely. How could I tell that she was leading away from the Q-10 up to the jack in dummy? I thought she was underleading the ace, to try to fool me. So I put up the king. West won and led another low diamond—and need I go on?"

Thanksgiving Holiday Plans for Debutantes

By Kay Moon

WHILE the majority of this season's debutantes attending colleges in the East will go to New York for the Thanksgiving holidays, several will return to St. Louis for the brief vacation. Miss Louise Sikes Conant, a sophomore at Sarah Lawrence College, Bronxville, N.Y., will arrive here Thanksgiving eve to be with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dozier Conant, 25 Briarcliff, Ladue, until the following Sunday. Coming to St. Louis at the same time will be Miss Mary Talbot Leland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Austin Porter Leland, who is a sophomore at Vassar College. While here final plans will be made for Miss Leland's debut, a reception to be given Christmas day at her parents' home, 6443 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. Miss Leland was a special maid of honor at the Velled Prophet ball early last month.

MISS CONANT... TO SPEND THANKSGIVING HERE.

Mr. and Mrs. John Gamble Burton, 10048 Litzinger road, Ladue, will leave St. Louis Nov. 18 for Boston where they will spend the weekend. They will be joined at the Pierre Hotel, New York, Thanksgiving eve by their daughter, Miss Barbara Schofield Burton, who is in her second year at Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. Mr. and Mrs. Burton returned recently from a visit to the West Coast. After a short time in Seattle and Portland, they visited in San Francisco, La Jolla and Los Angeles.

Miss Joan Carol Pranger, a student at Georgetown Visitation Junior College, Washington, will also meet her parents, Dr. and Mrs. Samuel H. Pranger, 6363 Wydown boulevard, Clayton, at the Pierre Hotel for the holidays. Miss Pranger will be introduced at a tea at her parents' home, Dec. 22 from 4 to 6 o'clock, and will have a second debut party, a dance, next June.

Miss Caroline Compton Clarkson, called Carol, a sophomore at Vassar College, will be the guest of her roommate, Miss Peggy Turner, at Miss Turner's home in York, Pa. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Turner Clarkson, 10 Greenbriar Lane, Ladue, she will be introduced with five other debutantes at a ball Dec. 21 at St. Louis Country Club. Miss Turner was Miss Clarkson's guest for this year's Velled Prophet ball.

Miss Sandra Humphreys, another Vassar sophomore, will be the guest of her roommate, Miss Mary White of New York. She is the daughter of Mrs. Albert G. Blanke, 10 Hortense place, who plans to introduce her at a party next June.

Miss Eunice Whitney (Judy) Olin, a sophomore at Smith College, will accompany a group of classmates to New York for Thanksgiving. They will be guests at the Ambassador Hotel. Miss Olin, who is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Truman Olin of Fairmount, Alton, was also a special maid of honor at the 1955 Velled Prophet ball. She was introduced to her mother's friends at a tea Sept. 10 at the Olin home and Dec. 29 will meet her contemporaries at a dance at St. Louis Country Club.

Mr. and Mrs. Olin will have with them for the Thanksgiving season a son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Pritzlaff Jr. (Mary Dell Olin) of Milwaukee, and the Pritzlaffs' children, Ann Olin and John C. III. Miss Mary Diana Depping, daughter of Mrs. Ivan Lee Holt Jr., a student at Briarcliff, will spend her Thanksgiving recess in Boston. Miss Depping will be the guest of her last year's roommate, Miss Faye Chandler Raymond, and will attend Miss Raymond's marriage Nov. 26 to Paul Duane Williams Jr. The ceremony will take place at 4 o'clock in the afternoon at First Parish Church of Cambridge. Later Miss Raymond's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fairfield Eager Raymond, will give the reception at their home.

Christmas Season Parties for Debutantes.

THE NIGHT of the Princeton Triangle Show in St. Louis, Dec. 27, will be a busy one for the debutante set, with parties taking place before, during and after the event. A cocktail party at Old Watson Country Club, the debut of Miss Susan Jane Spoehrer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Spoehrer, will start the festivities. Later Mr. and Mrs. Henry L. Laumeler, Rott and Geyer roads, St. Louis county, will be host and hostess at a theater party in honor of Miss Claire Davidson, granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Gempp of the Park Plaza Hotel.

After the show Miss Helen Susan Moss will be introduced to society at a ball to be given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Richard M. Moss, 265 Union boulevard, at the University Club. Among the guests will be members of the show's cast.

Miss Barbara Smith Plans January Wedding.

THE WEDDING of Miss Barbara Ann Smith and Thomas Francis Eagleton is scheduled for 11:30 o'clock the morning of Jan. 21 at Our Lady of Lourdes Church. The parents of the bride-to-be, Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Smith, 7255 Maryland avenue, University City, will give a reception afterward at Old Watson Country Club.

The bride-elect has asked her twin sister, Miss Donna Smith, to serve as maid of honor. Included in the list of bridesmaids are Mrs. J. Michael Hadley (Polly Rolwing), Miss Joan Funch, Miss Carol Gissy, Miss Joan Macken, Miss Carol Goessling, Miss Shirley Knupp, all of St. Louis; Miss Sheila Fallon of Boston and Miss Patricia O'Brien of Shreveport, La. Miss O'Brien is a former classmate of Miss Smith at Villa Duchesne and Marymount College, Tarrytown-on-the-Hudson, N.Y.

Dr. Mark D. Eagleton Jr. is to be best man for his brother. They are sons of Mark D. Eagleton, 4608 Tower Grove place, and the late Mrs. Eagleton. Ushers will be announced later.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent P. Ring, 89 Aberdeen place, Clayton, will give a breakfast at their home Sunday, Nov. 27, in honor of Miss Smith and her fiancé. A luncheon and shower will be given Saturday, Dec. 3, by Mrs. John H. Devine, 7112 Westmoreland drive, University City.

Miss Amy Robart Dudley and her fiancé, William Lyle Blanchard, both of whom have been working in New York, are expected in St. Louis, Nov. 24, to spend the Thanksgiving holidays with Miss Dudley's mother, Mrs. Clifton R. Dudley, 370 Walton avenue. The prospective bridegroom is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Lyle Blanchard of Ruxton, Md. Miss Dudley and Mr. Blanchard plan to fly back to New York on Sunday, Nov. 27.

My Day

The Long Drive to City Airports

By Eleanor Roosevelt

CLEVELAND.

WE arrived here safely Wednesday afternoon. It takes 45 minutes by car from the center of the city to reach the airport at Willow Run outside of Detroit and the airport in Cleveland is nearly an hour from the center of this city by car, so in order to fly 45 minutes you drive an hour and three-quarters. But even at that it is faster than by train.

When we did arrive we had nearly an hour and half before the press conference, which was called for 5:30, after which we had dinner. Then I found myself faced with the task of describing to the United Church Women the revolutionary world in which we live today.

I am sure it is a revolutionary world, but I must say when I was asked to describe the American Legion's action on UNESCO in this context I had a feeling I would have to present the Legion's performance in Miami as the best example of those who try to resist any kind of change and cannot understand that there is need to study and explain new movements in the world.

If you want no change you have no use for an organization whose objective is to explain changes that are all about us in the world.

I HAVE JUST READ a very interesting pamphlet that was prepared by Eva N. Davis of the Western College for Women at Oxford, O. Entitled "Guide to Teaching—A Teacher's Handbook About the United Nations and World Affairs," it was published by the American Association for the United Nations and the National Education Association.

The pamphlet covers teaching about the United Nations in the primary grades, the intermediate grades and the high schools.

IT ALSO CONTAINS a list of films that can be obtained through the International Film Foundation, Inc., of which Julian Brian is the executive director.

And it tells where you can get in touch with people if you want to carry on correspondence with someone in another part of the world.

On the last page is a table showing the structure of the United Nations.

1, 2, 3. National presidents and officers of member fraternities will meet with the Executive Committee and N.I.C. chairmen and there will be conferences on financing and housing in preparation for greatly increased college enrollments expected in the next few years. There will be a dinner Friday evening for deans and fraternity executive secretaries. Undergraduate awards will be presented Saturday at the closing banquet. All business sessions and social meetings will be at the Jefferson Hotel. Conference chairman is Francis S. Van Derbur of Denver, Colo. Louis L. Roth is local chairman of arrangements.

Alpha Phi alumnae will have a dinner meeting Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. William L. Kelley, 5227 Winona avenue. Mrs. Roy E. O'Neal is assistant hostess.

Sigma Chi Mothers' Club will meet Thursday afternoon in the fraternity house on the Washington University campus. Tea will be served after a program which includes a talk by Dean Paul H. Connole.

Martha Carr's

OPINION

Today's column is devoted to teen-agers who are invited to submit their problems to Martha Carr.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE an older brother, 17, who is a senior, and I am 14 and a freshman. We, of course, have arguments, and he criticizes me all the time about the way I dress and not going on dates. I am shy around boys, but everyone says I have a wonderful personality and am a lot of fun. My brother says I never go out with girls and that I don't have friends, but I do really! Is he just jealous? I would like to know. SUSAN.

It's a rare older brother, unfortunately, who doesn't argue with his sister occasionally, so don't let it worry you too much. Instead, try to profit from his criticisms. If he doesn't like the way you dress, ask for his honest opinion on what would look good on you. Who knows, he might come up with a good idea. And maybe you aren't as friendly with other young people as he would like you to be. Don't start running around a lot just to please him, but maybe you can cultivate some good friends and let him see that you can have a good time.

Dear Martha:

I LIKED A BOY until I got really well acquainted with him. He comes to our house and talks to Dad. He is very well-mannered. Everyone in my family likes him and wonders why I don't. My mother, though, understands. But she told me to be nice to him. Should I tell him to his face I don't like him? I don't want to hurt him but he's just not for me. He is 17 and I am 14.

WORRIED.

Your mother is right in asking you to be nice to him, but honestly I think that at 14 you're too young to be dating a boy 17. In another few years the difference in ages wouldn't matter so much, but he is either already out of school or so far ahead that you wouldn't be interested in the same activities. I see no reason to tell him to his face that you don't like him, but you can certainly turn him down on dates without being rude.

Dear Martha:

I HAVE BEEN GOING with a boy for a little less than a month and we are now going steady. I am 16 and he is 17. His birthday will be in a few weeks. Is it proper for me to give him a gift? If so, what do you suggest? LOUISE.

As you are going steady, I think a small and inexpensive gift would be in order—a record, some white handkerchiefs, a book on his favorite hobby, tickets to some event he'd like to attend, such as a basketball game or the symphony.

Send today for Martha Carr's free leaflets written especially for teen-agers, "E for Etiquette" and "Popularity for Girls." Please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request.

Husband's Interests

By Ruth Millett

MOST women like some social life but some men seem to be happy with none. The wife of such a man writes:

"How can a husband and wife have any kind of companionship if the husband spends all of his time at home tinkering and working on gadgets and just being a 'brain'?"

"When we get invitations to card parties he says 'No.' If I want to go on a trip I have to go alone. I am a woman of 40 with a grown son and am still young at heart and enjoy being gay and having fun. It gets pretty monotonous to sit every evening alone while my husband stays in the basement with his hobbies."

IF A MAN refuses to share his wife's interests there is only one way for them to have any kind of companionship and that is for her to share his. Evidently this wife hasn't tried to share her husband's or she wouldn't speak so disdainfully of his hobbies as "tinkering" and being a "brain."

What is he doing that he finds so fascinating? Is he experimenting, building, inventing, or what? He must be doing something interesting down there in the basement.

WHY NOT FOLLOW HIM down there and look on for a few evenings? He probably won't be able to resist explaining what he is doing or trying to do and at least you'll get some conversation.

It's no fun having a husband who says "No" to all social invitations. But a wife who isn't tied down by small children should be able to have pretty much of a social life during the day while her husband is at work.

So why not do your going and entertaining in the daytime and at night either be your husband's admirer or helper as he works at his hobbies. Or find yourself a basement hobby. Two persons working side by side can have a lot of companionship.

Beauty After 40

By Edyth Thornton McLeod

I WOULD like a suggestion of some way to work on the wrinkles on my forehead. I am 41.—W.

If you wear eyeglasses have a checkup. If your lenses need changing you are probably getting forehead lines and wrinkles because you frown in an unconscious effort to see better. Good finger work on the forehead will help. Smooth on cosmetic oil and pull the forehead up with strong finger pressure between the eyes. After cleansing, use good quality witch hazel and apply ice to mold.

"PLEASE tell me how to use makeup under my eyes which seem to have a slight darkness all the time but the doctor says I am perfectly healthy.—Gladys L."

Rest your eyes with eye pads of absorbent cotton saturated with any good eye lotion. To make up effectively use a cover-mark makeup cream. Finger print this under the eyes very lightly then smooth and blend with your finger tips. Press face powder on using a fresh cotton ball, then powder the rest of your face and neck.

A St. Louis Honeymoon on Ice

Hollywood Revue Skating Star Here With Her Husband of Three Weeks

By Mary Kimbrough

HONEYMOONING in St. Louis today with her Swedish-born husband—an amateur hockey star whom she met on the ice—Gundi Busch had another good reason for being grateful that her dad put her out in the middle of an ice rink 16 years ago and left her to "sink or swim."

Gundi obviously didn't sink. In fact, although she hadn't been on skates before, she showed such strength in her ankles and such ability to stand up on the ice more than she sat down that a skating teacher signed her as a pupil and started her toward her professional career.

Six years later, by the time she was 10, she had won the little bronze, the bronze, the silver and the gold medals for excellence in figure skating in European competition. When she was 16, she won the German Junior championship. At 17, she placed eighth in the Olympics and sixth in the world's figure skating competition; at 18, was German champion, second in the European competition and second in the world; and at 19, won all three, taking the title from Tenley Albright of Boston who had defeated her the year before.

And right after she won the crown, she gave it up, signing with the Hollywood Ice Revue as a professional figure skater.

THIS YEAR, blonde, blue-eyed Gundi is back for her second season as star of the ice show which will continue through Sunday at the Arena. With her is her brand-new husband, Lulle Johansson, 26 years old, of Stockholm. They were married only three weeks ago.

Gundi was only 4 years old when her father—a German operating an import and export business in Milan, Italy—took her to a Milan skating rink one Sunday afternoon, led her to the center of the ice and left her there.

"That same day, I started taking lessons and when I was 6 I won my first competition," she recalls.

GUNDI BUSCH . . . ON AND OFF THE ICE.

No movies to keep her up late at night. No parties. Just hard work.

"When the American boys were in Italy the ice rink was reserved for them during the day, so about the only time I could practice was between 4 and 7 in the morning," she said. "Then I went to school from 8 to 2, tried to get in a little more skating practice until 6, then went home for dinner and school work. I never played with dolls in my life."

But all that is forgotten now and she's glad she stuck with it. Even the hard training is behind her because show business, she has found, is far easier than keeping in trim for competition.

"Oh, we work hard, especially when we're rehearsing, but on tour, we don't have to keep going through the routines," she said. "If necessary, we skate some during the day to keep limber, but I've found that isn't hard for me."

"Last summer I went back to Milan and relaxed for months. I spent all my time on the beach and at home, didn't even put on a pair of skates. And you know, when I started again this fall, it was just as though I had skated the day before."

GUNDI SUFFERED the second injury of her career the day before the show opened here and she had to sit out several performances. She tripped over some steps and sprained her ankle. But, painful as it was, it wasn't nearly as serious as the shoulder injury she suffered when she was 8, when another skater collided with her and almost ended her career right then.

"But this time it was torture for me to sit in the audience and watch. I wanted to be out there so much," she said.

"When she's in the show, she never sees the audience. The spotlights—which, incidentally, have weakened her eyes somewhat and forced her to wear tinted glasses—blind her to the rows of seats. But she can sense what the audience is like."

"They're different every night. And they're not at all like the European audiences. There the people applaud a good skating routine or an especially difficult stunt. Here they like that, of course, but they also respond to a good show, to the drama of the production."

"But unless they are noisy—and I don't like that—I don't think too much about them. It's just kind of a dream world out there on the ice."

The Little Woman

A Beautiful Dream

By Clarissa Start

ANTOINE, the incomparable creator of coiffures, was in town last week. Since it was Antoine who gave Claudette Colbert her bangs, Greta Garbo her long bob, Mary Martin her "South Pacific" short-cut, Antoine who invented the egg-rum shampoo for the Duchess of Windsor and a honeysuckle sap rinse for Cobiina Wright, we thought he might be able to suggest something for the little woman. The busy little woman who dashes by the hall mirror between dishpan and doorbell and notes, "Good grief, I haven't gotten around to combing it yet."

Clarissa Start.

a handsome young man from Pennsylvania.

"I am opening my own establishment," said Antoine. "A beauty center in Cannes. It will be the most unique in the world. Dry your hair in open air, in the sun under the orange and lemon trees. A garden for your boudoir. Cypress, a stadium for the fashion shows. Sun baths, massage, coloring the body by lamps. The lady may come early in the morning in her bikini, stay all day, leave in her cocktail dress, from feet to head, signage. Can you picture it—the warm, warm afternoon, the air full of perfume, the trees full of oranges and lemons?"

Sitting there in the salon, our lap full of doughnuts which we were taking home for dessert, we could indeed. It sounded heavenly.

JUST THEN the model came in. She was, as represented, very young, very pretty. She had lovely, manageable red hair which Antoine had cut skillfully. There were the big waves, a few curls (Bombay?) around the wide forehead. She looked like any pretty girl who has just had her hair done by an expert. It was a little difficult to see how it might look after a steaming over the breakfast oatmeal, a tugging by the two-year-old, a tousling by the wind when you let the dog out and bring the paper in.

But no matter. If we did not come away with a coil which clung we came away with a dream which will. We offer to share it with you. On one of the dreary days ahead when you are left with the gummy oatmeal bowls, the damp two-year-old, your uncombed hair, the wintry wind outside, you might transport yourself with us momentarily to Cannes, to the lush warm perfumed air and lie there a second, drying your hair under the orange and lemon trees.

ANTOINE, WHO SPENDS two months a year in this country, the rest in France, was making his annual pilgrimage to Stix, Baer, and Fuller, with his "prime minister," Mr. Bruce.

Secrets of Charm

Your Posture and Grace

THERE is no one more attractive in a man's eye than a graceful woman. Posture and grace are the keynote of her success. She has the head-high, tummy-in correct, graceful and poised stance that brings greater admiration to a model than her one-in-a-thousand face.

Posture, both mental and physical, is important. A charming woman has a rhythmic glide. Otherwise a walk is about as attractive to the eye as uninspired music is to the ear. Your rhythm depends on how your feet touch the ground. Both feet must fall with an equal amount of force and rate of speed.

EVEN THOUGH you learn the best of walks, you cannot compel your feet to conform in rhythm if they ache. The drawn, tired expression seen in a face can often be traced to aching feet. When you've had a particularly trying day . . . maybe you had to stand on your feet too long—try this special foot bath. It'll help you have happy feet . . . which means happy eyes.

Put hot water in one container; cold water in another. In the hot water put a tablespoon of sugar, a tablespoon of bicarbonate of soda, two tablespoons of Epsom salt and a few drops of lemon juice. To the cold water add a tablespoon of bath salts and two cubes of ice.

FIRST PUT both feet in the hot water for three minutes, then both feet in the cold water for three minutes. Back in the hot water (more can be added to make it hotter). Then in the cold, finally one minute in the hot; and one minute in the cold. This will put wings on your feet. And it also helps feet that perspire too freely.

Achieve grace of the highest degree—make yours the posture ideal—improve stance, figure, health and the appearance of your clothes. Read the informative, easy-to-follow booklet "Your Posture". For a copy, write to Secrets of Charm in care of the Post-Dispatch, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope and 10 cents in coin.

Attractive Shades
Pale colored silks are used for late-day and evening dresses that have a fragile emphasis. Vanilla satin, a silver gray tone taffeta, champagne peau de soie, and "complexion colors" of ivory pink and peach are among the attractive shades that are featured extensively.

Leftover Rice
Here's a satisfactory way to heat cooked leftover rice. Put it in a saucepan and cover it with boiling water; bring quickly to a boil. Drain and return to saucepan; dry a few minutes, shaking the pan, over low heat.

Tasty Tricks

Tight skins on garlic cloves come off easily if you run hot water over them first. Impale clove on a toothpick to make it easy to find and remove from soup or stew.

Wood Finish

No matter how skilled you are, never try to drive a nail into finish wood such as floors, all the way with a hammer. When it's about 1/4-inch from the surface, use a nail set to drive it the rest of the way down. This will eliminate the chance of denting the wood with the hammer.

REDHEAD from TEXAS

CHAPTER TWENTY-SEVEN.
MOLLY was surprised but pleased by Walter Symington's possessive attitude. The trouble he was in seemed to cement their relationship with a new ardor, one which she had long hoped would materialize. So confident was she of her love for him now, that had it not been for her father's disapproval she would have married him at once.

Perhaps it was this new confidence which made her telephone Matt Brady the following morning.

"Changed your mind?" Matt inquired hopefully.

"No and I'm not going to. I think I know what I really want, and Walter's been so wonderful."

Matt snorted. "Didn't it occur to you that Symington has a lot to be grateful for as far as you're concerned? What did you call me for anyway, Molly? I'm leaving for Texas on the 4 o'clock."

Suddenly she was ashamed of her secret desire to flaunt her relationship with Walter. "We could have lunch together," she faltered. "Afterward, she wondered why she had suggested it because as usual the very sight of Matt Brady cast a spell over her emotions."

Quick to read her mind and guessing her reactions he said, "Why did you really want to see me? Wasn't it to compare Walter with me and hope I'd come out the loser?"

THEY were lunching in the cool depths of an Italian restaurant where red checked tablecloths belied the prices on king-sized menus. A piano player tinkled out romantic melodies in one corner and the atmosphere created an impression of being quiet, expensive and continental all at the same time.

Matt was easily the best looking man in the room, Molly admitted. Perhaps because of his air of strength and power—his deep tan, which came from outdoor life. She smiled at him. "I've decided to stop fighting the attraction you have for me," she stated. "I'm simply going to admit it's there and denounce it."

"Nice of you," Matt said. "And while you're busy denouncing it, you'll marry Symington?"

"Perhaps—if H. J. withdraws his objections."

"He'll never do that, Molly, and you know it. Personally I wouldn't want to marry a girl, if she were attracted to another man."

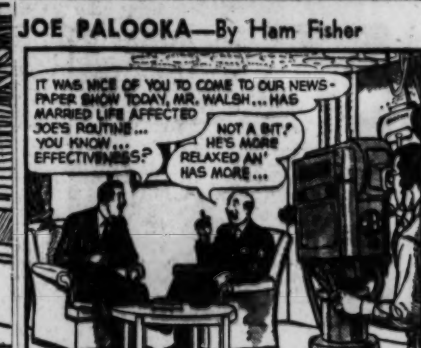

"Don't be so conceited. It doesn't mean a thing, Matt. Just physical attraction. There are a lot of other things in marriage, too."

He winced. "That's one of the most unkind things you've ever said to me. Some day perhaps you'll realize how much it hurts."

"I'm sorry. I always seem to say the wrong things where you're concerned."

"That's because you're constantly rejecting me—telling yourself it's Walter you want. He paused while a waiter poured glasses of sparkling red wine. "Sometimes I wonder why I'm in love with you. You're stubborn, changeable and you have too much money for my taste. Yet I do admit that I'm in love with you. I don't try to pass it off with an

IN THIS, the twentieth century, railroads have made big forward strides. Streamlined passenger trains have become common, and they travel three or four times as fast as did trains in the middle of the last century.

Despite the excellent progress, railroads have failed to keep their old proportion of passenger traffic. Private automobiles, buses and airplanes have grown popular.

Q. Aside from private motor cars, which kind of transport handles the most passengers?

A. The railroad. Bus lines and airplanes follow strongly, with ocean liners fourth.

Q. Which is the largest railway system in North America?

A. The Canadian National. This system combines many small lines which at one time were losing money. Now the lines are owned by the Canadian government, and pay a moderate return.

Q. Does Canada have a large privately-owned railway?

A. Yes, the Canadian Pacific, which likewise has a system stretching across Canada.

Q. Have steam locomotives lost favor?

A. Yes, to a very large extent. In some sections you will still find a single steam locomotive.

Q. Diesel-electric locomotives have grown more and more popular. Electric locomotives, which differ from the diesel-electrics, are employed in parts of North America, and are common in several countries of Europe. Oil-burning steam locomotives are favored in some areas; these differ from the diesel-electrics, which burn oil but are run by electric power.

Q. Who invented the diesel engine?

A. It was invented by a German, Rudolf Diesel. In a diesel-electric locomotive, an electric generator is powered by a diesel engine.

Play Safe While You Drive!

Keep alert—chew gum

Avoid traffic jitters and driving drowsiness. Chew gum while you're behind the wheel. Chewing helps relieve strain and tension—helps keep you feeling fresh and alert for safer driving. Chew any brand of gum you like but chew while you drive. Naturally, we recommend refreshing, delicious Wrigley's Spearmint Gum—for lively, satisfying flavor and real chewing enjoyment.

THE MILKY WAY

As Gopats and his tribesmen watched the "cow" studded heavens, another visible proof of the "holiness" of the cow appeared. Across the sky there flowed the great river of soft whiteness which to this day we call the "Milky Way." This early respect for the cow and her heavenly connection is actually reflected in at least one nursery rhyme of today. "The cow jumped over the moon."
